During the past three to four years, the association has granted a lake guardian designation to property owners who already have a healthy greenbelt.

Now, Kimmel said they want to focus on properties where the greenbelt isn't as healthy.

"We have gone to neighborhood associations already," Kimmel said. "We're going to recruit 15 to 25 property owners who will commit to improving their property — basically, let the homeowner decide what that means. The idea is to recruit people who will sign up and during the summer and fall implement a greenbelt shoreline restoration project."

Kimmel said the hope is to build on those numbers and grow over time.

Kimmel estimates there are about 2,000 properties on the lakeshore that can affect the quality of the water.

Property owners can promote greenbelts by, for example, growing native plants, letting the grass grow longer and growing plants with long roots.

To help implement the program Kimmel said an intern will be hired to help property owners.

Jen Buchanan Gelb, a restoration ecologist for Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, said greenbelts are important to maintaining clean water.

"The most important thing is to grow plants that have deep roots that enable plants to hold the soils in place giving the soil and shoreline more space," she said.

She added this will help to remove pollutants.

"Native plants are preferred," she said. "They are a better fit ecologically speaking. They offer more habitat and are less likely to require maintenance."

To figure out which native plants are grown in an area is to take a look at other properties with greenbelts. The types of plants often found around this area include black eyed susans, dogwoods, shrubs like high-bush cranberries and grasses like bluestem and switchgrass.

Kimmel said many times what prevents people from maintaining a greenbelt is the look of the landscaping.

"It doesn't need to look wild, unkempt and woolly," he said.

"It can be planted and kept in such a way that is not only beautiful, but healthy for the lake."

He said the whole premise of the program is not about "policing people" or telling them what to do.

"Most people want to do the right thing," he said. "But some don't understand. It's (the program) educational. It's about how they can treat their properties to help maintain the lake."

Schools should be safe for all students

The bell rings and a sea of smiling faces flood out into the school yard. Amid all the smiling faces, you spot your son. He's in tears, scared. He tells you he was bullied, teased and called "a loser," "ugly" and "stupid" by several kids in his class. You're livid.

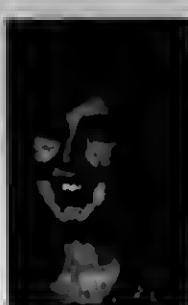

After giving him a hug and wiping away his tears, you take his hand and together you head to the principal's office. There, he explains what happened. His principal and teacher reassure you they will do everything in their power to make sure it won't happen again, and the children responsible for the harassment will be punished. The school has a zero tolerance policy when it comes to bullying. You feel confident in their reassurances.

Now imagine your child is gay or transgender. He's harassed at school every single day — in the hallway, the lunchroom, the bathroom, even sometimes in class when the teacher can't see or hear. He's scared to go to school, his grades start slipping, he no longer is the happy, outgoing child you once knew.

Civil rights laws protect children from bullying due to race, sex, religion, disability and national origin. There's no federal law that explicitly prohibits bullying of kids based on real or perceived sexual orientation or gender identity.

In Michigan, the State Board of Education is working on a voluntary guidance aimed at helping school districts better serve LGBTQ students. Recommendations range from adopting policies that protect LGBTQ students from harassment, to having a staff member available to offer support to these issues. Recommendations also state students should not be required to use a bathroom or locker room that is incompatible with their gender identity and students should be addressed by their "chosen name" along with pronouns that "correspond to their gender identity."

Remember, these are recommendations and are voluntary. The board is just working to make sure all students feel safe and comfortable at school and create an environment of learning — which students are there for in the first place. The recommendations came after educators asked the State Board for input on policies pertaining to LGBTQ students.

HOW I SEE IT
Rachel Brougham

R-Mount Pleasant, said the recommendations could "eliminate parental authority" and upset a child's privacy and safety. Maybe Cotter and his colleagues don't think it's our responsibility to protect all children.

More than 30 percent of LGBTQ students report missing a day of school in the previous month because they felt unsafe, according to the Gay, Lesbian, and Straight Education Network. In addition, 25 percent of LGBTQ students have been physically hurt by another student because of their sexual orientation, 55 percent of transgender students report physical attacks and 28 percent of LGBTQ youth drop out of school because of harassment.

Whether you agree with LGBTQ issues or not — for religious reasons or otherwise — shouldn't we agree all students should be able to learn in a safe environment where they are free to express themselves without fear?

Earlier this month, a special needs school in Kalamazoo went on lockdown after a man openly carried a handgun inside. Upset parents voiced their outrage and said their children reported feeling scared and fearful. Parents said they themselves were worried about the safety of their children, knowing a person could just carry a gun into a school.

I have yet to hear any Michigan lawmaker voice any disapproval of the safety concerns felt by those children or parents.

You can weigh in on the proposed guidance of the State Board of Education's recommendations until Monday, April 11 on the Michigan Board of Education website (www.michigan.gov/mde), before it goes before the board for approval in May.

Rachel Brougham is the former assistant editor of the Petoskey News-Review. You can email her at racheldbrougham@gmail.com or follow her on Twitter @RachelBrougham.

But these recommendations don't sit well with some Michigan lawmakers. This week, House Speaker Kevin Cotter,

LETTERS to the editor

Support of community, co-workers a blessing

Editor:

It is with a very humble and grateful heart that I write this letter.

On Friday, Feb. 26, a benefit dinner, raffle and silent auction was organized by my co-worker and friend, Liz Shaw, and was held in my honor at the Charlevoix Middle High School. I was not able to attend the event but the reports from my family and friends were incredible. To say that I am overwhelmed by this show of love and support is a huge understatement. All the effort and teamwork that goes into planning, organizing, cooking, setting up, cleaning up and all the little details are so deeply appreciated. I would like to thank Liz Shaw and my co-workers at Charlevoix Public Schools for the time and effort put into this benefit dinner.

Another big thank you to the Charlevoix EMS, Charlevoix Fire Department, and Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Emergency Room personnel for their quick response to my injuries and for literally saving my life. I am also grateful for the staff at Munson Medical Center, Boulder Park Terrace, and Munson Healthcare Charlevoix for the care I have received and continue to receive.

To say thank you seems inadequate but to all who prayed, visited, sent cards or flowers, brought food, gave of their time at the benefit dinner, or donated monetarily either at the dinner, to me directly, or to the 4Front Credit Union account, thank you from the bottom of my heart.

I have felt all of the love and support sent my way and it is truly helping me heal. I am reminded once again of the blessings of living in this community where people care and show it in tangible ways.

Snyder's failure in Flint

Editor:

I agree with Gov. Snyder when he says there was a huge failure involved in the Flint water crisis. I disagree with him, however, when he says it was a "failure of government at all levels."

The huge failure was not with government but rather with how he chose to exercise it. The first failure was his choice to install an unelected emergency manager who was able to make decisions with no accountability to locally elected officials of Flint. The second failure was his desire to run government like a business. The combined effect of these failures was to favor profits over people and to disregard complaints and concerns of elected officials and residents of Flint.

In the real world an ethical politician responsible for such a human and financial disaster would resign immediately. Our governor, of course, is going nowhere.

No response received

Editor:

I read with interest Shirley Gibson's guest column (Having Your Voice Heard) in the March 18 issue of the Charlevoix Courier. She encouraged citizens to participate in the government process by presenting their opinions and views, and of course, by asking questions.

One month ago, I wrote an email message to my Ward representative regarding a city subject involving property tax values and received no reply or acknowledgment. A few days ago, I sent a follow-up email asking for a response. I was hoping my representative would give me some insight on my question. No response has been received.

Perhaps I should approach Shirley Gibson with my question. She appears to be prepared to respond to me in a way my own Ward representative is not.

Charlevoix City Council agenda item use questioned

Editor:

Do you think the reason a Charlevoix City Council meeting has an agenda, made and distributed in advance to the public, with an item called "miscellaneous business" is so certain council members can push their own self-serving interests? And, is this feature on the City Council Agenda used without proper public notice so Charlevoix residents can be denied a full public hearing? Shame on Councilmen Luther Kurtz, Aaron Hagen, Bill Supernaw and Shane Cole for circumventing full disclosure while hiding behind an item that should be renamed "monkey business."

A kingdom didn't work on Beaver Island and it certainly will not work in Charlevoix.

LOOKING BACK...

Bert Mason's Groceries, Flour & Feed Store was located on Bridge Street near the center of today's East Park. The store also served as a community center for the local men who dropped in to congregate around the stove in the back to chew the fat. At right, behind the counter, stand the shelves stocked with tinned food. Customers in those days asked for items, and did not pick them off the shelves themselves. But Bert sold much more than foodstuff. In fact, the store stocked several items not even related to food. Washboards, coffee pots, new "old oaken buckets" with brass bands around them, brooms, hoes, and frying pans hang from the ceiling. Also seen are a two-man saw, assorted crockery, an ax, and boat anchors. The store also offered free horse-drawn wagon delivery service door-to-door. Oleson's and Family Fare could take a few display, merchandising, and customer relations tips from Bert.

Charlevoix Circle of Arts seeks plein air painters

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Circle of Arts invites plein air painters from the region to submit an entry form to the Chasing the Light exhibition that will open on Friday, July 1 and run through Saturday, Aug. 27. Painters may enter plein air work, the studio piece that follows or a combination of both. Applications will be accepted through June 18, and the number of paintings each artist will be able to enter into the exhibition will be determined by the number of applicants.

An important event that will coincide with the entry process will be a Plein Air Paint Out hosted by the Charlevoix Circle of Arts on Saturday June 18. Artists are encouraged to join the Circle at 8 a.m. to have their canvases stamped and spend the day painting with fellow compatriot. There will be a wet-paint sale opening that evening where artists and patrons can gather and experience the excitement of what can become possible on one given day.

Plein air artist Nancy Kaulens will be back in Charlevoix this year. Kaulens, who is a Northern Michigan plein air artist involved with D'art for Art and Charlevoix Circle of Arts armchair theater, will return to the area from Florida to paint again this year.

Kaulens enjoys plein air work because, "I intuit what I paint and I work fast. When working outdoors the paint often dries quickly and the light often fades. Some of my works are moody and others are quite colorful."

Screening of 'The Hunting Ground' to headline college sex assault discussion

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney's office will host a free screening of the award-winning documentary "The Hunting Ground" at 7 p.m. on Monday, April 4, at Charlevoix Cinema III, 107 Antirum St.

"The Hunting Ground" highlights the problem of sexual assault on college campuses across the country. The film was produced and directed, respectively, by Academy Award nominees Amy Ziering and Kirby Dick.

"Even though we do not have any residential college campuses in Charlevoix County, this is a very important film for our community to see," Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney Allen Telgenhof said in a news release about the event. "It shows the impact sexual assaults and other crimes have on the victims involved."

"We also have a large number of current and future college students in our county," Telgenhof added. "It is important that our parents and students know more about this very important issue. We are hoping it will start some conversations."

The film is brought to Charlevoix County through a grant obtained by Libby Mikulski, the victim advocate for the prosecuting attorney's office, through the Crime Victim Services Commission, Michigan Department of Health and Human Services and the Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan, as well as sponsors Allen Telgenhof, Mikulski, Charlevoix Cinema III and the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan.

The event also serves as an early kickoff for Crime Victims' Rights Week, which is April 10-16.

"The Hunting Ground" premiered in 2015 at the Sundance Film Festival and was named Best Documentary by the Chicago Film Critics, St. Louis Film Critics, Dallas-Fort Worth Film Critics, Utah Film Critics. The film was also officially shortlisted for the Academy Award for Best Documentary.

Following the film, a question and answer session about the movie and sexual assault issues will take place with members of the prosecuting attorney's office, law enforcement and the Women's Resource Center staff.

Free refreshments will be provided.

Char-Em United Way sends game changers to Pistons game

Char-Em United Way sent 25 community volunteers and their guests to the Palace of Auburn Hills on March 19, to watch the Detroit Pistons take on the Brooklyn Nets. This opportunity was part of the state-wide Game Changers Program, a collaboration between the Pistons and United Way.

Char-Em United Way understands the value of volunteerism and encourages community members to connect with local organizations through its Volunteer Connections online service. As a token of appreciation for the work volunteers do in the community, tickets and parking passes were made available free of charge, with local nonprofit organizations nominating their volunteers for the experience. Each volunteer was able to invite up to three additional guests; a total of 100 community members attended the game.

The Game Changer honorees enjoyed an exciting game with a victory for the Pistons and a final score of 115-103. The Game Changers Program rewards everyday people who are making a difference within their communities through service, leadership and volunteerism. For the third year in a row, Char-Em United Way has partnered with the Detroit Pistons to provide tickets to volunteers as a gesture of appreciation for their dedication and volunteer time.

Habitat for Humanity seeks volunteers for site builds Northwest Michigan Habitat for Humanity is seeking skilled and unskilled volunteers willing to respond to the increasing need for affordable housing in Emmet and Charlevoix counties. The organization seeks community help for volunteer crews to help frame a modest ranch home in the Lantern Walk development in Alanson beginning the first week in April. Volunteers assisting Habitat on the current builds will participate in a variety of recognition programs, including:

— All builders/contractors who send a half or whole day volunteer crew(s) will receive recognition on the Habitat website and in the media, as well as special Habitat Commemorative Build T-shirts, community swag bag and food for their framing day workers. Volunteers will receive recognition gifts as well.

— Corporations may sponsor an employee or volunteer crew, or may ask employees to volunteer their time. Corporations sponsoring employees as volunteers will receive tax deductible contribution receipts.

— Framing days will minimally include framing and roof trusses, sheathing, door installation, roof deck and shingling. It is anticipated that framing will commence and be completed during a Blitz Framing Build the first, second and third weeks in April, weather permitting.

Volunteers willing to assist, should contact Mandy Martin at (231) 348-6926 ext. 102, or email: mandy@northwest-mihabitat.org.

Health Department partnering with Pediatricians to offer enhanced services

CHARLEVOIX — The Health Department of Northwest Michigan has been partnering with pediatric and primary care providers across Charlevoix and Emmet counties to implement a new program — the Michigan Children's Healthcare Access Program (CHAP). The program aims to make it easier for families to connect the resources they need to keep their children healthy.

Natalie Kasiborski, Community Health Supervisor at the Health Department, is excited to roll out Children's Healthcare Access Program to benefit the area's youth.

"Navigating health resources and insurance can be confusing and sometimes overwhelming, especially for parents whose children need special attention," she said. "CHAP will make the process smoother for families and health care providers alike."

Children's Healthcare Access Program, which serves youth ages 17 and younger, acts as a coordinator of children's health care services. The program's mission is to improve health outcomes among children on Medicaid, while better utilizing existing resources and decreasing healthcare costs. Patients will receive needed services, education, and assistance navigating the healthcare system. Current program participants include Petoskey Pediatrics, Community Health Center of Northern Michigan, Charlevoix Pediatrics, Pine River Medical, East Jordan Family Health Center, and Dental Clinics North — East Jordan.

"The Children's Healthcare Access Program will make a great difference for our families," said Dr. Laura Most, a pediatrician at Petoskey Pediatrics. "Not only will the program help the children directly, but it will provide a central source of support for their families."

To be eligible for Children's Healthcare Access Program, children must be enrolled in a Medicaid health plan and assigned to a participating primary care practice. Services include home visits, telephone consultation and follow-up, transportation assistance, and coordination of care. Families may be referred to Children's Healthcare Access Program for a variety of reasons, including unnecessary emergency room use, transportation issues, frequent missed appointments, being in need of an annual well-child visit, needing assistance connecting with behavioral health or specialty services.

By educating parents and guardians, Kasiborski hopes the program will encourage the use of primary care providers and decrease the number of inappropriate emergency room visits.

Children's Healthcare Access Program is funded through the Michigan Association of United Ways, and is a part of the statewide MI-CHAP demonstration project. For more information, visit nwhealth.org or call (800) 432-4121.

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan is mandated by the Michigan Public Health Code to promote wellness, prevent disease, provide quality healthcare, address health problems of vulnerable populations, and protect the environment for the residents and visitors of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego counties.

Artist Profile: Glen McCune

smiller@charlevoixnews.com

EAST JORDAN — Glen McCune, a local artist, loves the outdoors and his artwork greatly reflects that. From paintings to boat building, he seems to do a little bit of everything.

McCune grew up in a rural community in Ohio with his two brothers, who shared an enthusiasm for the outdoors.

During high school, McCune became somewhat of a backyard zookeeper. He tended to a number of animals including porcupines, woodchucks, foxes, and many others.

Through this, and his love for the outdoors, he was on his way to becoming an intense nature observer. The skills McCune developed early on in life greatly influenced his artwork, and continues to this day.

McCune attended Northern Michigan University and pursued a teaching degree. With his degree, McCune taught industrial arts and ended up teaching shop class.

Teaching woodworking helped him transition to being a full-time artist for a living.

"The '90s hit and woodworking became huge. I started doing huge moose doors and it really kind of started taking over," McCune said.

From there, McCune put his eggs in a lot of different baskets and seems to have done a little bit of everything. "Following working on the doors I started doing bronze sculptures. I also painted the big bottle with my wife for Big Buck Brewing in Gaylord. We carved the bar that goes around the inside of the brewery, too. I've also done a lot of things for the Red Cross fundraisers and painted some turtles from last year's auction. I even did a crucifix carving for a church in Elmira," McCune said.

McCune doesn't stop there, though. He has also built boats, hunting decoys, paintings, yearly calendars and more.

"Art just took over. I ended up doing more art shows and started to produce a calendar for about 14 years and that became a business. It all sort of took over my teaching so I ended up following art and living the dream," McCune said.

No matter what he is working on, inspiration for McCune comes from his curiosity. As an observer of nature, he can find inspiration in tree bark or the way a bird is flying.

seeing closely. The woods are an interesting place and by examining a tree it could look like an elephant hide. You can also look at a blank canvas and it can be anything, you just have jump in and create," he said.

With his wife, Cindy, McCune owns and operates the Yellow Dog Gallery at their home in East Jordan. They are both also members of the Crooked Tree Arts Center, Jordan River Arts Council, and the Charlevoix Circle of Arts.

Currently, McCune has work on display in the Crooked Tree Arts Center, Jordan River Arts Council, Charlevoix Circle of Arts, the Freshwater Gallery, and at his home in the Yellow Dog Gallery. McCune will also have an exhibit in the Crooked Tree Arts Center Gilbert Gallery this summer titled "Glen McCune: Feathered Friends."

Rep. Cole: Remove restrictions on morel hunting, sales

State Rep. Triston Cole, R-Mancelona, introduced legislation that will remove regulations for morel mushroom enthusiasts to obtain a mandatory certification to be able to pick and sell morels to local businesses.

House Bill 5532 will remove morel mushrooms from the food code that requires harvesters to be certified to sell.

"Finding, picking and selling morel mushrooms is a favorite Northern Michigan activity," Rep. Cole said. "The 105th House District hosts two festivals a year, (54th Annual Morel Festival in Boyne City will be held May 12-15.) and one in Lewiston (Lewiston's Annual Morel Mushroom Festival and Spring Craft Show is scheduled for Saturday, May 7, this year) dedicated to morel mushrooms. Tourists flock to the very rural areas of Northern Michigan to hunt for morel mushrooms. This brings a great deal of revenue to my district."

"I can still remember as a kid going mushroom hunting and selling buckets of morels to local restaurants. Under our state's current law the government has made this an illegal practice. The commonality and unique identification of morel mushrooms make them ideal for exemption to this burdensome regulation and a mandatory certification course that costs participants $175 per class."

HB 5532 has been referred to the House Agriculture Committee.

Statewide unemployment drops below 5 percent but northern counties still struggle

JOHN BENDER
Capital News Service

LANSING—The percent of unemployed Michigan workers dropped below five percent last January for the first time since 2001, the Michigan Department of Technology, Management & Budget reported recently.

But many workers in the northern part of the state didn't fare as well as the rest of the state.

Montmorency, Presque Isle and Schoolcraft counties all have double the state's unemployment rate. Cheboygan and Mackinac counties have triple, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

This may be due to which industries are leading the state's economic growth.

"The recovery we've had was stronger in Michigan than in many other states because the auto industry bounced back," said Charles Ballard, a Michigan State University economist and expert on Michigan's economy.

The northern counties are less able to take advantage of the resurgence of the auto industry, which is based in the southern part of the state, said Jim Stansell, senior economist for the Michigan House Fiscal Agency.

Since the mining industry's decline, many Upper Peninsula workers have sought work elsewhere, Ballard said.

Many Upper Peninsula workers rely on tourism. Statewide, tourism provides about 214,000 jobs, according to a 2015 state report.

The seasonal nature of Michigan tourism means counties that are not traditional winter tourism destinations can suffer substantial unemployment in the winter months, said Jim Rhein, economic analyst for the Michigan Department of Technology, Management and Budget.

"Mackinac and Cheboygan are the most seasonal counties in the state," he said. "In the winter time there isn't much tourism in those areas."

But in the summer, those counties have high tourism and low unemployment.

This dramatic difference in employment rates throughout the year can have consequences for workers, Rhein said.

"There is a slow down across most employment sectors," he said. "Unemployment claims always rise there in the winter, far higher than they are in the summer."

Mackinac County's July 2015 unemployment rate is nearly 15 percent lower than its January 2016 rate, while Cheboygan County experienced a 10 percent differential in the same period, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

"This is sort of a roller coaster ride folks have to deal with," Rhein said.

While the two counties' winter unemployment rates continue to be much higher than the state average, they are shrinking, according to the bureau. The January unemployment rate dropped by nearly 10 percentage points between 2009 and 2016 in Mackinac County. It dropped by slightly more than 5 percentage points in Cheboygan County during the same time period.

The seasonal nature of working in the most tourist-dependent parts of the Upper Peninsula creates two basic options for workers, said Deborah Doyle, executive director of an Upper Peninsula subregion for the Upward Talent Council-Michigan Works, an organization that helps unemployed Michiganders find jobs.

"There are some folks that may work different seasonal jobs, but there is a population that during that non-peak season may live off savings and unemployment benefits knowing they will be called back to work again next season," Doyle said.

This population, dependent on unemployment benefits and savings, earns less than they would if more stable employment were available, she said.

Legislation passed in 2012 further hinders the ability of such workers to survive, said Peter Ruark, senior policy analyst for the Michigan League for Public Policy. It blocks families with over $5,000 in savings from receiving food assistance.

"We don't want to force people to deplete their savings and punish them for doing the right thing," he said. "People should receive food assistance when they aren't making enough to support their families."

Campaign encourages non-violence toward women

Since 2010, the 100 Men Campaign has been a way for local men to take a public stand against domestic abuse, sexual assault and child sexual assault and abuse. The campaign invites northern Michigan men to become part of the solution to ending violence that impacts the women and girls they care about — their daughters, partners, mothers, sisters, friends and neighbors.

“So many men care deeply about this issue,” said Gall Kloss, executive director of the Women’s Resource Center of Northern Michigan. “The 100 Men Campaign is a way for men to take action by donating $100 and agreeing to have their name published alongside other supporters.”

Contributions to the 100 Men Campaign support the Violence Prevention Initiative such as awareness-raising media messages, film screenings, panel discussions, lectures, “Coaching Boys into Men” materials and White Ribbon events. All dollars remain local and help engage community members in discussions about the roots of violence against women and girls and the role played by media, sports culture, religion, economics and the family structure.

The campaign has caught the eye of other groups across the country. The center has received inquiries to launch similar campaigns from as near as Detroit and as far away as Austin, Texas, the University of Memphis and the Eastern Seaboard.

“Important work takes time,” Kloss said. “This local campaign is reaching out to men and inviting them to be part of the growing momentum nationwide — worldwide — to create communities that support equality, respect and healthy relationships free from violence.”

Kloss cited other national efforts such as the recent work by the National Football League encouraging fans to “get off the sidelines” and speak out against domestic and sexual violence. The national NO MORE campaign focuses on the tendency to blame victims instead of perpetrators. College campuses across the country have also been working to bring about awareness, education and prevention for safer student life.

The 100 Men Campaign was born out of the belief that men have a crucial role to play in the movement to end violence against women and girls. Through greater awareness of this issue and by advocating for violence prevention at the community level, men are becoming part of the solution in ending what has become one of the most significant social issues of our time.

To learn more about the 100 Men Campaign or call (231) 347-0067 or visit wrcnm.org/support/100-men-campaign.

Author argues for united attack on invasive species

LANSING — Some are slimy. Others jump at the sight of humans. But most remain mysterious — cloaked below the water’s surface — and ready to wreak havoc on an unsuspecting ecosystem.

They are the Great Lakes aquatic invaders.

“We have a role in preventing their spread,” said Bill Rapai, author of a book to be released April 4, “Lake Invaders: Invasive Species and the Battle for the Future of the Great Lakes” (Wayne State University Press, $27.99).

“We often notice impacts to water clarity and our limited success finding or fishing the species we love, but we rarely think about the direct negative and cascading impacts of invasive species,” he said.

Rapai, an amateur naturalist and avid bird-watcher from Grosse Pointe, had no experience with invasive species before writing the book.

“As a bird guy and president of my local Audubon chapter, I’m clued into the world around me. I’m naturally curious. But when it came to invasive species, it was like Biology 101,” he said.

Introductory course or not, “Lake Invaders” is deeply researched. It relies heavily on Rapai’s interviews with more than 100 experts, including scientists, activists, politicians, educators and anglers.

And his craft as a former journalist and editor proved useful. “I wanted to put a face to this Great Lakes issue,” said Rapai, who’s won awards for his work at the Grand Forks Herald, the Detroit Free Press and the Boston Globe.

“I wanted to feature the people who do the research because humans relate to one another better than we do to a spiny water flea or quagga mussel.”

Rapai spent most of his time in the field observing how science is done so he could use storytelling to “amend the mistrust” he saw in large parts of the non-science community.

“The average person does not need the precision of knowledge that a biologist does,” he said. “They need to know how these invasives interact with other aquatic species and with us.”

“People need to know they actually have an impact.”

An educational resource and fieldwork narrative, the book provides a window to what’s happening beneath the water’s surface. It uses a candid but dramatic tone to heighten the threat and appeal of each invader’s profiles.

From a “fish with a hundred teeth arranged in a terrifying whorl” to a “tiny crustacean with a barbed sword for a tail,” Rapai describes the worst of the worst invaders and the endless mission to control their spread.

The book begins with a familiar anecdote that highlights early industrial prowess — construction of the Erie and Welland canals — and the unintended consequences that result from increased commerce and human migration.

Each of the first seven chapters features a big-impact invader, chronicling its arrival and rise to dominance, control efforts and practical tips to prevent new introductions.

The final chapter highlights behind-the-scenes activism and explains, “Great Lakes states and provinces, and not the federal government, are leading the way on aquatic-invasive-species policy.”

Rapai likens the attempt to stop new introductions to a futile “game of underwater Whac-A-Mole,” but he suggests there is a way for government to appropriately react to new threats.

He recommends that elected officials and managers be given the authority to pool resources across state and national borders. Preventive policies must be coordinated between states and provinces, he said. “It is not a story that ends with this book.”

Rapai said. This is an objective but emotional narrative that stretches across each of the Great Lakes. “Every day there is some new announcement or development concerning Great Lakes invaders,” Rapai said, “and this book is a snapshot of that.”

At the Feb. 1 Charlevoix City Council meeting Supernaw offered to pay the $200 back, but city clerk Joyce Golding wanted clarification on the best route to make the repayment. Golding was informed that stipend deduction would rectify the pay discrepancy, which would need approval from Supernaw. The Charlevoix Courier reached out to Supernaw about when he gave approval for the deduction of $200 from his upcoming quarterly stipend, but he offered no information. "You figure it out," Supernaw said. "You seem to figure everything else out." According to electronic correspondences that were obtained through Michigan's Freedom of Information Act, Golding notified Supernaw on Feb. 3 to speak with the city treasurer about repayment. He responded by saying he would stop by. City treasurer Kelly McGinn then sent out an email on Feb. 11 asking again on the amount Supernaw intended to repay, with no response.

Supernaw did not give the city approval to deduct $200 from his quarterly stipend for another 45 days after being informed by city staff that they required his written approval. In the electronic correspondence dated March 28, McGinn once again reached out to Supernaw requesting information on the repayment.

McGinn writes, "Good Morning Bill, As we get closer to the April 8th pay period, I wanted to follow up with you on this email and our conversation from February."

Supernaw responded by writing, "The amount in question was $200 and I thought it was in the works to deduct that amount from the first quarter check... apparently the newspaper doesn't think so... not to worry, just do it."

City manager Mark Heydlauff said the city required his approval before taking the money from his upcoming stipend.

"We cannot take money from his stipend without his consent," Heydlauff said.

People using the Charlevoix Municipal Airport could end up purchasing parking permits from Island Airways contracts if approved by the city. Contracting the parking fee collection to is a cost savings to the City of Charlevoix and could improve customer service by limiting the number of transactions customers need to make when arriving at the airport.

council will approve this agreement."

Committee member Scott Woody said this plan is what he envisioned between the city and Island Airways when he was airport manager.

"I think this is a great idea," Woody said. "Liz has the plan all spelled out and it works."

Contracting parking fee collection is expected to save the airport approximately $20,000 in labor costs, Myer said.

"It doesn't make much sense to me to use our manpower collecting these fees," Myer said. "Moving parking fees over to Island Airways is the right direction for the airport to take, said council member Shirley Gibson.

"I am firm believer in the city bidding out daily operations at the airport," Gibson said. "As a representative of the city, it is my job to save our taxpayers money."

Discussion also included airport financials where Myer pointed out increases in fees and revenue at the airport, but Heydlauff said those numbers do not include depreciation. "The airport at this time continues to break even at best," Heydlauff said.

Woody congratulated airport staff on their work increasing fees to try and bring in more revenue. Woody also questioned Myer about tracking cash sales at the airport, which brought up his resentment about comments that were made publicly about him last summer.

"What I took issue with was hearing they used the same (point of sale) system I helped install," Woody said. "Liz eluded the city council that I had no ability to track cash at the airport last July, which is untrue."

During the meeting Myer did not recall making that statement about Woody and the airport. Myer informed Woody the issue was about the inability to track parking passes.

"I said parking passes are not being tracked accurately," Myer said.

Woody disagreed and wanted to make it clear to the public that his financials were never in question.

"Money was entered to the point of sale system, which is the same system they use today," Woody said.

Ongoing discussion and research within the Charlevoix Main Street design committee about bringing an ice rink to East Park were put on hold by the Downtown Development Authority/Main Street board on March 28 until a professional firm could look at feasibility and economic impact to the area.

has wide community support and seek funding for a project like an ice rink," Heydlauff said. "Having it listed as a priority for the community is certainly valuable."

If the board does not choose to include the ice rink with the city's parks and recreation master plan other options would be to have Doyle seek information through the Michigan Main Street program in Lansing.

"We definitely have resources we can reach out for recommendation on who to hire and what information to specifically include in our study," Doyle said.

The board has not given up on an ice rink in downtown the plan is to do it correctly, Doyle said.

"The bottom line is to make sure we understand all aspects and explore all options before we move this project forward," Doyle said.

Censorship of student journalism would end under Senate bill

JACQUE WATTS
Capital News Service

LANSING—Students would have full editorial control over student newspapers and other school-sponsored media under a bill before the Senate.

Sen. Rick Jones, R-Grand Ledge, Sen. Tom Casperson, R-Escanaba, Sen. Patrick Colbeck, R-Canton, and Sen. Steve Bieda, D-Warren, sponsored the bill that the Senate's Judiciary Committee recently approved unanimously.

If signed into law, the bill also would protect student media advisors from being fired for encouraging student journalists to write articles that school administrators dislike.

"Victory for freedom of speech," Jones said after the committee vote.

The legislation would reverse the effects of a 1988 U.S. Supreme Court decision allowing administrators to censor school newspapers as long as they had a "reasonable educational justification."

The bill would set a clear standard of what is acceptable, Jeremy Steele, executive director of the Michigan Interscholastic Press Association, told lawmakers. High school and college administrators could prevent articles from being published only if the content is libelous, invades privacy, violates federal or state law, or incites disruption in the school.

"The bill takes a very balanced approach in making sure that school officials still have the authority that they need to protect students' safety and prevent harm from happening to students while also allowing students to learn about the First Amendment in journalism in the hands-on environment of a classroom," Steele said.

Steele testified before the committee, giving examples of censorship that he said violated students' First Amendment rights.

In Marquette, a college newspaper adviser was removed after she encouraged her students to investigate important issues on campus including the university's secret contract with Starbucks, he said.

An advertisement for a pregnancy-counseling center was forbidden from appearing in the school newspaper by a principal in Rochester, he said. And in Ann Arbor, an article about mental health that was rejected by a school administrator from appearing in the student newspaper was later published by the New York Times and broadcast on National Public Radio.

This is no longer a time when young people can be shielded from information by tearing articles out of a newspaper, Frank LoMonte, executive director of the Student Press Law Center, told the committee.

"There are zero teenagers that learn about the existence of drugs or alcohol for the first time by reading it an editorial," LoMonte said. "We know that our young people are being saturated with junk information."

The Student Press Law Center, based in Arlington, Virginia, is a nonprofit organization that aims to protect freedom of the press for student journalists.

It is healthier for those issues to be heard in the "accountable pages of a newspaper rather than the anything-goes realm of Twitter, Yik Yak and Snapchat," LoMonte said.

Chris Robbins, a reporter for the Perspective at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park, told lawmakers that the legislation is important because the entire school district benefits from articles in school newspapers, not just the students.

Robbins once filed a Freedom of Information Act request to find out how his district decided what websites to block on the district's computer network. He was told it would cost $8,800 to get that information.

The experience gave him confidence and knowledge of how the government operates, how to get public information and government responsibilities, he said.

"By taking journalism and being a part of my student newspaper, I've learned to be a part of my community and make a difference in my area," Robbins said.

Katie Rietkerk, a student reporter for The Torch at Plainwell High School, said that journalism has taught her that people deserve to know what's going on and why it happens.

"Journalism is very important in a school setting," Rietkerk said. "It gives the students a taste of the real world. It teaches us important lessons, such as honesty is key or to be observant. And it gives us an outlet to say what is on our minds and not be suppressed by the adults around us."

Some school administrators oppose the bill. Bob Keigen, assistant director for government relations for the Michigan Association of Secondary School Principals, argued that principals have the same rights as newspaper owners, editors and publishers.

"If students want to write without oversight of editors and publishers they have the same freedom they've always had — start their own publication and seek independent funding for it," Keigen said. "In fact, technology affords them more opportunity to do this than ever before. They can start their own blog, create their own website, or publish an e-book at little to no cost."

Other opponents include the Michigan Association of School Administrators and the Michigan Association of State Universities.

"Universities, next to the media, are the greatest facilitators of freedom of speech," said Daniel Hurley, the chief executive officer of the Michigan Association of State Universities. The bill is unnecessary at the university level, he said. His opposition represented a cautious need for more time to vet the bill and understand the language.

Similar laws have recently been passed in Iowa, Massachusetts, Kansas, Arkansas, Colorado, California, Oregon and North Dakota.

More information about the legislation is at NewVoicesMI.com, a website created by the Michigan Interscholastic Press Association and the Student Press Law Center.

The bill now heads to the Senate.

Charlevoix's Putman outworks competition to three-sport stardom

GRACE WHITLITTE
 (231) 439-9380 • gwhitlitt@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Being a three-sport athlete and excelling at each isn't easy, but for Austin Putman, hard work makes it look that way.

Regardless of the sport, Putman, a Charlevoix senior, has found success using a simple technique: hard work.

In his senior campaigns for the football and basketball teams, Putman earned All-Area, All-conference, Dream Team All-Area and honorable mention All-State.

He is now entering his final baseball and athletic season with the Rayders this spring, with possibly even more accolades to come.

As a junior for Charlevoix, Putman was honorable mention All-Area as a catcher and pitcher.

Putman's desire to work hard comes from a competitive place in his heart that developed when he was younger.

"I just like competing," Putman said. "At a young age I always liked winning. I figured that gives me the chance to play every sport, and I might as well take advantage of it because I just love the competitiveness of everything."

Putman's success in each sport came from his ability to push himself, particularly in the weight room, where his coaches praise him for his dedication to preparing for the rigors of each season.

"Austin is a good kid," said

A standout pitcher and infielder for the Rayder baseball team, Austin Putman has found great success playing for the Charlevoix football and basketball teams by outworking those around him.

Charlevoix football coach Ron Bindi. "I would walk around in the weight room all summer long and he was always on time. He always did what I asked him to do. He played the game the right way."

"He lived in the weight room. He was the type of kid that in the weight room, when somebody left a certain amount (of weight on the bar) he would wait until they were done and then throw on some extra weight and lift it just to challenge (his team-

For the 6-foot-2 athlete, playing tight end on the football team, forward on the basketball squad and catcher for the baseball team doesn't allow for much time off.

Despite the success he's earned, the constant grind of transitioning from one sport to the next is something Putman said he sometimes struggled with.

"It's kind of difficult because you always have to be thinking about the next sport," he said. "It almost seems like the season never ends."

"You always have to keep everything in your hands and be focused on everything."

Staying in the moment and not letting it pass him by is what Putman said helped him focus on the current sport while waiting for the next to arrive.

"You just have to focus and know you're in that sport right now and know you have to give it your all with that sport and kind of not focus on the other (sport)," Putman said. "Otherwise you get tangled in both and you end up not doing as well as you would like to do in the other (sport)."

Charlevoix boys basketball coach Brett Erskine said he noticed from Putman's sophomore year that his work ethic would lead him to success.

"We brought him up as a sophomore and he was feeling his way through," Erskine said. "At about the sixth game of the season, he decided he was just as good as anyone else on the team and he was going to show them. He just always played really hard."

"He always had a passion to get better. You get some of those special kids in your program and he was one of those special kids I had for the last three years. He always played as hard as he could."

When the basketball season began, Erskine said thanks to football, he could tell Putman was more prepared for his final year on the hardwood because of the work he had put in while in the weight room.

"He just came in in a lot better shape," Erskine said. "Coach Bindi had the boys in the weight room a lot and Austin thrives in the weight room. He could pretty much outwork anybody I had lifting weights. He was a lot stronger this year."

Erskine said with the amount of athletes playing multiple sports on the decline, it is refreshing seeing athletes like Putman.

"It takes a special athlete to play three sports anymore," Erskine said. "You don't see a lot of three-sport athletes and he's one of them in Charlevoix that comes from a great family upbringing and just wanting to work hard."

Putman said seeing his parents in the stands also motivated him to be better in everything that he does.

"Having their support means everything," he said. "Whether I do bad or good they're always there to support me, so it's a lot easier after a loss of anything when I go home they're always encouraging me to do the best that I can. I just try to make them proud."

Although his run as a Rayder will come to an end after this baseball season, Putman hopes his legacy will encourage younger kids to continue on the tradition of Charlevoix athletics.

"I think it's cool to have (little kids) look up to me," Putman said. "Hopefully they can carry on the tradition (one day) and it passes down the line."

Winding up

Charlevoix pitchers Hunter Cox (4) and Skyler Herriman helped the Rayder baseball and softball teams get the season started early on Tuesday, as both squads traveled to East Jordan to scrimmage the Red Devils. Unseasonably warm weather allowed Charlevoix to get action in ahead of their season openers on Apr. 12 against visiting Mancelona.

Scoring big honors

The Charlevoix Courier and the whole Northern Michigan Review family of newspapers salute the area's best in girls basketball, including Charlevoix's Hannah Zipp (40), with our 2015-16 All-Area and Dream Teams. See who made the cut on pages B2 and B3.

CORRECTION

In the March 25th edition of the Charlevoix Courier, we neglected to mention wrestlers Tyler McCallum and Mick Hinkie, who earned honorable mention all-state at the Division 4 state finals along with Cam Alden in our story on Rayder athletes earning postseason honors. The Courier regrets the error.

Shooting for D.C.

Ellsworth staff and the sophomore and junior classes combined to raise more than $3300 dollars for the school's upcoming Washington D.C. trip through a fundraiser basketball game played on March 22. The game, won by the staff, 44-37, also included a silent auction with items donated by several local businesses and individuals. "It was a really fun night, and a great way for the community to come together to raise money for a worthy school cause," said ECS superintendent, Aaron Gaffney. "We would like to thank all those who came out in support and donated throughout the evening, as well as all the individuals and businesses who donated to the silent auction."

Mackinaw City's Chelsey Closs works her way to Player of the Year

GREG WICKLIFFE

(231) 439-9380 - gwickliffe@petoskeynews.com

On Thursday, March 24, Mackinaw City girls basketball coach Adam Stefanski called his star player Chelsey Closs to relay a message she never expected to be coming.

Stefanski's called Closs to inform her she had just been named the News-Review Girls Basketball Player of the Year for the 2015-16 season.

Closs, who had also been named to the Associated Press' Class D All-State First Team for the second consecutive year, said the Player of the Year honor came as a shock to her.

"I was very surprised to hear the news, I'm very grateful that's for sure," she said. "It's a gratifying accomplishment to have achieved after all I've been through the entire year."

"There are a lot of teams and a lot of (good) players in the area, so to be named the Player of the Year, I'm honored to be awarded this achievement."

Closs averaged 19 points, 12.3 rebounds and four steals during her senior season, which ended with a district title and a Northern Lakes Conference regular season championship.

"It really shows that my hard work has paid off and it's such a surprise," Closs said. "When I started playing) I never had a thought that I would have gotten all of these honors and awards, and it's a blessing honestly."

Despite Closs' amazement of receiving the honor, Stefanski was not astonished by the news considering Closs' value to the Comets during her career.

"She's meant so much to our program over the years," Stefanski said. "She brought right in right from the time she was in junior-high, and she's helped bring up the level of play of her teammates. It helped keep our program consistent and she's definitely been a big part of the foundation."

For Closs, playing basketball runs in the family. Her father Lynn, coached boys basketball for years and her brothers Trevor and Chase played basketball and helped mold her into the player she is today.

"(Basketball) is something that's been a huge part of my family," Closs said. "I spent a lot of time in the gym growing up and it was just a way to bond with the family."

"My dad has always been giving me advice throughout the years after games and he's been supportive through it all. My brothers have taken me out to the gym and worked with me and taught me how to shoot a basketball. They pretty much taught me everything that I know."

Lynn said seeing his daughter receive the Player of the Year award is a gratifying moment for he and his wife, Debby.

"We're pretty proud of her," he said. "Her whole career has been kind of up and down with injuries, but she's a hard worker, and she bounced right back."

Closs became increasingly interested in basketball back in the sixth grade as she watched her two older brothers play.

Seeing his daughter evolve into one of the better players in northern Michigan wasn't on Lynn's mind when Closs first began her journey, though.

"I knew she had some pretty good games," Lynn said. "I had never been around girls basketball, and I just didn't know what to expect with her. We found out real early though. She worked real hard at it, so we figured something good would happen."

"I always told her what she puts into the game is what she's going to get out of the game. If she works hard, she'll be rewarded."

With her run at Mackinaw City over, Closs said she hopes the foundation Stefanski, herself and her teammates laid will provide the blueprint for success for the next group of Comets.

Four area players, if any, put in more work to their basketball craft than Mackinaw City's Chelsey Closs over the years and it paid off in All-State and Player of the Year honors.

"For years, Mackinaw City's program hadn't been that good," Closs said. "Ever since coach Stefanski came, he's really turned the program around and basketball has been something that's emphasized."

"It's nice to keep the legacy going. I hope the younger players can keep the ball rolling for years to come and I think our team has come a long way."

Closs plans to attend

Grand Valley State University in the fall, but doesn't intend to play basketball. Instead she'll hold on to the memories of playing at Mackinaw City, ones that will always highlight her life.

"I'll definitely miss the times I've had with the team and the bonds I've made with those girls and my coach," she said. "And being able to put on a (Mackinaw City) jersey and play for the community and just all the relationships I've made through basketball."

Despite his daughter leaving the Mackinaw City team, Lynn said the experience of watching Closs grow has been rewarding for he and his family.

"We're going to miss everything," he said. "We have so many great memories. We hate to see it come to an end, but it's been a great ride for us. Now we're just moving to another chapter."

Scoring nearly 13 points a game for the Cardinals this season, Kelsey Chorwinski helped JoBurg to a 15-1 Ski Valley Conference finish.

Though she battled through an injury, Gaylord's Brandi Wagner returned to help the Blue Devils to a district final for a second straight year.

Work crews from MDC Contracting prepare water main connections at the intersection of Wood and State streets. The construction is part of the $2.75 million planned infrastructure upgrades project in Charlevoix.

Phase one of Infrastructure improvements begin in Charlevoix

LONNIE ALLEN
 (231) 547-6558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — State Street will be closed between Garfield Avenue and Carpenter Street while crews install water main and sanitary sewer connections for Wood and Green streets and St. Mary's Drive.

The detour will run from Grant Street to Carpenter Street. From there drivers will be able to re-connect to State Street, south of Carpenter Street and north of Garfield Avenue.

The closure is part of the city's $2.75 million infrastructure project that was awarded to MDC Contracting LLC, of Charlevoix, in March. The company began the first phase of work on Wood Street by closing the street to traffic at the end of March. Detours also went up on Monday for State Street as crews began to prepare new connections for the infrastructure improvements.

"The closure makes it easier for the crews to get the work done without worrying about

Main Street/DDA board to replace tree lights

LONNIE ALLEN
 (231) 547-6558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The tree lights in downtown Charlevoix got a surge of support from the Main Street/Downtown Development Authority Board and the city last week.

The board decided to fund the replacement of the downtown LED lights in the trees along Bridge Street along with the trimming and pruning of the trees after a request came in, from downtown business owners to keep the lights on. Downtown business owner and Main Street committee member Jodi Bingham brought the tree lighting subject to the board's regular meeting on March 28.

Bingham asked the board to fund the tree lights and make them part of the yearly budget because the lights have an impact on the downtown.

"There is a value in the lights to downtown Charlevoix," Bingham said. "If you see the value in it, you have got to invest in it."

LONNIE ALLEN/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

The tree lights in downtown Charlevoix will be replaced after the trees are trimmed and pruned before the summer season begins. The trees lights will be replaced with newer LED lights.

The tree lights will be removed and replaced after the board determined it was worth the investment. It is expected to cost approximately $35,000 for the board to trim the trees and remove and replace the lights on Bridge Street.

"We ultimately approved the funding based on staff recommendation of the availability of funds," said Dan Barron, board chair. "This was a pivotal decision to maintain the tree light-

Snowy weather postpones Charlevoix bridge cleaning

CHARLEVOIX — The proposed maintenance of the bascule bridge in Charlevoix was postponed this week because of the recent snowy weather.

The Michigan Department of Transportation had originally planned to do routine cleaning work on the decks on three of its bascule bridges in Northern Michigan this week.

"Typically we perform the routine cleaning of all the bascule bridges this time of year," said James Lake, Michigan

Gibson files petition to run for mayor

CHARLEVOIX — Right about now, as the nation is in the midst of the 2016 election season, there are some Charlevoix politicians quietly whispering in backrooms about their intentions to run for mayor.

But not Shirley Gibson.

While other likely candidates are still giving it consideration, talking with their families and otherwise waiting in the wings, Gibson, who was reelected to her city council seat this past November, has made her intentions known.

Gibson

The third ward representative is running for Charlevoix mayor in 2016. The only candidate officially in the race, she's already making her rounds in the city gearing up her support.

"The citizens I have spoke are very positive about my candidacy for mayor," Gibson said.

The 68-year-old Charlevoix resident is a retired Petoskey News-Review classified advertising manager. She has served on city council from 2001 to 2007 and then again serving on council from 2013 to present. Before being elected to city council Gibson gained experience serving on the Charlevoix City Planning Commission for six years from 1994 through 2000. It is

Man sentenced for second E-Z Mart robbery

CHARLEVOIX — A Charlevoix man who robbed the same store twice in less than two years was recently sentenced to prison for the second of the two robberies.

On Friday, Charlevoix County Circuit Court

Judge Roy C. Hayes III sentenced Dennis Robert McKee, 21, to serve 36-120 months in prison on a conviction by plea to larceny from a person. McKee admitted robbing the Charlevoix powered revolver. McKee and a co-defendant both pleaded guilty earlier to robbing the same store on March 26, 2013. In August, McKee was also sentenced to 36 to 120 months in connection with the earlier robbery.

On the most recent sentence, McKee received credit for 166 days already served, his sentence beginning at the time of his arrest on the second charge. The two sentences will be served concurrently, meaning that he will earn

That was then in the Charlevoix Courier State, county, city election results

COMPILED BY LORNE ALLEN

Editors Note: The year is 1931 and the name of the newspaper is the Charlevoix Courier. "That was then" is a weekly feature by the Charlevoix Courier that will take news headlines from the front page of a past Charlevoix Courier to share with today's readers. To read full articles visit charlevoixlibrary.org/charlevoix-history and click on the yearbooks and newspapers tab.

Charlevoix voters went to the polls in April of 1931 to vote on a state referendum and to elect city officials, all of who ran unopposed. The major issue on the ballot was a state referendum on capital punishment, which was not approved by the voters of Michigan according to the article. CAPITAL PUNISHMENT VOTED DOWN and Record Vote was Cast in the County were two of the headlines associated with this article on April 8, 1931. "Charlevoix city and county, as well as Michigan voters, turned thumbs down on capital punishment, major issue of the biennial spring election held on Monday," according to the article. "Charlevoix County voters rejected the issue by a vote of 1439 to 877, while the Associated Press reports from downstate indicate the measure would lose by 90,000 votes in Michigan." The large majority also voted down an amendment authorizing the state to approve landing fields along with another authorizing the state to borrow money and issue bonds for the purpose of refunding outstanding indebtedness. "Adoption of the landing field issue would have been a boon to aviation development in the northern counties and would have aided this region materially if adopted," the Courier reported. The landing field amendment lost 1665 to 1043, while the "borrowing from Peter to pay Paul" amendment lost to a 1612 to 1010 vote. Incumbent county school commissioner William C. Palmer defeated Archie C. Belding for school commissioner position. The vote from 24 out of 25 precincts was Palmer 2361, and Belding 904. Mr. Belding carried the city of Charlevoix by a small majority; other precincts went to the present office holder. City politics were quiet for the near record spring vote being brought out by state and county issues. There was no opposition for city offices and candidates nominated at the primary will handle city affairs for the coming year, the Courier reports. Mayor Arthur Bergeon was elected for his tenth term in office. Ray S. Hamilton was elected to clerk; Robert E Rife was elected treasurer; H. R. Fowler was elected Justice of Peace; and William H. Wallace was elected to serve as Park Commissioner.

SEAN MILLER

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Circle of Arts will soon open its new exhibit, "In Celebration of Native People."

The theme for this new exhibit is a blend of first peoples from all around the world. Todd Warner, the exhibit's chairperson, along with a committee, has curated a collection of native artifacts from countries and cultures in Africa, Central America, South America, New Guinea and more.

"People from our committee are extensive travelers who have picked stuff up from around the world," Warner said. "I have stuff as well that are Native American and from different tribes in South America and Australia."

The central point of the exhibit will be focused on local Native American tribes. The exhibition will show the artistry of native craft and how it can blend with other traditions to define cultures around the world.

"The central piece of the exhibit will be of our local tribes," Warner said. "I love seeing the strength of our indigenous

Council approves roofing contract for Chamber

LONGIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix City Council unanimously approved a contract with South Arm Construction at its regular meeting April 4. The approved contract will allow contractors to replace the roof at the Chamber of Commerce building next to City Hall. The improvement will eliminate water leaks at the facility, according to city officials.

Based Jordan-based South Arm Construction was the not the lowest bidder at $26,220, but the company was the bidder to follow the bid specifications for the roof project, according to city manager Mark Heydlauff.

"It was determined in bid review that Bob's Roofing did not accomplish the task set out in bid process," Heydlauff said. "They were less expensive, but they did not include permits. The company also indicated price of roofing materials could change and did not accommodate for the chimney removal."

Bob's Roofing, of Whitehall, bid $11,920 for the project.

City council members further questioned Heydlauff about Bob's Roofing possibly adjusting the bid for an increased price to meet the bid terms.

"We reached out to them to clarify the bid, but got no response," Heydlauff said. "Quite frankly if you don't get it right when you submit the bid it is not a good sign going forward."

The chimney is one of the main reasons the roof needs repair, Heydlauff said. It is located on the back of the building at 109 Mason St., which the city leases to the Chamber of Commerce and is the source of leaks going into the back of the building.

"The roof is old and needs to be replaced," Heydlauff said. "But the chimney needs to be removed. It is the cause of many issues for our tenants in that building."

The project is slated to begin this spring and the city anticipates it to be completed by Memorial Day.

Charlevoix County purchases new building

BEAVER ISLAND — An old lumber yard on Beaver Island will have a new occupant: Charlevoix County.

The county's board of commissioners approved a motion Wednesday to purchase the building for about $305,000.

Money for the building purchase will come from a capital improvement fund.

The building will provide enough space to house equipment for the Charlevoix County Road Commission, sheriff's office and transit, said Joel Evans, chairman of the board.

"It will also be important to build a couple of holding cells. By buying this building will be able to help house all three of those (transit, sheriff's department and road commission)," he said.

Shepard said the building is located at 26466 Donegal Bay Road, and the building is about 6,800 square feet.

Charlevoix County Administrator Kevin Shepard said the hope is to have all the entities moved over in the spring.

He said the great thing about the property is there are few modifications to make.

Safe Home Coordinator recognizes Volunteer Appreciation Week

Editor:

Every day we are thankful for the important contributions of Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan volunteers. Volunteer Appreciation Week, April 10-16, provides us with an opportunity to recognize their valuable work.

Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan was founded by individuals willing to give of their time and skills to make our community a better place. Through the support of volunteers, the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan is able to provide life-changing services to thousands of northern Michigan residents each year.

The positive impact of Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan volunteers can be seen in many areas of the organization:

— Volunteers help keep the Gold Mine Reel Ships running smoothly by assisting with store operations and helping customers. Store proceeds support critical Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan programs such as counseling and domestic abuse services.

— Volunteers assist with creative activities for children staying at the Safe Home while their moms attend domestic abuse support group meetings.

— Trained individuals help answer the Domestic/Sexual Abuse Program's 24-hour crisis and information line; 965 calls were handled last year.

— Members of the Board of Directors help steer the organization toward a sustainable future through sound, ethical and legal governance and financial management policies.

— Violence Prevention Team members assist in an advisory capacity to assure widespread adoption of proven prevention programs in our community.

Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan supporters also serve on various committees and help with essential fundraisers. Friendship Center Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) participants provide assistance with mailings. Volunteers even provide gardening at our offices and light building maintenance.

Thank you to each of these dedicated, inspirational and caring team members. Your gift of time and effort shows strong community support to those seeking Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan services on their journey to a more positive future.

Opinion lacks facts

Editor:

I have known Bill Supernaw for 65 years and our families have been close friends for longer than that. I was shocked and dismayed to read your opinion piece of March 25, 2016 in the Charlevoix Courier about Bill. I believe that even editorials should be informed by the facts. Your column was an evidentiary travesty and an ill-advised attempt at character assassination.

First of all, Mr. Supernaw's error in charging $200 for meetings that he had not been officially assigned to attend is hardly evidence of bad character or an attempt to steal from the city. It is however evidence of confusion over the official policy regarding meeting reimbursement, as the Charlevoix City Council itself noted in a public meeting when this issue came up. It was discussed with Mr. Supernaw at the same meeting. Officials also decided with Mr. Supernaw that he would pay back the money out of his upcoming quarterly stipend. City officials have acknowledged that there is no reimbursement policy in writing and they are working on a document to spell that out. According to the city clerk, there is also no pre-submission review in place to ascertain that payroll requests by council members are not asking for reimbursements to which they are not entitled.

Secondly, and most egregiously, you claim that 40 years ago Mr. Supernaw attempted to cover up a charge of what you also say was indecent exposure. You reason that there is a link between that event and the mistaken reimbursement this year, that both are an indication of Mr. Supernaw's bad character, and most importantly the two events demonstrate why he should not be trusted today with the city's business. However did you make that leap? Did you speak with Mr. Supernaw about any of this? What are your sources? Do you understand that between that long-ago event and today, Bill has gone through nothing less than a personal resurrection? He got sober and he has helped countless others as well. If you want to write about character analysis, I do not know how you could possibly skip that part of the story. I watched the inspiring efforts Bill put into his recovery, and I am proud to know him. I am sorry for you that you do not.

Leslie Cunningham,

Editors note: The Compensation Commission does have a document in place that states: council members shall be paid a per diem for "required attendance" at city business meetings in addition to regular council duties. Mayor Gabe Campbell also directed staff that there should be no further clarification to the current compensation policy because it was determined to be clearly stated. The city also requested Supernaw to give a form of approval to make the deduction from his upcoming quarterly stipend, but his approval did not come until the checks were about to be processed some 45 days later. The language "gross indecency" was taken from the Dec. 29, 1976, issue of the Charlevoix Courier.

Veterans Appreciation Day invitation issued

To all area schools: This is to inform you that our post is planning the annual Veterans Appreciation Day, Wednesday May 11, 2016, and an open house, which will include a display of military uniforms, rifles, equipment, pictures, maps and much more; will be explained and demonstrated by our members to the guests through a hands on learning experience. We are expecting to have several more military vehicles on display, as an added interest this year, as well as representatives from all levels of law enforcement and all branches of the military who will answer any questions. Since the inception of this program in 1999, more than 10,000 students have taken advantage of this opportunity to learn the truth about the freedoms we all enjoy, the fact that freedom isn't free, the price of that freedom and who paid that price for us all. As the students leave the Post, each receives a flag from the grave of a veteran who paid that price. The American Legion Auxiliary will provide refreshments and scheduling will be handled by the Veterans Appreciation Day Chairman who may be contacted by phone or email at ejpe@netzero.com

We encourage all schools to participate in this unique experience that your students and faculty will never forget.

Resident thankful for local theater

Editor:

The students and staff of Ellsworth Community School would like to thank Mary Kurtz and all of employees of Charlevoix Cinema for their outstanding hospitality in opening their theater to us for a movie night fundraiser on March 29. They were extremely gracious and accommodating to our school in helping us to raise funds for our 2016/17 junior-senior government trip to Washington, D.C.

As a resident of Charlevoix, I am very thankful that we still have a community movie theater. Mary and the owners provide a clean, affordable venue that is an integral part of the community. Thank you.

LOOKING BACK...

When the Medusa Cement Company started building their newest plant on South Point in the mid 1960s, it announced that it would construct a 1,400-foot conveyor loading dock out into Lake Michigan. A wide public outcry about this intrusion into the waterscape followed. The noise was loud and effective enough to make Medusa alter its plans and place the loading dock next to the storage silos so that the cement could be downloaded directly into lake freighter hulls through huge nozzles on retractable arms placed on the silos. But the rectangular closed channel inlet beside the silos had to be protected somehow from the predominantly west/northwest fury of Lake Michigan. The solution came with the idea of installing a breakwater made from the scoured-out hulls of two decommissioned lake freighters, the Charles Hebard and the Amasa Stone. Each hull was towed into place by tug, aligned end to end, then filled with tons of rock and rubble until they settled on the lake bottom. On a clear day, the rusty brownish line of this freighter/breakwater can just be seen above the waterline from Lake Michigan Beach.

Community pool prepares for annual triathlon race, training camp

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Area Community Pool is gearing up for its fourth annual ITri Kids Triathlon Race and Training Camp. The main event will take place on June 11, and is a triathlon for youth in grades preschool-12. The ITri includes four different swim-bike-run course designs to match any skill level. While the swimming portion takes place in the professionally guarded pool, the bike and run portions are located on the bike path adjacent to the pool. "Last year we had around 30 volunteers to ensure the safety of our participants along the course," said Peggy DeNio, pool facility manager.

This pool program was developed to educate area youth about the sport, and the ITri has become known as a fun, physical challenge for youth of all ages and abilities. Every participant receives a shirt, swim cap, wrist band and medal.

New to this year is the Green Course, which allows children as young as 3-years-old to compete in the event with a parent in the pool. Race courses are as follows:

- Green Course: swim one length with an adult, bike one-half mile, run 200 yards
- Blue Course: swim three lengths, bike one mile, run one-half mile
- Yellow Course: swim six lengths, bike three and one-half miles, run one and one-quarter miles
- Red Course: swim 16 lengths, bike five and one-half miles, run two miles

These smiling youngsters are able to attend preschool thanks to a donation by the Consumers Energy Foundation.

Consumers Energy Foundation awards $20,000 to Great Start Collaborative

The Consumers Energy Foundation recently presented a $20,000 grant to the Great Start Collaborative to help fund preschool scholarships. The generous donation demonstrates the foundation's commitment to early childhood education in Northern Michigan and across the state.

The Great Start Preschool Scholarship Fund fills the preschool funding gap in Charlevoix and Emmet counties from the federal and state government. Upon capacity of government-funded preschool programs, the fund provides preschool tuition to eligible families with 3- to 5-year-old children.

"We at Consumers Energy and our foundation provided over $500,000 to support early-childhood education across Michigan last year," said Carolyn Bloodworth, the foundation's secretary/treasurer. "By providing educational opportunities to young children today, we set the stage for them to become more successful adults."

Scholarships are awarded for assistance up to 100 percent for an enrollment term of preschool to a high-quality early care program. Preschool partners are selected based on their participation and rating within the state's Quality Rating and Improvement System.

"The fund maintains the highest local standards of both eligibility and high-quality care," said Maureen Hollocker, Great Start Collaborative Director. "Through partnerships with Charlevoix-Emmet Joint Preschool Recruitment/Enrollment and Great Start to Quality Northwest Resource Center, we can assure we are providing the children/families of highest need with the highest quality care and education."

The Great Start Preschool

Scholarship Fund was created in 2011 and to date has awarded more than 160 preschool scholarships.

"The Consumers Energy Foundation has been a funding partner in this mission since we began in 2011," Hollocker said. "Our community benefits greatly from their continued support and we have already put their funds to good use as you can see from the smiling faces of young children now able to attend preschool."

'Inside Out' tea party

The Charlevoix Public Library will hosts its annual Youth Tea Party, from 1-3 p.m., on Sunday, April 17. Girls and boys, ages 4-12 are invited to come with a parent or guardian and dress up like their favorite emotion and experience relating to the movie "Inside Out." The feature film "Inside Out" tells the story of growing up on a bumpy road, and it's no exception for Riley, who is uprooted from her Midwest life when her father starts a new job in San Francisco. Like all of us, Riley is guided by her emotions. The library will have the usual fare for a tea party: tea, sweets and little tea sandwiches, entertainment and crafts to make and take home.

The Tea Party will take place in the library's community room. It is free and open to all. Space is limited and pre-registration is required, call (231) 237-7350 before April 13. The event is sponsored by the Charlevoix Public Library and the Charlevoix Zonta Club.

Walleye, northern pike population study in Walloon Lake

The Department of Natural Resources and the Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa Indians, with assistance from the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians and the Little River Band of Ottawa Indians, have begun a tag-and-recapture study on the walleye population in Walloon Lake in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

The study is divided into two portions: a spring mark-and-recapture survey targeted at walleye and northern pike and a summer lake-wide netting survey looking at the entire fish community of this popular Northern Michigan inland lake.

Two different fish capture methods are being used during the spring. One portion of the assessment. Trap nets are fished throughout each day, and during the night, electrofishing is being conducted by multiple boat crews. Anglers and residents will likely see trap nets marked with floats throughout the near-shore areas of the lake and are advised to be cautious when boating around these nets. Electrofishing boats out at night are identifiable by the extensive lighting systems on the boats used to identify fish in the dark. The survey began the week of March 28.

The mark-and-recapture study will consist of clipping a specific fin on each walleye to determine movement and seasonal distribution of the species in Walloon Lake. This fin-clip is used to gather age information from each fish, as well as mark the fish so it is identifiable later in the survey when recapture runs are made. The primary objective for this phase of the survey is to collect and mark as many adult walleye as possible in order to estimate their abundance in the lake.

For more information on walleye in Michigan, visit michigan.gov/fishing.

Controlled burn benefits community

EAST JORDAN - The East Jordan Fire Department along with personnel from Charlevoix Township, Banks Township, Otsego Township and the City of Charlevoix fire departments participated in a training burn on March 20, at 102 John St., East Jordan. Several training sessions had taken place before the burn on Sunday and several were conducted the day of the burn at the two-story house to further hone the skills of these firefighters. Emergency Medical Service also was on stand by and took vital checks after the training sessions on each firefighter before they could be part of another session.

The house, owned by Crossroads Ecumenical Resale Shop, was burned to make way for additional parking for customers and staff. A roadway connecting Jordan Street and John Street will allow for easier drop off of donations and picking up of larger purchased items once the 4,500 square foot addition is completed. Cleanup of the site and construction of the parking area will be done by Wayne Bartlett Excavating as soon as possible.

Littleman Blies Food Truck, owner Crescent Gardner, of East Jordan was on the property to provide food and drinks for the firefighters.

The addition will allow room for furniture and storage, currently housed off site, to be under one roof. It also will provide more room for Care and Share Food Pantry, as well as an area to help those in need of financial assistance. For more information, call (231) 536-7606.

Those first signs of spring can reveal exotic invasive shrubs

GEORGINA PETERSON
Michigan State University Extension

The days are finally on a warming trend, and the last piles of snow are melting away. Red twig and red osier dogwoods are blushing, and willow tops are showing yellow-gold. Now that the backyard lawns and winter wheat fields are greening up, we can also see a faint green tinge along many forest edges and roadways. But not all green is good. Some of the earliest shrubby bud-breakers are exotic invasive plants that need to be removed.

One particular set of exotic shrubs can easily be spied at this time of year along these forest edges. They are often referred to as Eurasian or bush honeysuckles. More specifically, there are multiple honeysuckle species that are included in this invasive threat: Amur (L. maackii), Tatarian (L. tatarica), Morrow's (L. morrowii), and Bell's (L. xbelia, a hybrid of Tatarian and Morrow's). Regardless of the species, they all have several features in common:

- Woody, shrubby growth habit, generally growing between six and 14 feet in height
- Leaves oppositely arranged on branches
- Abundant red or orange paired berries along the stem
- Small, fragrant pink or white (or occasionally red) flowers that bloom May-June
- Moderately tolerant of shade

All of these honeysuckles are especially successful in dominating natural areas because of their ability to leaf out extremely early in the spring and remain green well into the fall. This means they have a leg up in these settings, especially shading and out-competing native plants. These honeysuckles can eventually form dense thickets where little else can grow, including tree regeneration.

These bushy pests got their foothold in North America when they were widely sold as an ornamental and advertised as good sources of wildlife food. The berries tend to persist into the fall when birds most often take advantage of them. Unfortunately, some studies suggest these berries are not as nutritious as native berries for birds.

Although they may be easy to spy in the spring, these exotic honeysuckles are not easy to get rid of. They are shallow-rooted, and young growth can easily be pulled in spring's damp soil. Any remaining roots in the ground, however, will re-sprout easily. The same goes if the stems are clipped—sprouting is vigorous. Herbicide applications, especially after cutting stems, are usually needed to keep it from growing back. Note, always read and follow label directions, and obtain necessary permits or permissions if necessary, when applying chemical herbicides.

to be thinking about the best options for replacing these invaders once they've been removed. Nature abhors a vacuum, after all. Planning ahead by selecting native shrubs to replace these sudden open spaces will help keep future unwanted plants from taking over. Additionally, these native shrubs can offer multiple food and cover benefits for forest-dwelling wildlife, including songbirds. A small sample of recommended replacement native shrub species includes:

- Hawthorn (Crataegus spp.): There are many varieties of hawthorn, which can range from tall shrubs to small trees in form. They tolerate shade and a variety of soil types, but prefer more alkaline soil.

- American elderberry (Sambucus canadensis): Prefers partial sun and a slightly higher moisture content.

- Juneberry/Downy serviceberry (Amelanch-ler arborea): Actually a small tree. Will grow in both shady and sunny conditions across a range of soil types.

- Gray dogwood (Cornus racemosa): Tolerates a wide range of moisture, soil and sunlight exposures.

- Red-osier dogwood (Cornus sericea): Also can grow with some shade, but prefers wetter soils.

- Highbush cranberry (Viburnum opulus var. americanum): As with the dogwoods, this large bush can grow in part shade, but prefers wetter soils.

Unfortunately, most of these shrubs are also highly attractive to deer. Be sure to protect new plantings from hungry mouths using fencing or repellents. For help on choosing and planting shrubs to replace those pesky exotic invasive plant species, call Michigan State University Extension's Master Gardener hotline at (888) 678-3464.

Business profile: Ga Ga for Kids

ANNE KELLY

Special to Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — If owner Jodi Bingham is any indication of what this upscale children's boutique has to offer, customers will not be disappointed. Bingham's eye for fashion, color and design is apparent, not only in her personal sense of style but in the window displays which preview a shop stocked with carefully chosen, kid-friendly merchandise.

Bingham, who earned a Bachelor of Fine Arts and Photography from Northern Michigan University, gained her retail experience from managing a J. Phillips' store in Vale, Colo.

"I learned a lot from Rod and Judy Phillips, owners of the J. Phillips' stores (in Petoskey and Charlevoix)," she said. "Everything fell into place for me. I had worked in Vale for five years when Rod and Judy decided to close the Vale store, the condo I was renting was sold, and I had already decided to move back to Charlevoix to be close to my family."

The actual children's store idea came from a desire to own her own store and the suggestion and encouragement offered by her parents, Jay and Linda Bingham, of Charlevoix, and Jacq and Kirby Dipert, who own the Clothing Company and Charlevoix Wear stores just down from her store on Bridge Street.

"They told me that Charlevoix needed a kid's store downtown," Bingham said.

Apparently it did, because Ga Ga for Kids which opened in 2007 is still going strong. The actual building, formerly "Details," occupies a prime location at 323 Bridge St.

"I made the quantum leap from women's clothing to children's clothing and accessories when I decided to open a children's store," she said. "We carry everything from layette items to infants' and toddlers' apparel to boys and girls sizes 3 months to 12 years, with an occasional 14. My mom and dad, and an interior designing aunt were very helpful with support and ideas as I set up shop."

Bingham's merchandise inventory is acquired through buying trips to kids' markets in Los Angeles each October, January and March. Toys and accessories are discovered at additional shows in Las Vegas and New York.

"I personally touch and see everything before I put it in the store," she said. "We carry traditional brands like Melissa and Doug, and some European lines. One of the newest additions to our toy inventory are eco-friendly magnetic building blocks

Bingham is involved in the Charlevoix community. Bingham served on the steering committee of that project and is active in the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. She also feels that it is important to maintain stores that stay open all year long.

"For me, it's all about planning and budgeting," she

At Ga Ga, doting parents, grandparents and friends will be delighted with the store's selection of clothing, accessories, kid-gear, and play- and-learn toys, and gifts. Advice on appropriate choices for the young recipient or expectant parent along with cheerfully patterned gift wrap provided by Bingham and her associates as the customer waits, are an additional convenience. All orders ship UPS and there is free shipping for orders over $300. Bingham wants people to know that they need not be intimidated by the high price point of some of Ga Ga's merchandise.

"There is something for everyone," she said. "Customers can put together a gift by choosing any number of small items or grouping them for as little as $15. It will be special, and beautifully wrapped."

Business Expo and Taste of Charlevoix draws large crowd

We had an amazing turn out for our 6th Annual Business Expo and Taste of Charlevoix, Wednesday, March 16 at Castle Farms. Our annual Expo is one of the largest business and public trade show events in Charlevoix County. We welcomed more than 550 people in a three-hour period to network, exchange business leads and sample food from some of our amazing local restaurants. We sold out the event with more than 70 exhibitors set up throughout the lower level of the Castle sharing their latest products and services to help you save time and money.

The Business Expo was open to the public from 4-7 p.m. During this time participants and attendees had the opportunity to network, build new business relationships, and learn from vendors that provide unique products and services to help grow their business. The networking and business to business opportunities were invaluable and the vendors worked feverishly over the three hour period to make the Expo a success. I would like to thank our member businesses for your time and dedication to this event and congratulate Creative Cupcake who, for the second year in a row, wowed the attendees with their display of sweets for the award of "Best in

The public voted and we had a tie for "Best in Taste" which was awarded to Harwood Gold and Creative Cupcake. We were overwhelmed with the volume of votes this year, it was very competitive with single votes separating the top five.

Michigan National Guard celebrates earth awareness and sustainability efforts

LANSING — From solar arrays and wind harnessing technology to protection of the environment and critical infrastructure, the Michigan National Guard family is a partner in promoting environmental awareness and security as Earth Day 2016 approaches.

"I recently saw a compiled list of earth-smart projects the Michigan National Guard had been a part of in the past few years and was overcome with a profound feeling of pride," said Maj. Gen. Gregory Vadnais, adjutant general of the Michigan National Guard and director of the Michigan Department of Military and Veteran Affairs. "Michiganders are blessed with beautiful lakes, sand dunes, and forests. Protecting our natural resources is in our DNA. It is the forward-thinking of our environmental, engineering, and installation teams in Selfridge, Grayling, Alpena and Battle Creek that really makes me proud resulting in recognition by the National Guard Bureau for a first place Environmental Security Award for Sustainability this past year."

Since 2009, the Michigan National Guard public affairs office has published more than 15 environment-related feature stories and has assisted with the recording of many others by connecting Guard subject matter experts with media representatives and community groups nationwide. The Battle Creek cyber security range, climate

The Michigan National Guard is a dynamic organization comprised of men and women committed to defending and protecting the citizens of the State of Michigan and the American public, both domestically and abroad. The ability to accomplish that mission is enhanced through sustainable actions including ensuring adequate personnel strength, training proficiency, equipment serviceability, and conservation of training lands and other environmental assets. The Michigan National Guard is committed to environmental stewardship in a variety of ways, at all facilities and training areas. A sustainable training environment, maintained by prudent resource stewardship, is critical to the continued utilization of these resources.

"This is a special Earth Day for the Michigan National Guard," Vadnais said. "Based upon what we've already accomplished and the plans that we are currently executing clearly makes the Michigan National Guard a leader throughout the Department of Defense."

Book explores famous and forgotten authors of Michigan

LANSING — One was named Hemingway. The others weren't.

A few are still widely remembered. Most aren't. They hailed from Grand Rapids and Detroit. They hailed from Mackinaw City and Ludington. They hailed from Traverse City and Mecosta. They hailed from Adrian and De Tour and East Lansing and more spots in the state. They crafted poetry. They authored novels. They wrote history. They filled countless pages of magazines and newspapers. Together, they were 18 Michigan writers who shaped American literature, culture and entertainment in the 1800s and 1900s.

Their life stories appear in the newly released "Ink Trails II: Michigan's Famous and Forgotten Authors" by brothers Dave and Jack Dempsey. It's the brothers' second collective biography drawn from the state's literary heritage. Their first won a Notable Book Award from the Library of Michigan.

Jack Dempsey is an Ann Arbor attorney. Dave Dempsey, a former environmental adviser to Gov. James Blanchard, is a policy adviser at the International Joint Commission.

Ernest Hemingway is the best known in the crew. A novelist and short story writer who spent summers at a family cottage on Walloon Lake, he set some of his tales — reflecting what the Dempseys call "the influence of Northern Michigan landscapes" — in the Upper Peninsula.

Poems by the prolific Edgar Guest — the one-time state poet laureate — sold millions of copies, were syndicated in hundreds of newspapers and were heard for decades on his Detroit radio show.

"Guest's poetry may have been sappy," the Dempseys wrote, "but Michiganders oppressed by gloom could escape through it, for a moment at least."

His son, Edgar II — nicknamed Bud — took over the WJR show in 1946 and continued it until 1972. Also remembered by many is Russell Kirk, the conservative national political columnist, historian and cultural critic who grew up in Plymouth and moved to Mecosta.

But others languish on the roster of the long-forgotten in "Ink Trails II."

Among them is the post-Civil War poet Julia Ann

Moore of Edgerton and Manton, whom Gov. John Engler proclaimed the "Sweet Singer of Michigan" in 1997 — 150 years after her birth — but whom critics assailed as syrupy and "perhaps the most famous bad poet in the history of American literature."

High literature wasn't a requirement for inclusion in the book. Being dead was.

Glendon Swarthout, who taught at both the University of Michigan and Michigan State University, earned his spot through Westerns such as the best-seller "They Came to Cordura" and novels that became the popular movies "Where the Boys Are" about college students on spring break in Florida and the John Wayne Western "The Shootist."

Similarly successful in her day, but not forever was Frances Margaret Fox, of Bay City and Mackinaw City. She produced about 50 books for children, many set in the Straits of Mackinac region.

Not all were as prolific as Fox or Hemingway.

For example, John Nevill wrote only two books, one of them self-published through a vanity press. The ex-Marine-turned-Detroit newspaper reporter-turned-auto-industry publicist discovered his true calling when he moved to De Tour and started writing newspaper columns about the people and the land of the Eastern U.P.

As for Nevill's second book, it told the story of the building of the Mackinac Bridge and was co-authored by the bridge's designer. It appeared several months after Nevill's death.

Jack Dempsey said he was fascinated to learn about Nevill, who was "not probably the greatest writer of all time" but was working successfully in Detroit, took a two-week family trip to the U.P. one summer and decided to move there — "move everything, move their lives, their homestead and starting to write about the area."

The brothers learned about some writers from suggestions by readers of their first book. "It was a really cool thing," Jack Dempsey said.

Among them was Fox, the children's author.

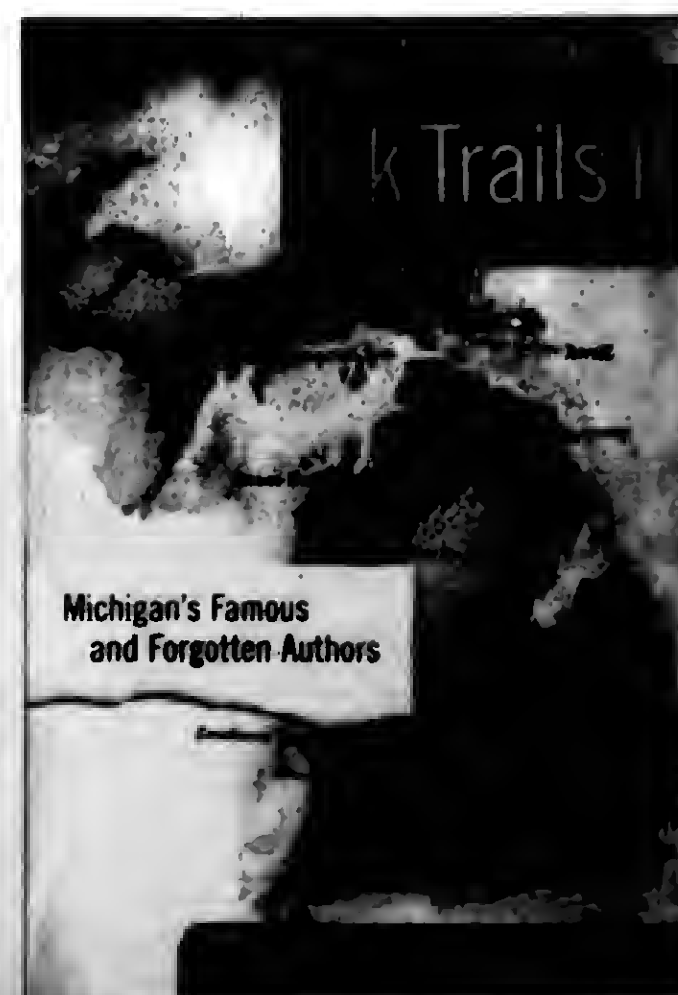

"I've been in Mackinaw City many times and steps away from her home. It was a real stunner to discover here was this author and her house is still there. Her books are still available," Dempsey said.

The brothers are starting work on a third volume, "and we expect more contributions from folks," he said.

Residents are reminded of the planned street closures during the 2016 infrastructure project that began on Wood and Green streets at the end of March. vehicles on the street," said city manager Mark Heydlauff.

The State Street detour will remain up until further notice, said Department of Public Works superintendent Pat Elliott.

"We cannot determine when those connections and work will be complete at this point of the project," Elliott said.

The streets are scheduled for water, sewer, curb and gutter upgrades and sidewalks. The pavement on Wood Street has been removed and much of the equipment for the project was staged last week.

"The contractors are in the removal and demolition phase of the project," Elliott said. "Once that is complete they will begin the installation of the sanitary sewer on those streets."

Once the sanitary sewer installation is complete, work will begin on the water main replacement.

"We are very early in the project, but everything seems to be on schedule," Elliott said.

The colder weather and snow has not slowed work on the streets, Elliott said.

"The ground is not frozen so work crews have been able to continue work as scheduled," he said.

This phase of the project is scheduled to be complete by the end of June. Work will begin during the summer on the 200 block of East Upright Street and Alice Street from Belvedere to Garfield avenues.

The final phase of the project will include Burns Street from East Dixon to Petoskey avenues, Nichols Street from East Dixon to Petoskey avenues and State Street, which will only be a water main upgrade, from Garfield to Lincoln avenues. This work will begin after Venetian Festival and wrap up before winter, Elliott said.

Recent snowy weather delayed routine bridge cleaning in Charlevoix until further notice.

Department of Transportation Northern region communications representative. "Unfortunately the snow has postponed this cleaning."

Crews were originally slated to do the work on Memorial Bridge, which carries U.S. 31 across the Pine River Channel in downtown Charlevoix from 7:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. on Thursday, April 7. Michigan Department of Transportation officials also had planned similar work for the U.S. 31 bascule bridge in Manistee and U.S. 23 bascule bridge over the Cheboygan River in Cheboygan for this week, but that work has also been postponed.

"Each spring we want to remove sand and salt that builds up in the nooks of the bridge structure to prevent corrosion," Lake said.

The cleaning will require single-lane closures. However, traffic will remain open in both directions at all times.

"This is a routine cleaning and won't be disruptive to traffic once we can reschedule," Lake said.

State officials have not yet determined when the work will take place, but will make an announcement when the work has been rescheduled.

"Once we get better weather we will notify the public," Lake said.

In a news release, Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney Allen Teigenhof said the Michigan Sentencing Guidelines, which are now advisory, called for a minimum range of 10 to 23 months. However, Teigenhof said he argued this range was inadequate and did not consider the fact that McKee robbed the same store on two separate occasions, that his actions had a tremendous psychological impact on the victim and that McKee had lied under oath, implicating another person in the crime which led to their arrest and incarceration initially.

"Teigenhof said Judge Hayes agreed and gave experience she believes she will bring to the mayoral seat.

"The opportunity to use my experiences and love for people as the mayor and ambassador for the city has really solidified my decision to be all in for this community," Gibson said. "My years of service has prepared me for this next step in governing our city."

Mayor Gabe Campbell, who has decided to not seek reelection, has been an active member in the Main Street Program advocating for a bustling downtown, along with growth in new businesses to help attract young professionals to Charlevoix.

Gibson also plans to follow in Campbell's footsteps on Main Street as she also serves on a Main Street committee, but she also has focus on other areas of the city.

"Mayor Campbell has done a good job with supporting downtown Charlevoix, and I certainly support what's going on in Main Street, but we have some areas that would love to see the revitalization happening downtown happen in their neighborhoods," she said, referring to infrastructure projects to help build better neighborhoods. "We have the capacity as a city to spread growth and impact around if we can work together for the betterment of this community."

As mayor, Gibson plans to keep Charlevoix moving in a positive direction. She also wants residents to know she will administer city council meetings that follow fair procedures.

"The people want our meetings to be open and transparent and the mayor is responsible for keeping city government that way," Gibson said. "I will run a professional and efficient meeting that follows the rules set out before our elected officials."

City council members Luther Kurtz, of Ward 1, Bill Supernaw, of Ward 2, and Shane Cole of Ward 3, seats are also up for election in November, but neither has filed petitions to run at this time nor has any other resident.

The deadline to file for city elections is 4 p.m. Tuesday, April 19, at Charlevoix city clerk's office.

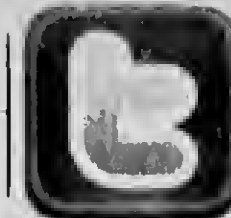

In order to file, candidates need to collect a certain number of signatures from registered voters within their voting district.

The candidate can pick up official election petitions from the clerk's office during normal business hours.

ing. The renegotiation of our DDA bonds helped free up funds for this project."

The tree lighting project has received positive response from residents, visitors, business owners and members of the Main Street/Downtown Development Authority Board.

"We feel it's been a very nice enhancement to the downtown area," Barron said.

The city also renewed its previous $5,000 commitment to keep the lights on downtown.

Mayor Gabe Campbell said the lights are a popular draw to the downtown.

"The tree lights in downtown seem to be a really popular thing," he said. "You go by there at night in the summer with things happening downtown, people are out there strolling around. It is wonderful."

Additionally, the mayor said having the lights on helps the appeal of Charlevoix as a destination point for visitors.

"It is another part of our signature thing as a destination," he said. "People say 'Hey, look at this cute, little quaint town where they keep the lights on all year-round.'"

Charlevoix Wear owner

Kirby Dipert said he 100 percent supports keeping the lighting downtown.

"I'm glad the board did decide to fund the lights," Dipert said. "I truly believe the lights enhance the ambience of downtown."

Ultimately, many of the downtown businesses are just trying to encourage residents and visitors to enjoy and explore the downtown area.

"The tree lights are especially powerful in summer," said Cheryl Carey, Chamber ambassador and Central Drug Store manager. "It's a charm we have in Charlevoix that gets people out to walk around downtown."

Easier district path has Rayders aiming for deep run in state tournament

JAMES CHRISTENSEN
(231) 439-9343 • jchristens@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Last year's MHSAA tournament run ended early for the Charlevoix girls soccer program, thanks to a brutal district draw that included four of the top 15 teams in the state in Division 4.

Charlevoix, ranked first in the state, fell in an upset to fifth-ranked Leland, 2-1, on Leland's home field despite a 16-4 regular season record, and the district also contained honorable mention Harbor Springs and Elk Rapids.

Thanks to a change in district alignment, that won't happen again this year. Elk Rapids, Leland, Suttons Bay and Northport are gone from the district this season, replaced by Boyne City, Houghton Lake, and Roscommon, all dropping down from Division 3.

While those three squads aren't pushovers, either, losing two teams who are likely to be among the 10 best in Division 4 does make the path to the regional a little easier for the Rayders.

The Rayders lose four seniors off a 16-4 team that went undefeated in the Lake Michigan Conference, including Northern Michigan Review player of the year Leah Davis and four-year goalkeeper Gloria Greene.

Despite the losses, Charlevoix has plenty of young talent ready to chase another LMC title and to take the next step in the state tournament.

"We're young on paper, but the truth is our freshmen and sophomores have a lot of organized soccer under their belts," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "They play with confidence and aren't intimidated by this level of competition, which really helps them get up to speed quickly."

Up front, freshmen Jenna Good and Jane Kelly will make a quick impact alongside sophomore Rachel Nesburg, who emerged as a prolific scorer in her first year on the varsity last season.

While the loss of Davis in the midfield will hurt, sisters Kylee and Abbey Scholten, senior Kelsey Engstrom and versatile Charlevoix's Kylee Scholten is a senior leader for a young but talented Rayder squad looking to repeat as LMC champions and make a deep tournament run this season.

junior Beth Veenstra give the Rayders plenty of options.

Defensively, the Rayders start three sophomores, but Alex Snabes and Natalie Nesburg are already experienced contributors, and Michelle Bollini joins the mix after playing downstate in Class A Clarkston's program for a season. Junior Isabel Hess rounds out a group that should be the backbone of Charlevoix's squad.

The biggest hole for Charlevoix is at goalie, where replacing Greene, a four-year starter who singlehandedly secured several wins for the Rayders will be a tall task.

Charlevoix will choose between junior Grace Sutherland and freshman Emily Hinkley, with Veenstra also an option if neither can lock down the job.

"We've got holes to fill, but we've got a lot of kids competing to fill in," Scholten said. "We have 40 kids between the varsity and JV program, so our numbers are great and there's a lot of excitement surrounding the program."

In the LMC, the Rayders will look to bring home the crown again, but Harbor Springs and Elk Rapids are also strong squads with their sights set on winning, and Grayling, Kalkaska, and T.C. St. Francis should all take steps forward this season.

Charlevoix will find out a lot about where they stand early on, as it travels to Muskegon on Apr. 16 to take on top five squad and host Western Michigan Christian, as well as four-time defending state champion Grandville Calvin Christian.

"Those are games where we're going to learn a lot about who we are as teams," Scholten said. "If you can compete with those two programs, you can compete with anyone in the state in Division 4."

Optimistic ambitions New era underway for Charlevoix baseball team

(231) 439-9343 • jchristens@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — The legacy remains, but there are big changes underway for the Charlevoix baseball team heading into the 2016 campaign.

The Rayders are the defending Lake Michigan Conference champions, but have big holes to fill with the loss of a decorated senior class and long-time coach Allen Telgenhof.

The cupboard is far from bare for Charlevoix, however, as coach Nick Vuilleumot moves up from overseeing the JV program to take over the top role with the varsity.

"We lost players who are tough to replace, and that means it's going to be a different mix when we take the field this season," Vuilleumot said. "It's not going to be the same, but we feel like we've got the pieces to do well regardless."

Senior Hunter Cox steps in to replace Nate Moon as the staff ace after two solid years as the team's second pitcher, and the Rayders will have a fearsome lineup this season led by senior Austin Putman, an all-stater two years ago who can hit for both power and average.

With several strong hitters gone, including all-stater Noah Certa and big bat Will Telgenhof, Charlevoix will look to talented juniors Christian Matye and Brad Kilger, as well as seniors Forrest Nolrot, Jordan Adkins and Jake Seger to play bigger roles.

On the mound behind Cox, the onus also falls on Putman, Matye and Mason Louiselle

Kilger

"It's not going to be the same, but we feel like we've got the pieces to do well regardless."

Nick Vuilleumot

to increase their inning count from last year and give the Rayders solid options for the second half of doubleheaders.

"We lost guys who really defined this program during their time here, and we've challenged our returning core to step up, fill that void and make this program their own," Vuilleumot said. "Austin, Hunter, Christian, Brad and all of those guys have really done a great job so far and brought a lot of leadership and consistency to this team, and I'm optimistic about what we can do this season."

While young, the Rayders have enough talent that they can't be counted out in either the LMC or district title races this season.

The conference title race will be tight at the top, with T.C. St. Francis returning several strong players from last year's runner up team, and rival Boyne City bringing back both of its top two pitchers as well.

East Jordan and Kalkaska will also be in the hunt with balanced rosters, making every doubleheader crucial for the Rayders' hopes of repeating.

The district will include familiar LMC foes Boyne City and Harbor Springs, with East Jordan playing host.

If Charlevoix can bring home a district crown, it would play regional action on its home field with a shot at the quarterfinal in Traverse City on the line.

Improved pitching key: Rayders look to rise in standings

JAMES CHRISTENSEN
(231) 439-9343 • jchristens@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — A fresh start for the Charlevoix softball team after a rough 2015 season begins with improvements on the mound.

Pitching was the problem for the Rayders last year, as Charlevoix couldn't find the strike zone on a consistent basis and it showed in the win/loss column.

Better play from their staff could mark a great leap forward for the Rayders this season, as returning pitchers Skyler Herriman and Shelby Wurst have a year of experience under their belt and have shown better command in practice.

Former Harbor Springs softball coach Mike Mathews, now a Charlevoix assistant, has played a big part in that turnaround, working with both pitchers throughout the winter to hone their skills.

"Pitching was our Achilles heel last year, but they've been in the gym since October trying to get better and take the next step," Charlevoix coach Tom Mielke said. "If we can avoid giving up bad innings early, that'll go a long way toward making us more competitive."

Better defensive performances should benefit the Rayder offense, led by Nichole Hart and Emily Shrift, which could thrive with more quality at-bats per game.

It's all part of a rebuilding process for the Rayders, who are still rolling out several freshmen and sophomores in their lineup, but will have a junior varsity squad again after lacking the numbers for it last year.

"It's a good sign that we're able to carry 11 players and still have a junior varsity," Mielke said. "Interest in the program is up and that can only help our team in the future."

The LMC conference race will likely come down to a three-way battle between Boyne City, T.C. St. Francis and Kalkaska, with East Jordan as a potential dark horse.

Charlevoix will look to get out of the basement and closer to that top group, with doubleheaders against Harbor Springs, Grayling and Elk Rapids providing opportunities for the Rayders.

In district play, Charlevoix will face familiar foes in Boyne City, Harbor Springs, and host East Jordan.

If the Rayders can pull a couple of upsets, Charlevoix would host the regional at its home field the following weekend.

Looking past the numbers

Petoskey News-Review Player of the Year Marcus Matelski is far more than his prodigious stats

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

BOYNE FALLS — For better or for worse, the numbers are what most people will remember about Marcus Matelski.

2,421 career points, good for ninth all time in MH-SAA history. The single-season steals record of 146 and top five all time for career steals with 340. 15 games of 30 points or more as a senior, including the school record of 50, and five triple-doubles.

Given the impressiveness of those statistics, it's fair that the Boyne Falls senior is defined by them, but it's also a shame, because no one thought less about those record-setting numbers than Matelski himself.

"He put up the most ridiculous statistics for someone who just doesn't care a lick about numbers," Boyne Falls coach Tim Smith said. "After winning games, doing right by his teammates and representing his town, racking up stats was really the least important thing to him on that list."

In Boyne Falls at least, Matelski will be remembered less for his stats and more as the captain who brought championships home and as someone who stood for the best his community had to offer.

In Matelski's five seasons on the varsity, starting in eighth grade, Boyne Falls went 77-10 overall, won four outright conference titles and one shared title, and outdueled regional power Bellaire for two district titles, an unprecedented run of success for a school with only 40 kids in the building.

"It's always been a close-knit community, and one that's a huge part of who I am as a person," Matelski said. "To put on that Boyne Falls jersey and to represent our town in championship games and against top-tier teams was an opportunity I'll always treasure and remember forever."

Throughout his career, but especially in important games, Matelski made his presence felt.

Despite concerted efforts to stop him, including double teams, triple teams, and other gimmick defenses by every opponent that faced him, Matelski was unstoppable, scoring double-digits in every game he played in his junior and senior years.

Even Bellaire, with two all-state caliber defenders on the roster, and East Jordan, who held opponents to under 45 points a game this season, couldn't guard him straight up.

"Every team we've played, even the best teams, have ended up double-teaming him or altering their defense to slow him down," Smith said. "They might try man-to-man or a normal zone to start, but by half-time they're going back to the drawing board to find some kind of answer."

"It usually doesn't work, because Marcus is so versatile and so good at finding holes in the defense. He knows how to get his teammates involved as well."

Despite averaging over 30 points a game, Matelski never had a reputation as a gunner with no conscience.

He shot over 80% from the floor for his career and regularly totaled five or more assists in a game, and there were nights where he didn't even lead his team in shot attempts.

"People have this image of him coming down the floor and jacking up shots every possession, and it just isn't reality," Smith said. "Everything he did was for the team."

Boyer Falls senior Marcus Matelski capped off a standout career with a fourth straight All-State honor and a News-Review Player of the Year award.

Off the court, Matelski's humility and willingness to give back to the community he loves stood out as well.

"He'd score 50 points on Friday night, and then on Saturday morning he'd be in the gym running our youth league, teaching 9 and 10 year olds how to drop step," Smith said. "He never carries himself like a star or like he's above anyone else; he's been down to Earth from the day he started and success hasn't changed him one bit."

Matelski leaves Boyne Falls as undisputedly the greatest player to put on a Logger uniform, and, yet, as far more than just a basketball player.

"As a coach, he's a once in a lifetime player, and that's not just his basketball talent," Smith said.

"Just the type of person he is, the way he touched a community's hearts and made them proud of where they were from, that's a rare and special thing."

"The gift of Marcus is going to keep on giving long after he's gone, because of the relationships he's built and the effect he's had on the people that know him and look up to him."

Enbridge: Line 5 safe for oil transport

LONNIE ALLEN

(231) 547-6558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Enbridge Energy wants to assure Michigan residents that its Line 5 pipeline is a safe, efficient way to transport oil through the state and the company has minimized the risk of a pipeline breach in the Straits of Mackinac.

That was the message given to a small gathering of Charlevoix County leaders at the Charlevoix Public Library on Thursday, April 7.

"Line 5 was built and designed to be a safer, faster way to ship North American crude oil to refineries," said Enbridge spokesman Jason Manshum. "It is safer than a

Beaver Island Ferry service begins season operations

CHARLEVOIX — That first robin poking around for worms in a leaf pile, a crocus pushing its way up through the damp mulch to absorb the sun's life-giving rays, or spotting the first morel mushrooms are all signs of spring to most of us.

But for the residents of Beaver Island, it's not really spring until they hear the deep bellow of the ferry horn, signalling that the lifeline between the island and the mainland is once again operational.

On April 6, the Beaver Island Boat Company made the first runs between its harbor at St. James on Beaver Island and the harbor in Charlevoix.

"It's most definitely a sure sign of spring to have the ferry back in operation," said Margo Marks, president of the Beaver Island Boat Company. "Once the boat starts running it is an exciting time for the island. It's sort of a celebration after a long winter."

Charlevoix has been the point of travel to Beaver Island since the late 1800s. The ferry operation has changed throughout the years, but as it exists today it has been in operation since 1984. Beaver Island is a big draw for Charlevoix with numbers of people traveling by air and water to Michigan's "Emerald Isle." On an average season the Beaver Island Boat Company transports approximately 35,000 people to and from the island.

Passengers are only some of the payload headed to the island. Each season about 6,500 vehicles are Food truck committee hopes to have guidelines in May

JORDAN SPENCE

(231) 439-9397 • jspence@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — There is clearly an appetite for food trucks in Charlevoix, but before they roll into downtown this summer a committee has to come up with a plan for the mobile food vendors.

Maureen Owens, a member of the Charlevoix Food Truck Committee said they hope an ordinance is ready by May.

She said there is a lot of information to put together before they present their ideas to the Charlevoix City Council.

The first discussions of a food truck ordinance began in October of 2015. The city council had a forum last year for residents to discuss the future of food trucks in Charlevoix. It was during this meeting when the concept of a committee was formed. The committee now consists of nine members with a cross-section of restaurant owners, food truck owners and other residents of Charlevoix.

Committee member, Jill Kline, co-owner of Pigs Eat'n' Nibs in Charlevoix, said the goal is to help figure out where and when food

Volunteers help re-open North Fox Island public-use airfield

JORDAN SPENCE

(231) 439-9397 • jspence@petoskeynews.com

A runway closed off to public use for years on a uninhabited island in Lake Michigan is open again. The North Fox Island runway has been reformed by volunteers after it was neglected.

"Our initial goal was to open the airstrip to the public," said Don Seelye.

Seelye had been the caretaker for the property before. He mowed the grass runway for years before it was purchased by the state from private owner David Johnson.

When the state purchased the land it was decided to not maintain the runway, which is 3,000 feet long and 200 feet wide, Seelye said.

After the state became involved Brad Fredrick began to help with the project, Seelye said.

Fredrick is a Michigan liaison for the Recreational Aviation Foundation.

April opens navigation on the Great Lakes

COMPILED BY LONNIE ALLEN

Editors Note: The year is 1931 and the name of the newspaper is the Charlevoix Courier. "That was then" is a weekly feature by the Charlevoix Courier that will take news headlines from the front page of a past Charlevoix Courier to share with today's readers. To read full articles visit charlevoixlibrary.org/charlevoix-history and click on the yearbooks and newspapers tab.

On this day in 1931 marked the official opening of navigation on the Great Lakes, according to the front page article of the April 15, Charlevoix Courier. The two main headlines of the article: Lake Navigation Opened April 15 and Local Freighter and Government Boats Clear Port Introduced readers to the story that explained the activity taking place in Round Lake. "Although many craft throughout the lake region had already embarked upon their season's operations, a majority of freighters held to port until the official opening," reported the Courier. "At Charlevoix, Wednesday saw a flurry of preparation as boats made ready to clear port. Work of getting several larger craft in the harbor ready for the season had been in progress for several weeks."

According to the article the Petoskey Transportation Co. steamer J.B. John, left her winter berth in Round Lake harbor for Petoskey that evening, with Capt. Frank Russell in charge. "The boat will take on a load of cement and proceed to Chicago," reports the Courier. "Government lightships which have wintered here, have orders to sail for their respective ports on Thursday, April 16. They are Grey's Reef and Manitou Shoals lightships."

According to the article, the USS Sumae, lighthouse supply ship, is expected to port in Charlevoix at any time to commence her work of putting out buoys and signals. The Str. Marquis Roen and convoy Interlachen, owned by the Roen Steamship Co., are expected to leave Charlevoix today or tomorrow for Mackinaw City, where they will be engaged by the Lyons Construction company in the work of building the new ferry dock, operations which were discontinued late last fall.

Township seeks bids for repaving Mount McSauba Road

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Motorists who travel two notorious stretches of bad road in Charlevoix Township could soon see relief.

The Charlevoix Township Board of Trustees will seek bids on about a mile-long stretch of Mount McSauba Road from Division Avenue to Pleasant Street for wedge work and a 2-inch overlay for the 4,850 feet of road-way. The board will consider also doing Waller Road near the end of summer depending on township finances, said township supervisor Chuck Center.

"We have the money for Mount McSauba in our budget, but want to see if our millage renewal passes in August before committing to Waller Road because that is a larger stretch of road," Center said.

During the meeting, trustees discussed possibly including Waller Road in the bid process for a lower price on each project.

"(It) never hurts to ask to see if they will give us a break on combining Waller and Mount McSauba roads," said trustee Nancy Rajewski.

Treasurer Theda Williams said the concern is not about the money now, but next year because they do not know what voters will do on the millage renewal request.

"It doesn't hurt to get a price for both projects, but we want to make sure we are able to meet our expenses with the renewal of our operating millage," Williams said.

Mount McSauba road carries an estimated $179,175 price tag according to estimates from county engineers.

Center confirmed Monday that he is committed on repaving the roads that residents are concerned about.

"This project would relieve a big problem," Center said. "I have received calls about McSauba road and we need to address it."

While several roads in Charlevoix Township are in advanced stages of disrepair, the two about to be addressed are among the worst, Center said.

Plans call for construction crews to resurface the 2-mile stretch of Mount McSauba Road with a 2-inch overlay of asphalt including the bike lane. Township officials hope to approve bids for the road project at their May meeting.

"We expect to review bids and settle on a contract within the next 30 days," Center said.

Charlevoix Township Board of Trustees approved seeking bids to repave Mount McSauba Road this summer. Bids will be reviewed at the township meeting in May.

Division Street apartment project hits stiff opposition

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Passions were clear at a public hearing on Monday night as Charlevoix residents gathered at city hall to hear the details on a proposal for a 48-unit apartment complex on Division Street.

"Residents brought many concerns about traffic and the amount of units on the parcel," said Zach Panoff, interim city planner/zoning administrator. "Neighbors in the area also believe the parcel is too small for the development."

LSB Ventures LLC, of Cincinnati, Ohio, is already coming under a lot of fire in the town for its intent to build the new 48-unit apartment complex. The complex is to be built on roughly 4 acres of land behind the American House in Charlevoix. If approved and constructed the development would sit not far from the Charlevoix Elementary School across from where Carson Avenue meets Division Street.

According to documents presented to the planning commission by Performance Engineers Inc., the proposed development is intended to serve low- to moderate-income rental demand where affordable housing would be a rental in the $700 to $1,000 range.

The company filed an application with the city to be reviewed by the planning commission for a rezoning of the property that would allow for four 12-unit apartment buildings.

After the discussion, commissioners chose to table the decision so the applicant could make changes in the overall design of the project.

"The commission has concerns about the potential traffic, layout and look of the project," Panoff said.

It is undetermined at this time when this item will return to the planning commission, Panoff said.

Hospice can meet the needs of loved ones with Parkinson's

When Parkinson's patients receive hospice care, they benefit from better pain control as symptoms become increasingly difficult to manage, and there are fewer hospitalizations related to ineffectual treatments. Families of Parkinson's patients actually rate the value of hospice care as highly as families of patients with other diagnoses, and feel that more of their needs are met in the process.

So, then, why are Parkinson's patients still under-enrolled in hospice programs? In many cases, the patient simply had no advance directive in place. Or, the patient's health insurance provider may not recognize his or her needs for hospice care, if the diagnosis isn't imminently terminal. Families simply may not know that hospice offers resources for loved ones suffering from Parkinson's. Physicians may hesitate to recommend hospice, fearing that family members will think they're giving up on their patients. Of course, hospice is not about "giving up"; it's about making a choice to elect comfort care over curative care when the burden of medical treatments outweighs the benefit.

Although many experts characterize Parkinson's and other neurological diseases as terminal illnesses, physicians cannot readily speculate on how much longer a patient with such an illness may live. Patients who do live longer than six months beyond their initial hospice enrollment can sometimes be re-certified, and continue to receive hospice services. Not meeting re-certification for hospice services just means that the patient has stabilized, is physically comfortable and their quality of life has improved from the hospice care to the point that they do not need the day-to-day services. They can then "graduate" from the program until hospice services are needed again.

Hospices advocate and provide education about the importance of advance care planning, especially in the early course of a person diagnosed with Parkinson's disease. By the time a Parkinson's patient may qualify for, or be enrolled in, hospice care, he or she is typically beyond the ability to express end-of-life care preferences. Having an advance care plan in place enables patients to have the quality of care they want — when they want it — and also alleviates the burden on the family to make difficult decisions during a time of grief.

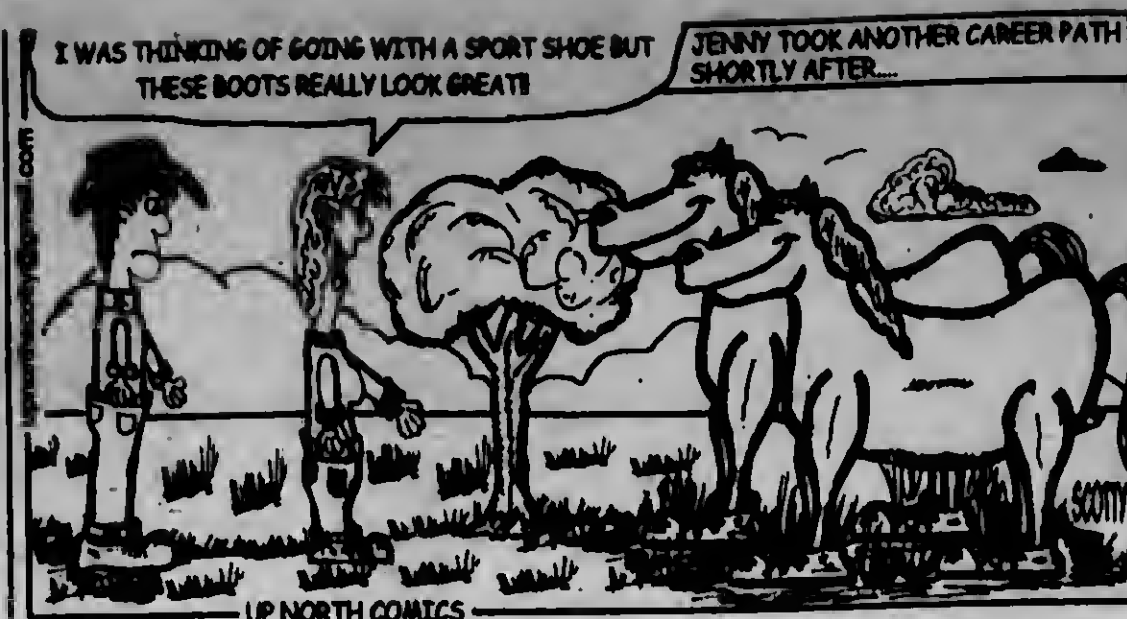

Quality of life is the cornerstone of hospice care. It is the foundation of our traditions, our philosophy, and our efforts to ensure death can happen with dignity. Hospice caregivers should be fully prepared for the challenges of caring for patients suffering from Parkinson's, and for the needs of their families.

Choosing hospice is not "giving up" — it's about taking control. You have the ability to choose a hospice that will work with your family physician to understand and meet the unique needs of a loved one with Parkinson's.

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

Gordon Freedman of Cincinnati, designer and manufacturer of specialized airplane propellers during World War II, had known Charlevoix since he was a boy. Once the war ended, he realized he had to retool for the civilian market. So in 1946, he and his growing family moved to Charlevoix where he established the Freedman Aircraft Engineering Corporation on U.S. 31 South. There was a huge supply of lumber available in the region, perfect for making the display cases he planned to design and build for the retail sector of a rapidly growing economy. So grateful was pharmacist Harley Ochs that industry and jobs were on the horizon here that he offered Freedman rent-free use of rooms for office space on an upper floor of the old wooden Central Drug Store building. Which was fine, except Freedman and his staff roasted in the summer and froze in the winter until the plant was constructed. The new company focused on showcases and racks for greeting card companies, including American Greetings, the giant of the industry. Freedman also was instrumental in convincing RCA Victor, then the rest of the LP record industry, to display their products in the open for customer inspection rather than keeping them behind the counter. The display case at right center in the photo says "RCA Victor Living Stereo" across the top. Freedman also provided display cases for the Singer Company and Sears Roebuck. Many of its models are shown here on the lawn outside the plant. At center, in the white dress, appears Freedman's wife Eleanor. The company is now Harbor Industries.

LETTERS to the editor

April is Sexual Assault Awareness Month

Editor:

This year, we invite community members to focus their attention on this important issue beyond a single month because the impacts are felt daily.

Most people realize the traumatic and varied impact of sexual violence on survivors and their families. The entire community is also adversely affected by its presence. Sexual violence creates a climate of fear, anger and disbelief in workplaces, schools and within our community. Additionally, sexual violence generates financial costs such as criminal justice and medical expenses, crisis and mental health service fees, as well as the loss of potential accomplishments of victims.

Preventing such a far-reaching and prevalent social issue as sexual violence may seem overwhelming or even impossible. This way of thinking implies that there isn't a solution — or if there is, we can't achieve it. But we can and we are. There are many practical steps that are currently being taken in our homes, neighborhoods, schools, faith communities and workplaces. But there are many more things we can do to promote safety, respect and accountability.

Prevention starts with challenging victim-blaming and believing the survivors when they share their story. Every day, individuals can model supportive relationships and behaviors, call out harmful attitudes and challenge the societal acceptance of sexual violence. Communities and businesses can also take action to implement policies that promote safety, respect and equality.

We agree with this year's theme: prevention is possible. Join us in helping everyone see their role in preventing sexual violence throughout the year. You can learn more at www.ns-vrc.org/saam.

Retired and senior volunteers recognized

Editor:

National Volunteer Week, celebrated April 10-16, is about inspiring and encouraging people to seek out imaginative ways to engage in their communities, as well as recognize those that have shared their time and talent by volunteering. This is a wonderful time to honor the 256 active volunteers in the Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) of Charlevoix and Emmet counties, sponsored by the Friendship Centers of Emmet County-Council on Aging.

RSVP volunteers contributed 43,385 hours in the past year to over 80 local schools, government and nonprofit agencies in the two counties. Feedback from these entities indicates the volunteers are invaluable and fill an important need. Volunteers confirm what scientific studies have shown; that individuals who volunteer enjoy psychological and physical benefits, including increased satisfaction and improved sense of belonging. Studies also indicate that those who volunteer have lower blood pressure, increased protection from Alzheimer's, and decreased mortality.

I commend these incredible individuals and want to express my deepest gratitude for all of their hard work and dedication. If you are over the age of 55 and are interested in volunteering, please contact me at (231) 347-3211 or (888) 347-0369, ext. 29.

A logical look at State Board of Education proposed guidelines

Editor:

This letter is in response to the opinion article by Rachel Brougham and the new recommendations proposed by the State Board of Education for LGBTQ students.

These new recommendations are absurd when you think about them logically. This would mean that if John wants to be Jane he should be allowed to use the girl's restroom, locker room and should also be allowed to be on the girls' volleyball team. Or if John is questioning his gender "Q" he could be on the girls volleyball team in the fall and be Jane, then in the winter John could be John, so the teachers would then be required to call him John, not Jane. He could then play on the boys' basketball team in the winter. If this is not allowed and he is not referred to as John or Jane depending on what he is feeling, then the staff members not adhering to this new proposal should most certainly lose their job at the least.

It also would not be fair for the LGBTQ students to have a paid staff member to help and council them only, it would only be appropriate that the school district provide a paid professional staff member for students being bullied for being overweight, underweight, too tall, too short, Jewish, Muslim, Christian, Mormon, Catholic, etc. I'm sure many of these students are harassed as well.

I also don't think it's fair for only the LGBTQ students be addressed by their chosen name, why not every student? Every child should be given the right to require the teaching staff to call them by the name they choose, that would only be consistent with this line of thinking. The next step would be that the state requires school districts to provide a separate restroom for MWLB-GTQA students.

I do agree that there should be rights prohibiting bullying for any reason, but the proposed guidelines set forth by the Board of Education are risible, and should not be considered by our local school board.

Our school system has some of the finest teachers, staff and coaches that would now be burdened with yet another guideline instead of educating and coaching our youth.

The Members Log

Squadron classes a valuable resource for boaters

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • allen@charlevoixcourier.com

"The Members Log" is a series where the Charlevoix Courier will feature a member of the Tip-of-the-Mitt Sail and Power Squadron, which is a chapter of the United States Power Squadrons. All the chapters promote boating through education, seamanship and navigation for all vessels small or large sailing and mechanically powered. The series is designed to tell the personal boating stories of each member, share their experiences with the organization and give the reader an insight about membership with the Tip-of-the-Mitt Sail and Power Squadron. This month the Courier turns its light to Michael LeButt, an executive officer with the Tip-of-the-Mitt Sail and Power Squadron and the editor of squadron's newsletter "The Barometer."

Michael LeButt first sailed in the early 1950s, at age 5, aboard his father's catboat. He grew up living at a summer camp on Wampplers Lake in Michigan's Irish Hills area, where his dad was the camp manager.

"We had sailboats, rowboats, canoes, kayaks, outboard runabouts, and a huge swimming area — so I learned to sail, row, paddle, water ski, and operate a motorboat at an early age," LeButt said. "I earned my Red Cross and Boy Scout lifesaving and first aid certificates and merit badges before I was 12."

During high school summer vacations, LeButt became very enthusiastic about sailing while staying at his great-grandmother's cottage on Lake Margrethe near Grayling.

"I worked in the Post Exchange at Camp Grayling, volunteering for the 4 to 11 p.m. shift so that I could sail all day," LeButt said. "I had purchased an old wooden Snipe for $300, and was on the water every day — rain or shine, wind or no wind — and even sailed to work. I also crewed aboard friends' Lightnings and Flying Scots."

LeButt's exposure to big water sailing came in the late 1970s, with an invitation to crew aboard a 34-foot wooden ketch, on a trip across the Straits from Cheboygan to Hessel in the Les Cheneaux Islands.

"We cleared the Cheboygan River breakwall on the tail end of a gale, and immediately plunged into the trough of an 8-to-10-foot wave. Solid water engulfed the deck. I was instantly hooked on big water," LeButt said.

That trip made him realize that there was much more he needed to know in order to venture out onto Lake Huron's 23,000 square miles of water.

"As a small boat, small lake sailor, I knew nothing about nautical charts, buoys and lighthouses, the compass, marine radio procedure, visual distress signals, safety gear, fog, anchoring, or repairing a clogged head," he said. "It would be stupid for me to take a boat of my own out sailing on the inland seas without a lot more knowledge."

When a friend invited him to join the Irish Hills Power Squadron, a unit of the United States Power Squadrons, he jumped at the chance.

"I started taking winter classes right away; seamanship and piloting back-to-back, then advanced piloting the next fall. In addition to the courses on piloting and navigation, I completed many of the ancillary classes — weather, engine maintenance, cruise planning, marine electronics," LeButt said. "I earned instructor qualification and began teaching classes myself, while continuing to take the most advanced classes, including celestial navigation (there was no GPS in those days)."

Michael LeButt, a member of the Tip-of-the-Mitt Sail and Power Squadron, has been sailing for more than 60 years. He has logged thousands of miles cruising on the Great Lakes, and is a veteran of the Port Huron-to-Mackinac race, the California Ocean Triangle Series, and the Newport Beach-to-Ensenada, Mexico race.

He eventually completed every course offered, earning the grade of Senior Navigator. Extensive travel for his job in the aerospace industry took LeButt frequently to both coasts and the Gulf, where he rented boats or sailed with business associates every chance he got.

"My Power Squadron education was paying off," he said. "I purchased a heavy-displacement ocean-going 40-foot cutter, which I berthed in Charlevoix. I was now confident about sailing on the big lakes, even if caught out in the heaviest weather."

When his company transferred him to California, he had his boat shipped to Ventura, where he lived aboard, joined the Balboa Power Squadron, and cruised the Channel Islands. He also raced, serving as crew in the Newport Beach-to-Ensenada, Mexico race and the Ocean Triangle Series.

Two experiences always come to mind when LeButt is asked about the influence that the United States Power Squadrons has had on his boating career:

"In 1985, I sat for the Coast Guard Masters License (for carrying passengers for hire). The pass rate in those days was only 20 percent," he said. "There were mates there from commercial fishing boats who were taking the exam for their second or third time. Because of what I'd learned in the Squadron, the exam was much less difficult than it could have been, and I was valedictorian for the exam session."

The 300-mile Port Huron-to-Mackinac race in July of 1985 also contributed to his appreciation for a Squadron education.

"I was second-watch captain and navigator aboard a 34-foot sloop out of Windsor, Canada," he said. "The second afternoon out, as we were rounding the sea buoy off Cove Island, Ontario, the line squall preceding a strong cold front slammed us with 50-knot winds. Our anemometer showed gusts to 63 knots. That's over 72 mph... hurricane force begins at 75 mph. The powerful cold-front winds were coming out of the Northwest — right on our nose for the remaining 146-mile beat to Mackinac Island."

It blew in the 40-50-knot range all night, and the temperature had dropped 40 degrees. By 3 a.m. the waves had become steep, 25-foot monsters. The boat freefalling into the troughs was about the same as being pushed off a two-story building. The heavy weather continued well into the next afternoon, he said.

"None of us had ever been seasick before, and for the first time in decades of sailing, we all succumbed," he said.

The boat withstood the pounding, and — though nauseous — the crew made it through unscathed, while many others did not. One hundred of the 300-boat fleet dropped out of the race and sought shelter. Eleven boats lost their masts, and some ran aground close to shore, seeking relief from the wind and waves. A boat named Tomahawk fell off a huge wave, and her hull broke open at a previous repair; she sank instantly. Another boat miraculously found Tomahawk's crew in the dark, clinging to a life raft in the gigantic seas, LeButt said.

"We had a lot of respect for the lake, but were not afraid," LeButt said. "My shipmates were all long-term members of the Canadian Power and Sail Squadrons. We were educated, experienced, and prepared, sailing a well-found boat. Those who head out on the rivers and lakes — especially the Great Lakes — without education and preparation are courting trouble. There's more to operating a boat than simply writing a check and turning the key. Safe boating is no accident."

Argonne Supper Club to host Team Kayla cystic fibrosis effort

CHARLEVOIX — Throughout her daughter Kayla's short life, Kim Price learned to cherish something we all take for granted — breathing.

"I take life one day at a time and savor every breath," Price said.

Imagine fighting for every breath you take. It's a battle patients with cystic fibrosis can know too well. About 30,000 people in the United States have the genetic disease. Days filled with coughing, wheezing and struggling with pneumonia or one lung infection after another.

But area residents are coming together to raise money in the fight against cystic fibrosis with an April 30, dinner and silent auction, from 4 p.m. to midnight, at the Argonne Supper Club, 11929 Boyne City Road, Charlevoix.

Organizer Rhonda Ward, of Rapid City, said the event is being held to honor Kayla Thompson, an extended family member, just 23-years-old when she died in 2013.

"As a parent, I think you cannot help but to look at your own children and think, 'But for the grace of God...'" Ward said, a long-time server at the Argonne Supper Club. "Kayla's family doesn't want another family to go through this. Their courage, bravery and determination to put an end to this disease is inspiring."

Tickets for the Team Kayla's Benefit are $25 per person or $45 for two and include dinner, dessert, music, dancing, a cash bar and the silent auction. All proceeds will go directly to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Ward said she's so proud of how generous local businesses have been in supporting the event and encourages people to come out for the benefit.

"People in Northern Michigan have such big hearts," she said, noting items to be auctioned include winery tours, golf rounds, canoe trips, paintball sessions and beautiful gift baskets. Items are still needed.

For tickets or to make a donation for the silent auction, call Ward at (231) 313-0915 or email ward.rhonda36@gmail.com. Tickets also will be available at the door.

Remembering Neff Brothers Quality Food Store

APRIL KELLY

Special to Charlevoix Courier

Sometimes it is only in retrospect that we come to appreciate what came before. As time passed the small local grocery store, café, convenience store, restaurant or gas stop have faded away to history. But for Charlevoix's Marilyn Gibbons and her family, the Neff Brothers Market is still a vivid memory.

In its prime, Neff Brothers Quality Food Store was the premier grocery store in Northern Michigan. It was best known for its quality meats and grocery items, but especially for its free delivery and exceptional service, year-round.

"The carry out," according to Marilyn, "was done by the owner or clerk, walking sometimes quite a distance to the customer's boat or vehicle."

Gordon Neff, Marilyn's father and Neff's brother Robert (Bob), were both graduates of Charlevoix Public Schools. Gordon in 1934, Bob in 1936. Gordon attended Michigan State University where he studied Forestry for three years. He graduated from Detroit Business College and later became secretary to Detroit's Chief of Police. He served as the C&O Railroad Bridge tender in Charlevoix for five years. His brother, Bob Neff, was a graduate of the Michigan State Police Academy in Lansing. He spent 10 years or more serving as a State Police Trooper in both the upper and lower peninsulas of Michigan.

In 1950, the Neff Brothers decided to go into business for themselves. They bought the grocery store housed in the brown brick building at the corner of Bridge and Mason streets in Charlevoix from a man named Milton Block, who had run the business for many years. The shop stood where the Odmark Pavillon is now, located on the waterfront. They called it "Neff Brothers Quality Food Store," and planned to deliver just that. Gordon managed the grocery operation including ordering, and Bob became the store's main butcher.

While serving locals year-round, the Neff brothers built their business around the resort clubs in Charlevoix, and offered free delivery. The free delivery continued for locals and charge accounts were available.

There are many firsts attributed to Neff's, according to Gibbons. The store was the first Spartan store in Northern Michigan. In the 1960s, Neff's was awarded the coveted "Certificate of Excellence," after having been members of Spartan Stores, Inc. for 9 years.

It also was the first Northern Michigan store to carry Reese cocktail products and Sanders Candy out of Detroit for which the store had to install a special temperature controlled case. Neff's was the first Northern Michigan store to sell live Maine lobsters — flown in from Maine to Traverse City — and the first to import Washington State Delicious apples.

During the years from 1950-1970, Neff's had many notable people frequent the store among which were Nathan Cummings, Henry Ford II, New York senator Jacob Javits, Joe Foy head of the Spartan Stores, Sander Candy executives, and Gordon Klein of Grand Rapids Produce. The North and South American cruise ships visited the harbor in the 1950s as did the largest yacht of the day owned by the Jim Beam Whiskey Company, Gibbons said.

Gordon and Bob Neff were fair but firm employers. They insisted on training their workers in order to provide customers with the best service possible. A long list of former Neff employees includes many current successful business people who may attribute their work ethic and training to the brothers. Male employees were required to wear starched white shirts and neck ties and women were required to wear turquoise uniforms. The butchers wore white butcher coats and butcher hats for special occasions.

"There are many memories of growing up in the family grocery business," Gibbons said. "My father was adamant about their employee's work ethic. He taught them good manners, integrity and remembering their place."

"I remember him instructing his employees ...

Neff Brothers Quality Food Store was especially known for its free delivery and exceptional service, year-round.

"You push the cart if the lady doesn't want to push the cart because of her manicure," she added.

Some of the employees found that playing in the Charlevoix High School Band and joining the football team were activities that sometimes conflicted with Neff work schedules.

"I remember marching with the band and having to drop off of the Venetian Street Parade at the store to work," Gibbons said. "He was demanding of everyone and expected his workers, including family members, to be precise and first class. Everything was so proper and catered to the wealthy clientele that was the mainstay of the business in the summer season."

She remembers one summer customer who had her chauffeur come in and check the store's temperature to be sure it was safe to enter. While some ladies liked to come in and handpick fruits and vegetables for themselves, often employees would take the grocery order outside in front of the store where the limousines parked.

"We were on a first name basis with all the cooks, maids, housemen and chauffeurs of the resort customers," she said. "Some customers expected us to go across the street to the drugstore to bring back stamps or other needs along with the groceries, and we did it."

Bnb had different responsibilities dealing with meats and was a kind, good man, according to Gibbons. Sometimes, however, he had to be the "bill collector" often taking a row boat out into Round Lake to collect for boaters' unpaid groceries.

Gordon Neff retired from the grocery business in the early '70s because of health issues, leaving Bob in charge of operations. In his newfound leisure time he became a self-taught wood carver, mainly of gulls, ducks and shorebirds, carved from basswood and painted with acrylics. Many of his carved birds adorned yachts, business places and private homes. He died in 1994 at the age of 78.

His brother Bob, retired from the business in 1975

after 25 years. A transition was made when Ken Peterson, of Petoskey bought the business and maintained Bob as manager, but a new manager followed and Bob officially stepped down. He passed away in 2007 at the age of 89.

Neff Brothers Grocery store eventually became Wharfside Market, a party, carry-out store in the mid to late seventies, and then in 1993 was bought by Rex and Ineke McCarthy who transformed the property into an antique store. In 2003 McCarthy's sold the store and property to the city. It was demolished, along with all of its memories, in order to build the present Memorial Park. The Neff Brothers are honored there on three plaques in recognition for their community service and their gift of three docks to the city of Charlevoix.

G. Brian Neff, Marilyn's brother, continues in the tradition of bringing fine meats to the public in Petoskey.

"I started at my dad's store at the age of 12 in the butchering room in the basement, working with fresh poultry that came in wood crates," he said in a 2009 magazine interview.

He and his wife Betty keep the tradition of a famous Neff potato sausage alive to this day. The entire Neff family keeps the memories of the original Neff Brothers Quality Food Store alive, Gibbons said.

American Red Cross announces upcoming blood drives

PETOSKEY — The American Red Cross encourages eligible blood donors to donate blood this spring to ensure a sufficient supply for patients at approximately 2,600 hospitals across the country.

Donated blood is perishable and must constantly be replenished to keep up with hospital patient need. Red blood cells are the blood component most frequently transfused by hospitals and must be used within 42 days of donation.

Eligible donors can give red blood cells through either a regular whole blood donation or a double red cell donation, where available. During a double red cell donation, two units of red blood cells are collected while most of the plasma and platelets are returned to the donor. Double red cell donors must meet additional eligibility criteria, which will be determined at the donation appointment.

Debbie Cody-Nabors is a blood donor who gives double red cells. Her mother received transfusions twice a week during treatment for aplastic anemia. "I donate blood as often as I can in memory of my mom," she said. "Please donate blood if you can to help save lives as you never know when you'll be on the receiving end."

Donors with all blood types are needed, especially those with types O, A negative and B negative. Whole blood can be donated every 56 days, up to six times a year, and double red cells may be donated every 112 days, up to three times per year.

To make an appointment to give blood, download the free Red Cross Blood Donor App, visit redcrossblood.org or call 1-800-RED CROSS (800) 733-2767.

Upcoming puppet show producers have a history with Disney

CHARLEVOIX — Those who think puppet shows are for babies might be surprised at the latest library offering.

The Charlevoix Public Library announced the upcoming puppet show, "Lost in Storyland" from 3:45-5 p.m. on Friday, April 22, in the community room. The afternoon will start with snacks at 3:45 p.m. followed by the featured performance.

The Village Puppeteers will be there to present the show. Internationally acclaimed puppeteers riff on classic fairy tale characters. Puss 'n Boots, the Three Little Pigs, Humpty Dumpty, Little Miss Muffet and Rumpelstiltskin are joined by a host of others, including a handsome prince, a maiden in distress and a dazzling dragon. This performance is audience tested for school aged children, with plenty of humor for adults.

The Village Puppeteers have public performances for families in Saugatuck during the summer tourist season and tour around the country throughout the year.

Friends of the Jordan River Watershed welcome new leadership

EAST JORDAN — David Peterson was recently elected president of the Friends of the Jordan River Watershed. And on March 1, the group hired Ashley Cousens to be the group's new program director.

Cousens moved to Belaire in February with her partner, Matthew, who recently began a new position with the Health Department of Northwest Michigan. Originally from southern New Hampshire, Cousens graduated from SUNY Plattsburgh with her bachelor's degree and has spent the last decade in Plattsburgh, New York, close to the Canadian border and the Adirondack Mountains, working in community and workforce development. She specializes in working collaboratively with community partners and developing unique programs to enrich the quality of life for community residents.

Cousens has worked for and with nonprofit organizations, even helping to create a 501(c)(3) group in Plattsburgh while simultaneously conducting a four-year campaign fundraising and building community support to construct a universally accessible treehouse in the community. The Max Moore Memorial Treehouse was completed in October 2015 and now invites people of all ages and abilities to enjoy the simple joy of being up in a tree.

"I am excited to join the FOJ team," said Cousens, "and I hope to put my project coordination skills and passion for nature and the environment to good use here."

Board president David Peterson, a resident of Alden and Helena Township Clerk the past six years, is elated to have Cousens on board.

"Friends of the Jordan is very happy to have Ashley's energy and enthusiasm to help bring forward the mission and initiatives of the Friends of the Jordan River Watershed," Peterson said.

Peterson spent many summers on Torch Lake as a young boy, so retiring to the area was inevitable for him after working 30 years in research and development as a senior research engineer/project manager in the Gypsum industry. He also serves as treasurer for the Torch Conservation Center, a new nonprofit for the protection of the Torch Lake Watershed and land conservation.

An advocate for wetlands and clean sustainable groundwater, Peterson recognizes the need for a water budget for Michigan. His vision for the Jordan River includes the protection of its headwaters, the elimination of the threats to the water quality of the Jordan River, and the protection of its watershed.

The FOJ board is excited to have these new members join the team.

Charlevoix Democrats to host community conversation

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix County Democratic Party will hold a non-partisan Community Conversation from 7-9 p.m. on Thursday April 21, in Community Rooms A and B of the Charlevoix Public Library at 220 W. Clinton St. A "Community Conversation" is a small, informal town hall meeting to gain input from Michigan's residents.

The moderator of the event will be Ken Winter.

Winter is past publisher of the Petoskey News-Review and was inducted into the Michigan Journalism Hall of Fame in 2011. He currently teaches political science and communications at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey.

The topic of discussion will be restoring public trust in Michigan's state government. Attendees will be asked their biggest barriers to trusting state government, as well as their ideas for what it would take to improve trust. Topics will include state government services, management of the public purse, and oversight of Michigan's political system.

Light refreshments will be served. RSVP by Tuesday, April 19, to assist in planning for seating and refreshments.

To RSVP or for more information, email democrats.charlevoix@gmail.com or call (231) 753-8411.

Workshop kicks off new leadership's summer calendar

EAST JORDAN — The new leadership team at Friends of the Jordan River Watershed has big plans for the summer, which will include many events, workshops, and programs. The first is a hands-on workshop called "Rocks and Fossils."

It will take place at 2 p.m. on Sunday, April 17, at the Jordan River Watershed Center, 101 Union St. in East Jordan.

It will be taught by new Friends president David Peterson, from his own personal collection of billion-year-old artifacts.

Current vessel turns 90

Ironton Ferry to celebrate milestone in May

By LONNIE ALLEN
(507) 655-8100 • allen@charlevoixcourier.com

IRONTON — Long before automobiles boarded the ferry, it was sheep, horses and buggies taking short cut across the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix from Ironton to Boyne City. For more than 130 years, the Ironton Ferry has made the 600-foot trip across the Ironton narrows, carrying vehicles, cyclists and walkers. The short cut saves travelers a 20-mile trip by road around the lake.

"There is a lot of history wrapped up in the ferry," said County Commissioner Nancy Ferguson.

The early days of ferry service required travelers to board an 18- by 24-foot scow that hauled horses and wagons across the South Arm to a point from the Iron works in the then-booming Ironton. A single, half-inch cable dragged along the scow, built at the end of the 19th century, with the ferryman pulling it along by hand, as well as passengers.

While pulling the ferry along by hand worked for a while, in 1926 the wooden ferry was discarded and replaced with the present steel vessel. The new, $12,000 ferry was brought over the Great Lakes by tugboat to Ironton from Ferrysburg, where it was built. It is powered by a diesel engine with a hydraulic drive system that features propellers at both ends and guided by two cables.

This year, the current steel structure ferry celebrates 90 years of service. To celebrate this milestone the Charlevoix County Transportation Authority has planned a rededication celebration on Monday, May 16.

"It's exciting to rededicate this vessel," Ferguson said. "We have been talking with area schools about bringing the students to ride the ferry and learn some history in the process."

Rep. Triston Cole, R-Mancelona, and state Sen. Wayne Schmidt, R-Traverse City, plan to be in attendance, Ferguson added.

Also in 2016 a new photo ID season pass will be available. The pass will allow purchaser to utilize it with more than one vehicle.

"All they will have to do is show their ID when they board the ferry," Ferguson said. "Many riders have more than one car and this gives them the freedom to carry the pass in whatever vehicle they are using."

Ferry rates will be $75 for a monthly pass, $40 for a 20-ride book, and $3 for a regular fare. Persons with a bike are $1 and pedestrians are 50 cents a ride.

The ferry is scheduled to begin making runs across the Ironton Narrows Friday, April 15, after requiring repairs caused by a car that caught fire while on board in October, causing it to close for the season early.

At this point the repairs are approximately $97,000, said Charlevoix County Transportation Authority Chairman John Drury.

"A majority of the fire related repairs was covered by insurance," Drury said.

The Charlevoix County Transportation Authority also will also thank ferry customers in April by offering $1 fares.

"We want to show our appreciation to public for the sacrifices and cooperation while the ferry service was down after the fire," Drury said.

The Ironton Ferry runs from mid-April to November.

barge on the lake and the company has put in place layers of safety redundancies for this twin pipeline.

Different elected leaders and representatives from throughout Charlevoix County attended the small meeting, but the few in attendance remained skeptical afterward.

"The meeting did not change my position about the pipeline," said Charlevoix City Council member Shirley Gibson. "It needs to be shut down because no matter the measures put in place to prevent a spill it is not worth the risk to our lakes and environment."

The meeting addressed the history of the Line 5 petroleum pipeline, the 2010 Marshall area oil spill, the company's safety record and oil spill response plans. Enbridge representatives Joe Calcaterra along with Manshum answered questions after the presentation.

Boots on the ground

Calcaterra leads a team based in St. Ignace designed to keep Enbridge employees closer to the Straits should problems with Line 5 arise locally. His team will perform emergency response duties, maintain emergency equipment stored in the Straits area, and practice using it. "We have tested equipment in all conditions," Calcaterra said. "Our team knows what works for numerous oil breach scenarios in the Straits. We also continue to practice and maintain well-tested equipment for an ice scenario."

There are unmanned stations at the north and south sides of the Straits of Mackinac, where the company installs inline inspection equipment. The tools, which scan for problems such as corrosion, are used during Enbridge tests on Line 5 throughout the year.

"When inline tools are used, they look for dents, cracks, buckles, and corrosion," Manshum said. "Inland, we inspect those areas by digging up the line and if we detect any problem the line is repaired."

Divers and underwater vehicles will examine the pipeline from the outside during the 2016 summer. Enbridge also scans for dead vegetation, exposed oil, and exposed portions of the line from the air and by personal inspections. At the Straits, Enbridge looks for oily sheens on open water and along shorelines and dead vegetation. During the winter, company flybys look for melted ice potentially caused by leaking oil.

"Michigan residents should know that we share their deep concern for this critical waterway and keeping the product in the pipe and protecting this very important environment is our top priority," Manshum said.

Worse-case scenario

Enbridge estimates a worst-case scenario spill at the Straits would cost $450 million to clean up. The estimate is less than the $1.2 billion spent to clean up the Kalamazoo River because that was a much larger spill than would occur on Line 5 in the Straits of Mackinac. The maximum spilled at the Straits would be 4,500 to 4,900 barrels, because technology and response techniques improved, Manshum said.

"The pipeline is shut down as soon as an alarm sounds," Manshum said. "This stops the flow of oil. The valves shut to isolate the problematic portion of the pipeline."

The roughly five-mile-long portion of Line 5 at the Straits is the thickest, most inspected portion of Line 5, which is more than 600 miles long, he added. Enbridge insists it is in good condition because of a coal tar coating applied in the 1950s that prevents corrosion.

"This portion of pipeline still exceeds today's rigorous standards," Manshum said.

After the presentation some attendees still voiced their concerns about the continued operation of Line 5 under the Straits of Mackinac.

"I applaud the efforts to minimize the risk of an oil spill in the Straits, but you have not convinced me what you are doing is worth it," said Anne Zukowski, of Water Air Team Charlevoix (WATCH). "Our lakes are a precious resource and many communities get their drinking water from Lake Michigan. Even with a minimal risk the odds of an oil spill is not worth the gamble."

Charlevoix City Councilman Aaron Hagen was unable to attend the meeting, but said he most likely would not have changed his opposition to the continued use of the twin pipeline under the Straits of Mackinac.

"There are studies and information available about the negative impact this pipeline would have on our lakes and environment," Hagen said. "Even doing everything to minimize the risk of an oil breach does not prevent one from happening. The impact of an oil leak would be severe to the environment, our communities and businesses in Northern Michigan. It is not worth the risk itself to keep this line open."

Fredrick said since there's no one living on the island, and it's an interesting place he wanted to help open the abandoned airstrip. Because there isn't a harbor and the water has many rocks it is a challenge for boats to travel to. The runway was originally created in the 1960s to make it easier for people to travel to.

"I've worked on it for over 4 years," Fredrick said. "The first of September it was open to the public. Anyone can land there."

When the state bought it they didn't want anyone flying there because they thought it would be a liability, Fredrick said. But there was a group around Sutton's Bay and Traverse City who wanted to continue to use it.

"It was difficult if you couldn't get through," Fredrick said. "So our group took it on and put it together and got a lease with the DNR. We transported equipment out there and now we cut the grass maintained to state airport standards."

They also had to clear the runway of small saplings, ant hills and other vegetation.

"We went out there and did a lot of work to getting it back where it could be safe to land an airplane. Right now there are yellow cone markers, a windsock and we're about ready to take a Porta John so people can use it."

He said the runway is licensed by the state, to ensure it's safe and inspected properly.

In the time span of a month-and-a-half they had at least 35 planes fly out to the island, Fredrick said.

"It's a very peaceful place, not a lot of wildlife. Lots of cool flowers and vegetation," Fredrick said. "There is a beach around the whole thing."

For more information about the landing strip on North Fox Island contact Fredrick at bfredrick@theraf.org.

transported by boat to and from the island. That is everything from semi-trucks and tractors to trailers with cattle to all-terrain vehicles, motorcycles and bicycles, Marks said.

"About one-quarter of the ship's cargo is freight when making the voyage to and from the island," Marks said.

The ferry made its last run of the season to Beaver Island in mid-December, so the full-time residents of the island have had to rely on air transport for supplies, an option that adds significant freight costs to everything.

"We move a lot of heavier freight in early spring that people couldn't fly that they have been waiting to get," Marks said. "We move items for construction projects that were too big to put on a plane. In the spring, we get a lot of empty recyclables that have built up over the winter and the same in December."

Until April, everyone and everything bound for Beaver Island must be flown in. Mail arrives daily on the first flight from Charlevoix. But it's impossible to get large items, like a car or a major appliance, on or off the island after Christmas.

"As soon as word gets around that we were up and running, a lot of islanders take advantage of the opportunity to go to the mainland and restock," Marks said. "There's no doubt that the ferry is a lifeline for the residents of the island. There will be a lot of goods and supplies coming back across the lake now that we're running again."

Work Continues in Winter

Operations manager Tim McQueer said the company's fleet of two vessels is not pulled from the water during the winter. The ferries are from zen in place in the protected harbor of St. James Bay until the ice comes off. The ferries tend to stop running before Christmas because of the weather and though ferry service to the island may have ended, the work within the Beaver Island Boat Company continues.

"We tend to ramp up our work for the coming season after Christmas," McQueer said. "We want to make sure that stuff is on hand when we first start off the season."

Much of the winter work is office-related as the company prepares and gets the season's brochures distributed, office supplies ordered and any of the merchandise it sells is stocked for the season.

"We want to make sure that those items are on hand when we first start off the season in April," McQueer said.

Crews are also making sure much of the company's equipment is cleaned up and ready to go.

"Our forklifts are inspected and looked at, oil changes and vehicle safety inspections take place before the season begins," McQueer said. "This is the time we do the routine maintenance of all of our vehicles because once we get to June it's hard to get to any of that work. We do quite a bit of our maintenance in early spring and fall. There is not much of a slow down for us."

About two-thirds of the Beaver Island Boat Company's business is June, July and August and the rest of the season is another one-third. The company employs 50 people throughout the summer, which includes the dock crew, vessel crew, and four office employees. Many of them are brought back to work as the season begins for safety and other required training, McQueer said.

One project that took place this past winter was installing a new generator on the Beaver Islander, the company's oldest vessel.

"That vessel was built in 1962 and it took up a fair amount of time for one of our crews on the island this past winter," McQueer said.

Whether a person travels to the island aboard the Emerald Isle or the Beaver Islander, the two-hour-and-15-minute ferry ride from Charlevoix to St. James is considered one of the best ways to reach Beaver Island.

"The leisurely ride allows you to chat with islanders that call it home," Marks said. "They love to talk about their island and its relaxed way of life and it's a great way to learn about interesting spots to visit."

FOOD

trucks can operate in the city.

"They're talking about doing food trucks one day a week," Kline said. "Some locations one day a week downtown where the foot traffic is."

The committee has tried to come up with a rotating schedule for the food trucks to fit within the needs of various locations, Owens said.

"Tuesdays the concessions stands are closed at Michigan beach and Ferry beach. As opposed to competing they (food trucks) will cover the beaches those days," Owens said.

None of the guidelines are written in stone Owens said. The goal is to find a good spot, that's worthwhile for food trucks and not conflict too much with brick and mortar stores, she added. They've also also discussed a fee for the first six months. Owens said because it's a pilot program they will have a fee at first, see how it goes if it's worth the time. If it's a good process the fee would go up the next year.

"Both the brick and mortar and the food trucks have been doing a great job at listening to each other concerns," Owens said. "There's been give and take on both sides. They compromised on both sides. We got to a consensus relatively quickly."

Spring cleaning made easy

A time of rebirth — and spring cleaning.

Spring is finally here. The days are getting longer, and people are throwing open their windows to enjoy the fresh air and hanging out laundry to dry in the sunshine. Speaking of washing, the arrival of spring also means it's time to clean house. It's time to sort, dust, sweep, air-out, wash and scrub the house from top to bottom. Are you ready?

The list may seem daunting, but just take it one at a time: light fixtures and ceiling fans; screens and windows; drapes and blinds; cabinets and closets; appliances and upholstered furniture; carpets and floors; shed and barbecue; pool and garden. But if it really does seem like too much, you can call in the pros for some of the chores. It may be best to leave the carpets and rugs to the experts to ensure they're thoroughly cleaned and dried. Similarly, some upholstery and curtain fabrics require dry cleaning. In other words, don't to have your drapes, duvets or upholstered furniture cleaned professionally.

You can also ask your family for help. If your kids are big enough to clean windows or the medicine cabinet, they could still sort and tidy their drawers and closets. Think of all those clothes and toys they've outgrown and that other children can make use of.

Do you hate anything to do with washing and cleaning? Or perhaps you just don't have the time to do everything yourself? You could always entrust your spring cleaning, in whole or in part, to a housecleaning service. Your home will be as clean as a whistle in the blink of an eye.

Charlevoix's Matt Good is the Rayders' top returning golfer as the team looks to make it past regionals and back to the state finals this year.

Higher hopes

Rayder boys golf, girls tennis, track and field programs strive for banner 2016 campaign

JAMES GUNTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 • jgunterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Rayders had some postseason success in boys golf, girls tennis, and track and field last spring, but there's reason to hope for more for all three programs this season.

It won't be easy, as all three programs lost key seniors, but the talent is there for all three to put together successful finishes against tough schedules.

Boys Golf

The Rayders have a big hole to fill in graduated senior Noah Jeakie, who was a key cog in the squad's runner-up finish at the Division 4 state final two years ago. But Charlevoix returns three of its top four from last year's squad, which qualified for the regional and finished fifth, 21 strokes from a repeat trip to the state final.

Leading the way is junior Matt Good, who posted the Rayders' best round at the regional and the team's second-lowest average.

Seniors Montana Thompson and Tanner Drost also return to fill the second and third spots in Charlevoix's lineup, while junior Tyler Fuchs should fill a bigger role after playing in a few varsity matches last season.

Sophomores Walker Fogle, Camden Musilek and Hunter Benson should battle senior Alexander Fallinski and junior Vladimir Barneveld for a spot in the lineup as well.

The Rayders will look to upset TC St. Francis for the LMC title, and host district play at the Charlevoix Country Club on May 25 looking to make the regional at Lakeside Links in Mason County, and eventually the state final.

Girls Tennis

Replacing No. 1 singles player Rae Claramunt, now at Olivet College, will be a big challenge for the Rayders, as will No. 2 singles player Jessica Paramo.

Charlevoix does return two players with singles experience in junior Becca Moon and Margaret Purvis, who filled the 3 and 4 spots last year, and a doubles pairing in Emily Zabawa and Nicole Swadling that had success in the regional at the No. 2 spot as well.

The Rayders also get the team of Grace Freds and Abby Nolrot back, as well as Erin Wachler and Lydia Balyo.

With a sizable roster and several young players working their way into the lineup, the Rayders have potential despite the graduation losses.

Charlevoix will play in regional action at TC St. Francis, where it will look to break the Gladiators' and Harbor Springs' stranglehold on the state qualifying spots.

Track and Field

With stars Nick Plude and Amber Way graduated, Charlevoix has big holes to fill on the track, but the Rayders have reloaded rather than rebuilt over the years and this season will be no different.

On the girls side, Mackenzie O'Leary is the only returning state qualifier, but expect big things from sophomore Michelle Bollini and junior Isabel Hess after breakout cross country seasons.

With 11 freshmen on the roster, including Mackenzie's younger sister, Madison, the Rayders will lean on young talent to boost its lineup.

On the boys side, the Rayders return a lot of talent, including all four members of its state-qualifying 3,200 relay in Luke Buday, Noah Carson, Malcom Williams and Kevin Pearl.

Sprinter Jared McLean returns after a strong sophomore season as well, and along with Williams, Ben Boos and Danny Nesburg should give the Rayders plenty of speed.

David Ritter, a transfer from Ludington, should make a big impact as well after a standout cross country season.

The Rayders will battle Harbor Springs and T.C. St. Francis for the LMC title, and will travel to Mason County Central for regionals this season.

Beyond the Scoreboard evolving annual awards night, seeking nominations

DREW KOCHANNY
(231) 439-9345 • dkochanny@petoskeynews.com

The Beyond the Scoreboard Champions of Character awards banquet has always been about celebrating those who best represent the organization's model.

A nonprofit organization dedicated to teaching and highlighting character and sportsmanship in Northern Michigan athletics, the annual dinner will take on a change this year, getting closer to the meaning of it all.

Over the past 10 years, with last year's awards marking the 10th anniversary, the awards night featured a keynote speaker to take up a majority of the speaking time, however this year the night will be all about the area winners.

A decision was made by Executive Director Renee Wyatt, as well as board members, of letting the voice of the winners be heard more than an outside speaker.

"Getting it back to what it's about, the kids and teams," said Wyatt. "You see these things evolve, so probably after 10 years it's time."

"We have these fabulous stories from kids and adults on things that they're doing in the community. This whole event is about these great local stories and people who do amazing things. I'm looking forward to this year's event."

Aside from Wyatt, numerous members of the Executive Committee, including board member Al Hansen, echoed the idea of giving more of the floor to this year's winners.

"We've had some really interesting kids that get up there and actually have a pretty good story to tell," said Hansen. "So we're trying to put a little more emphasis on the award winners and not so much the speaker. They didn't really get the time to be acknowledged correctly."

Giving award winners more of a voice is seen by Hansen as a necessary move forward and change for the organization as they continue to grow.

"We don't want it to be stagnant," he said. "We want to keep getting that message out there and growing it. We started just in Emmet county and now we're basically in the three counties, so we're always trying to get the different school districts to buy in. We're endorsed by the MHSAA and we want to have this thing expand and be duplicated in other communities."

Hansen has been with the organization since it was founded in 2004 by Jack Taylor, and sees other areas to use the available funds that would have been used on a keynote speaker for the awards banquet.

Beyond the Scoreboard has hosted numerous workshops for coaches, parents and kids throughout the area, teaching the importance of sportsmanship and training for athletics, one avenue Hansen sees where a speaker may best fit.

"We're looking at hiring speakers to events where we're trying to train coaches or attract the public for training," he said. "Where we can train them in sportsmanship and get them to teach that and character. So it's just a re-tweaking of what we've been doing the last few years."

Last year's 10th anniversary Champions of Character awards featured keynote speaker and retired four-star General Peter Schoomaker, formally the United States Chief of Staff.

Schoomaker was also the very first speaker 10 years prior.

The 2016 Champions of Character banquet will be held at the Emmet County Fairgrounds on Tuesday, June 21, with nominations being accepted now. Cost is $20 to attend, which will include a catered dinner by Julianne To-matos.

Nominations are available for the following categories: youth sport athlete; high school athlete; youth sport coach; high school coach; youth sport leader; official; team of character; parents; fantastic fan; and the lifetime achievement award.

Last year's winners included: Gary Hice, lifetime achievement award; Sophie Snyder, youth girl athlete; Nathaniel Wandrie, youth boy athlete; Ashlee Lechowicz and Kyle Lieberman, youth coach; Mike Larson, youth leader; Sadie Cwikiel, high school girl athlete; Adam McCain, high school boy athlete; Pete Keibel, high school coach; East Jordan High School varsity football team, team of character award; Paul VanWagoner, official; Anne Petric, parent; and Dave Wallis, fantastic fan.

Nomination forms can be found on the Beyond the Scoreboard website at www.beyondthescoreboard.org/nominate-award-winner, or by contacting Renee Wyatt at (989) 858-1943.

Forms can also be emailed out by contacting Drew Kochanny at the Petoskey News-Review at sports@petoskeynews.com.

Members of the selection committee will select winners by May 1, with winners announced in the Petoskey News-Review later in May.

Latest honor

Charlevoix's Austin Putman added to his winter accolades with an honor recognizing his achievements off the court earlier this week. The Rayder senior earned individual academic all-state honors from the Basketball Coaches Association of Michigan after posting a 3.60 GPA in the classroom. The recognition comes on the heels of earning a spot on numerous Class C all-state teams from media outlets and coaching organizations across the state.

Charlevoix city races heating up

Decision '16

LONNIE ALLEN
 (231) 547-6558 - allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — November is shaping up to be a big election day in Charlevoix, with three city council seats and mayoral position up from grabs. Seven political hopefuls have met the April 19 deadline to be on the ballot for mayor and to represent seats in the 1st, 2nd and 3rd wards.

In the 1st Ward, which encompasses much of the city's north end, Bob Bergmann filed his petition to appear on the ballot. Bergmann will run against Janet Kalbfell. The two are vying for the seat held by Councilman Luther Kurtz, who is vacating it to run for mayor.

Bergmann served in the U.S. Army prior to his stint as a DJ at several Northern Michigan radio stations before becoming self-employed as a wedding DJ and he currently owns and operates Boogiebobs Records, an online used record store. Bergmann also is an alternate on the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Bergmann, 68, decided to run for the 1st Ward seat because he wants to give back to the city by serving the people of the town he lives in.

"I feel serving on (city council) is a way I can give back to the community I have lived in all my life," Bergmann said. "I have no agenda and as your councilman, I will listen to the people I represent."

Kalbfell, 61, has been a city homeowner since 1992 and became full time resident in 2015, after retiring from the state of Michigan after 30 years with the Department Health and Children who attend the SpringHill Day Camp on June 20-24 at the Charlevoix Community Reformed Church will be able to participate in fun activities such as this waterside.

SpringHill Day Camp comes to Charlevoix June 20-24

LONNIE ALLEN
 (231) 547-6558 - allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — In a couple months summer will begin and many parents will start to hear the dreaded cry, "I'm bored..."

But that's something parents won't have to worry about come June 20-24, or at least not that week, thanks to a coordinated effort between Charlevoix Community Reformed Church and Evert-based SpringHill Camp.

Though the church has hosted summer camps in the past, this camp is not your ordinary vacation Bible school, said Gail Cherry, church children's director.

"This is a community-wide faith and fun event that every child who is eligible to attend should experience," Cherry said.

Cherry also hopes this camp will reach more than just the children who attend the church.

"We want children throughout the county to have the opportunity to spend a week doing amazing activities and enjoying time with friends," Cherry said. "This camp will give them that chance while being able to spend the night, at home, in their own beds."

MIDDLE SEYMOUR

CHARLEVOIX — Local residents should be on the lookout for future Leader Dog in training, Charlevoix, to make her stop in town this summer. Just a little over three months old, Charlevoix, owned by Steve and Mary Landry, was named after the city because of it being one of their favorite destination spots.

The Landrys are a part of the long-standing organization Leader Dogs for the Blind in Rochester, Mich. The purpose of the organization is to empower people who are blind, visually impaired or deaf-blind with skills to aid them in a lifetime of independent travel, opening doors that may seem to have closed with the loss of sight through the use of a guide dog.

As part of the training process, the Landrys are going to bring Charlevoix to the area to complete some of her necessary training. Through everyday events like walking around downtown, Charlevoix will be learning skills such as stopping at curbs, avoiding obstacles and finding doors.

Fishermen request repairs to boat launch

LONNIE ALLEN
 (231) 547-6558 - allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — A boat launch that is in bad shape near St. Marys Cement on Lake Shore Drive could be repaired if costs remain reasonable.

The Charlevoix Township Board of Trustees will have Performance Engineering look at different plans and costs to make repairs to the boat launch that gives access to Lake Michigan after resident Rick Root spoke at the board's last meeting about its condition.

"The boat launch is in bad shape and hardly usable," Root said. "With the water levels rising in Lake Michigan there is a need to repair it."

Root said he took interest in the launch after individuals approached him at his business seeking advertisement in a visitor's guide.

"The launch is listed in that guide and on several websites as a place for boaters to put their boats into Lake Michigan," Root said. "But in reality that is not the case from looking at it."

Root believes many will use the boat launch if it was not in its present condition.

"There is a need for that launch," Root said. "When I fish Lake Michigan you have to put in at Perry Beach and you have to come all the way around to get on the lake. That's a 20-minute boat ride and I think more smaller boats would certainly use it if it was in better condition."

That was then in the Charlevoix CourierUnexplained fire has some in hot water with Fire Marshall

Editors Note: The year is 1931 and the name of the newspaper is the Charlevoix Courier. "That was then" is a weekly feature by the Charlevoix Courier that will take news headlines from the front page of a past Charlevoix Courier to share with today's readers. To read full articles visit charlevoixlibrary.org/charlevoix-history and click on the yearbooks and newspapers tab.

The front page of the Charlevoix Courier on April 22, 1931 had this very prominent headline at the top of the page Camp Manitou Destroyed by Fire along with State Fire Marshall Investigating and two smaller headlines to describe the fire, which destroyed all the buildings on a camp six miles south of Charlevoix on Friday, April 17, 1931. The fire was believed to be arson and was started around 3 a.m., reported the Charlevoix Courier.

The fire was so massive that the fire departments of East Jordan and Charlevoix were unable to get it under control before flames leveled six cottages, the large recreation building, dining hall, barn and other out buildings, according to the Courier. Caretaker Clyde Ogden and wife, who were occupying one of the cottages, first noticed the flames. Further investigation revealed several cottages in flames then the one in which they lived as well as the barn. They were able to remove only a few of their personal belongings," reported the Courier. The origin of the fire is a mystery, but Fire Chief Henry Marshall and Ross Alexander picked up two youths walking toward Charlevoix from Ironton as suspects. The two were brought to the county jail and questioned by Sheriff Dave Vaughan and placed under guard in the fire hall for further questioning. While J.C. Marshall, the guard, was absent for a moment the youth left the hall leaving a note stating they did not start the fire and hiked north. Vaughan picked them up at Mackinaw City as they prepared to catch a ferry to Michigan's Upper Peninsula. They were brought back to Charlevoix and gave their names and ages as Louis Flood, 16, and Robert McPherson, 17, both of Mears, Michigan, reported the Courier.

State Fire Marshall M.A. McKenna arrived from Lansing on Saturday to investigate the fire. "Both lads maintained their innocence of setting the fire," according to the article. "Though they confessed of breaking a window of a jewelry store in East Jordan," McPherson and Floods remained in custody as they awaited a hearing while McKenna turned his attention to Camp Manitou owner G. D'Amico, of Detroit, who arrived on Tuesday before the fire to see his investment with art director Lewis Stevens of Ann Arbor. "McKenna pointed out that $23,800 in insurance had been placed on the buildings in February, in addition to $12,000 carried locally. D'Amico stated he had taken out additional insurance on the advice of his bankers," according to the article. He was released once McKenna verified the camps worth. D'Amico stated he would rebuild the camp at once and rebuilding will be on a basis to allow expansion in the future to meet the needs of the camp program. The proposed project was given support and is looked upon with optimism by the locals. Its loss would have been a severe blow, according to the article.

Council discusses the use of miscellaneous business

LOUISE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix City Council addressed an agenda item about an agenda item at its meeting on Monday.

In order to help clear up confusion and give staff clear direction in the future the members of the council discussed miscellaneous business as a regular agenda item. The idea of the discussion was to make clear what this agenda item should be used for by city council, said City manager Mark Heydlauff.

"At the last City Council meeting, members Luther Kurtz and Shirley Gibson requested a discussion regarding how the council uses the Miscellaneous Business portion of the agenda," Heydlauff said. "Council seemed to agree that the agenda item should be revised."

The entire agenda format for City Council is prepared by the Rules of Procedure for City Council approved in 1996. The Rules of Procedure act as the bylaws for the Council and reflect requirements of the City Charter and the Robert's Rules of Order.

Miscellaneous business is not defined in the 1996 Rules of Procedures and in the past numerous city council have used the item as an point in the meeting to recognize different achievements in the community, requesting more information from City Staff, or taking significant action including making personnel changes or setting policy.

"I think this item has been abused by lots of council, none in particular, and I think its time to be revised to be something else," Gibson said.

Council member Bill Super-

Gibson

naw said the miscellaneous business issue is being brought up because council used miscellaneous business to reconsider and rescind the conservation easement ballot language in March.

"I think what is provoking this is the reconsideration thing on the easement," Supermaw said.

Kurtz disagreed and said he wanted to address the agenda because of Supermaw's attempt to halt the new park at Lake Michigan Beach not because of the conservation easement vote.

"Really what triggered this was the discussion about the jungle gym going in at Lake Michigan Beach not the reconsideration," Kurtz said. "My understanding was that discussion caused a lot of disruption in the staff and that was what I was hoping to avoid by having spontaneous motions and discussions in miscellaneous business."

Gibson also agreed that this is not about the reconsideration vote on the conservation easement.

"I have no problem if there is a majority on council that wants to rethink something and redo things," Gibson said. "I support a majority decision that is how a democracy works, but the public needs to know when we are going to do that. We should be transparent."

Council unanimously agreed to have staff work with the city attorney to revise the language in the City Council's Rules and Procedures to clear up the issues Kurtz and Gibson brought up about miscellaneous business.

The move was a positive step for the city and the council, Gibson said.

"We have a responsibility to be transparent to the citizens of this city and it appears the rest of council agrees with that," Gibson said.

Fire season builds during Wildfire Prevention Week

LOUISE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

Local fire chiefs are warning residents as warmer temperatures begin to build in the area conditions are ripe for grass fires.

The combination of low humidity, sunshine and winds dry vegetation that died over the winter that can be dangerous if people are not paying attention when burning yard debris.

Dan Thorp, Charlevoix Township Fire Chief — whose department provides fire service to Charlevoix, Hayes and Marion townships, including half of Norwood Township — said many people think the melted snow and spring rains have taken off the edge of wildfire danger, but that's not the case.

"Some of the grass fires we have had to deal with in the past are caused by someone burning debris who did not take proper precautions or obtain a burn permit," Thorp said. "The dried leaves, needles and brown grass from last year are still there and with the warm weather folks want to get out and clean up their yards. But they don't realize that all it takes is one strong wind gust catching an ember to ignite a grass fire."

Thorp said this is especially important to keep in mind while people clean up their yards.

"If you plan on burning

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources is using Wildfire Prevention Week to remind people to go to michigan.gov/burnpermit to check if burn permits are being issued in their area before burning any yard debris.

your yard waste," Thorp said. "You should check with the DNR to see if they are issuing burn permits in the area."

A person is required to get a burn permit prior to burning brush and debris in Michigan when the ground is not snow-covered. Residents in the northern Lower Peninsula and Upper Peninsula can obtain a free burn permit by visiting michigan.gov/burnpermit or by calling (866) 922-2876.

According to the Department of Natural Resources, which is responsible for wildland fire protection on 30 million acres of state and private land, April is when wildfires start becoming a problem. The DNR is using the state's annual observance of Wildfire Prevention Week, April 17-23, to remind the public about the dangers of wildfires. Most of the state's wildfires occur in April, May and June, and April is typically when the fires start becoming a problem, according to the DNR.

"Wildfire danger is typically highest during the spring," said Bryce Avery, acting DNR fire prevention specialist. "The dead grass and leaves from last year dry very quickly as days become longer, temperatures begin to rise, and humidity levels are often at their lowest points. Breezy conditions increase the danger, but even on calm days, one ember landing in some dead grass is enough to start a wildfire."

He added that if an area has moisture or showers in the morning, all it takes is the sun coming out coupled with a breeze for a fire to start in the afternoon.

In addition to obtaining a burn permit, the DNR recommends people take the following steps to help prevent wildfires:

— Pay attention to the fire danger in your area. Don't burn debris when conditions are dry or windy. Unsafe burning of leaves, brush and other debris is a main cause of wildfires.

— Clear away flammable material surrounding the fire so it won't creep into dry vegetation.

— Keep campfires small, and do not leave before they are fully extinguished.

— Have a shovel and water available at all times when you are burning. Be sure and douse fires with plenty of water, stir, and add more water until everything is wet.

— Do not cover a campfire with soil; it may simply smolder before coming back to life.

— Embers can reignite. Make sure they are out completely.

— Consider composting or mulching yard debris rather than burning it.

Historically, debris burning has been the No. 1 cause of wildfires in Michigan.

"Plan ahead and know your conditions before you light the match," Avery said. "Be safe and smart when it comes to fire. After all, fire prevention is everyone's responsibility."

'On Guard'

The Lake Charlevoix Association is looking for more than just a few good men, women, young adults and kids to join us in our Lake Guardian program.

For more than 40 years, Lake Charlevoix Association has been working with our more than 700 members, other environmental groups, property owners and governments to protect and enhance the quality of Lake Charlevoix. The Lake Guardian program reaches out to all businesses and individuals in the lake watershed to offer education and advice on how to protect our lake and avoid many problems which beset other Michigan lakes.

This effort needs to include all whom live, work, go to school and/or play in our watershed, not just those who live on or near the lake shore. Did you know that while our lake encompasses more than 17,000 acres, making it the third largest lake in Michigan, the lake's watershed stretches for more than 214,000 acres in multiple counties? This watershed includes not only Lake Charlevoix, but also the Jordan and Boyne rivers and six creeks — Stover, Horton, Loeb, Deer, Porter and Munroe — and their watersheds. Activities and development throughout this entire watershed ultimately affect the lake itself.

The Lake Charlevoix Association is encouraging all of its members, and others connected to this watershed, to participate in our Lake Guardian program and adopt "lake friendly" approaches to land management. Actions as simple as restricting chemical usage, maintaining septic systems, preserving natural areas, especially near the lake or its tributaries, avoiding beach sanding and shoreline excavation and others can go a long way to reducing potential harmful runoff from entering our watershed.

This should be a priority for all of us in our watershed. Whether you live on the lake or one of its tributaries, or in the surrounding countryside, or in one of the adjoining towns or villages, your actions can harm, or help, the lake we all hold so dear. The actions of your respective governmental body, be it township or city, can help in our effort to protect our lake. In short, our lake cannot take care of itself, and it will take the ongoing efforts of all of us throughout the watershed to preserve and enhance the most important asset of our area.

The Lake Charlevoix Association is pleased to have an opportunity to offer a monthly column — Guarding our Lake — in the Charlevoix Courier to discuss issues affecting our lake and our Lake Guardian program. We will be offering information on activities or actions that may be harmful to water quality, steps that can be taken by anyone in the watershed to avoid harmful impacts on the lake, and highlighting efforts by others that can serve as good examples of positive lake stewardship. The purpose of this information will not be to dictate the proper usage of property in the watershed, but rather to offer information on ways we all can enjoy our watershed, while still protecting and preserving it.

Our organization invites anyone with a stake in the quality of our watershed to join us in our efforts. Information about the Lake Charlevoix Association and our Lake Guardian and other programs can be found on our website at lakecharlevoix.org.

For those away from the area, our web cams will let you visit your lake, and its beautiful, or frozen, waters throughout the year. Our semi-annual newsletter and periodic e-mails can keep you informed of news relating to our efforts. You are invited to join us as an individual or business member of Lake Charlevoix Association, or as a Lake Guardian. While there are approximately 2,000 properties around the lake itself, there are more than 28,000 people throughout our watershed, and many more visitors to our area, and we need and welcome the efforts of all of you in our ongoing mission to protect one of our state's, indeed nation's, true natural treasures.

April is National Sexual Assault Awareness Month

The following guest commentary was written by Dena Sydow, marketing and communications director for the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan.

Since 2001, April has been recognized as National Sexual Assault Awareness Month to focus attention on this pervasive crime, educate communities and raise public awareness about sexual assault and how to prevent it. The cities of Charlevoix, Gaylord and the Village of Bellaire have proclaimed April as Sexual Assault Awareness Month. These communities join others throughout the nation making similar proclamations.

The 2016 Presidential Proclamation indicates we all have a role to play in preventing sexual assault: "It's on parents and caregivers to teach their children to respect and value others. It's on teammates, classmates, and colleagues to recognize sexual misconduct and intervene to stop it. It's on all of us to work for the change we need to shift the attitudes and behaviors that allow sexual assault to go unnoticed, unreported, and unpunished. During National Sexual Assault Awareness and Prevention Month, let us commit to being part of the solution and rededicate ourselves to creating a society where violence is not tolerated, survivors are supported, and all people are able to pursue their fullest measure of happiness without fear of abuse or assault."

The Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan (WRCNM) provides support, advocacy and counseling services at no cost to survivors of sexual assault in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego counties. Last year, the nonprofit organization provided direct services to 211 individuals affected by sexual assault, 52 of whom were age 17 or younger.

"Many thanks to the cities of Charlevoix, Gaylord and the Village of Bellaire for proclaiming April as Sexual Assault Awareness Month," said Chris Krajewski, Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan domestic abuse and sexual assault program director. "Their actions help raise awareness of this issue which will ultimately lead to creating safer communities."

For more information or support, call the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan's 24-hour crisis and information line at (231) 347-0082, (800) 275-1995 or visit wrcnm.org.

LETTERS to the editor

Consider condos over apartments

Editor: I hope the Charlevoix Planning Committee said "are you kidding me" when they were presented with the proposal for apartment units to be constructed on Division Street behind the American House.

Charlevoix does not need or require, by any means, any more apartments. What a terrible disruption that could be to the function and people at the senior facility. Just picture it in your own minds. Parking lot with car noise or motorcycles. Influx of children in that area, playing in parking lot, in street, disturbing residents at American House, etc.

The May Street apartments make the neighborhood there seem undesirable. The apartments on Garfield follow with the same inner-city type of appearance. If any more housing for lower income would be necessary, Condos might be a better idea. They require an association to ensure the upkeep and would be a better fit for our lakeside community.

We have been homeowners and residents of Charlevoix for half of our lives and want our town to continue to be called "Charlevoix The Beautiful" not Charlevoix Apartment Heaven.

Determination of terminology

Editor: I am responding to Shirley Gibson's guest commentary in the Charlevoix Courier dated March 18, 2016. I know Shirley as a councilperson and a neighbor. It is interesting to me that in her commentary she calls for more residents to participate in city government. How can a councilperson be effective when she calls current participants "a cast of characters?" She states this group does not represent everyone, it seems as though they do not agree with Shirley and her positions. She also comments that she receives several calls weekly from Charlevoix residents. The calls are either pro or con regarding city issues. As a constituent, I often wonder if opinions that differ from Ms. Gibson's are taken into consideration by her.

Charlevoix Journal, August 16, 1889 "Valuable Indian Relics A Rare Collection of Curiosities On Exhibition in Charlevoix A. T. Washburne & Co. have on exhibition at their store a lot of very interesting and valuable Indian relics. They were originally the property of Chief Sitting Bull, who was captured some years ago by Capt. Walter Clifford. (Clifford and his family were prominent residents of Charlevoix when not on duty. He was associated with General Custer, but was not at the Battle of Little Big Horn. Clifford later was stationed in North Dakota at Fort Buford and was the officer ordered to meet Sitting Bull when the chief came out of Canada with his people to surrender in 1881.) Mrs. Clifford was at the garrison when Sitting Bull was brought in, and secured these relics and brought them home to Charlevoix. Afterward, Mr. Washburne purchased them, and they have for some time been a great attraction at the store." The article goes on to list the items: one full-length buckskin beaded suit, worn only on "state occasions;" a complete feather head dress; a buckskin overshirt with a bull's head worked in colored beads on the front; a peace pipe of "hard red stone;" a knife war club and a stone war club; beaded leather pouches and tobacco pouches; a buffalo drinking horn; a beaded papoose pouch; plus many other artifacts. There is no record found to date as to what happened to the artifacts when Washburne went out of business.

Scovie's raises $3,700 for Hospice of Northwest Michigan

The second annual Scovie's Benefit for Hospice provided a dinner and a movie with the opportunity to browse silent auction items Saturday, March 26, in Charlevoix.

VI Keller and the Scovie's staff raised more than $3,700 for Hospice of Northwest Michigan. This success was because of the help, participation and donations of many in the community. The monies raised will be used to support patient care in local communities.

The event started out early with the silent auction opening for bids at 9 a.m. Amy Wieland, hospice executive director, welcomed bidders and attendees before the three-course, gourmet meal and before the movie "Awakenings" began.

to continue the silent auction bidding process during the evening's events. Hospice of Northwest Michigan thanks all the individuals, local merchants and organizations who made monetary donations, donations of time, and donations to the silent auction including those who came and participated in the fun. This annual event has grown since its inception last year and Scovie's has committed to another event the same time next year.

"Events like this reinforce the concept that Hospice is about making life moments happen, it's about living each day fully and it's about the community taking care of each other," Keller said.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office K9 officer Ezo will soon be receiving a protective vest thanks to a donation.

Police dog 'Ezo' to get protective body armor

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office police dog Ezo will soon be receiving body armor from Vested Interest in K9s, Inc. and Armor Express, county sheriff Don Schneider announced in a news release issued Thursday.

Schneider said Ezo will receive a bullet- and stab-protective vest thanks to a charitable donation from nonprofit organization Vested Interest in K9s, Inc., and manufacturer Armor Express, as part of the incentive program for which one free vest is awarded for every 15 vests purchased by the charity. Vests were donated to police dogs in Arizona, Arkansas, California, Delaware, Iowa, Illinois, North Dakota, South Carolina, Texas, and Wisconsin.

Vested Interest in K9s, Inc. is a 501(c)(3) charity located in East Taunton, Mass., whose mission is to provide bullet and stab protective vests and other assistance to dogs of law enforcement and related agencies throughout the United States. The nonprofit was established in 2009 to assist law enforcement agencies with this potentially lifesaving body armor for their police dogs officers. Since its inception, Vested Interest in K9s, Inc. provided more than 1,800 protective vests, in 49 states including Alaska and Hawaii, through private and corporate donations, at a cost of over $1.6 million. All vests are custom made in the USA by Armor Express in Central Lake. The program is open to dogs actively employed in the U.S. with law enforcement or related agencies who are certified and at least 20 months of age. New K9 graduates, as well as K9s with expired vests, are eligible to participate.

The donation to provide one protective vest for a law enforcement K9 is $1,050. Each vest has a value between $1,795 and $2,234, a five-year warranty, and an average weight of 4-5 lbs. There are an estimated 30,000 law enforcement K9s throughout the United States. For more information or to learn about volunteer opportunities, call (508) 824-6978. Vested Interest in K9s, Inc. provides information, lists events, and accepts tax-deductible donations of any denomination at www.vik9s.org or mailed to P.O. Box 9 East Taunton, MA 02718.

Ezo is a 20-month-old German shepherd from Slovakia. He was certified at Northern Michigan K9 in Clare in October with his handler, Deputy/Det. Benjamin Speigl. Ezo is certified in article searches, attack, narcotics, and tracking.

Schneider reports, "Ezo is doing a great job detecting illegal drugs. He is a tremendous asset for our office in helping to further assist us in protecting the citizens of Charlevoix County. We thank Vested Interest in K9s, Inc. and Armor Express for this generous donation and for helping to keep our K9 safe."

Court: Cities can lease drilling rights under parks without citizens' vote

ERIC FREEDMAN
Capital News Service

LANSING — Citizens have no legal right to vote on whether to approve leases for drilling for oil and gas under city-owned parks and cemeteries, the Court of Appeals has ruled.

A three-judge panel unanimously rejected a challenge by the nonprofit Don't Drill the Hills Inc. to a decision by Rochester Hills to lease underground oil and gas rights to one company and to allow another company to relocate an oil pipeline.

City attorney John Staran said the decision is significant to local governments across Michigan because the court found a lease is not a "sale" of parkland that would trigger a public vote.

"The court applied common sense and the plain and ordinary meaning of 'park' and 'open space,'" Staran said. "Park means park. Not the sky above and the subterranean minerals that are not part of the park."

But Don't Drill the Hills argued that the proper legal interpretation of "park" shouldn't be limited to the surface.

"The park is the whole real estate parcel, and they're saying a park is just the surface. If you extract this natural resource, which is then sold for a profit, then a portion of the property is gone because mineral rights are property," said Megan Barnes, a cofounder of the group.

Barnes also said the lawsuit was misinterpreted as a referendum on drilling in residential and school areas, but the legal battle was actually about citizens' right to vote.

The dispute involved two transactions:

In 2013, Jordan Development Co. obtained a five-year city lease to get oil and gas from beneath Nowicki Park, Tienken Road Park and Van Hoosen Jones Stoney Creek Cemetery. The lease prohibited the company from using hydraulic fracturing — or fracking — and from drilling on public land.

In 2013 and 2014, the city granted another company, Sunoco Pipeline, a "right of entry agreement" and an easement to replace an aging pipeline under Bloomer Park. It's a segment of an international pipeline from Sarnia, Ontario, through Michigan, Ohio and eastward.

The Don't Drill the Hills suit accused the city and the companies of violating a state law and a city charter provision requiring a public vote on sale of city park or cemetery land. The city charter also requires a public vote on converting parks from recreational or conservation uses.

An Oakland County judge dismissed the case without trial.

In upholding that decision, the Court of Appeals said, "A park is commonly understood in terms of the surface, and the Jordan Development lease only concerns subsurface oil and gas and does not appear to have any effect on the surface of parks or on any use of the park as a park."

"We detect no risk to the nature of the public park posed by the Jordan Development lease and no conversion of a public park to another use," the court said.

Staran, the city attorney, said that although the Jordan Development lease remains in effect, the company notified the city that it has abandoned plans to explore in Rochester Hills after a test well in neighboring Shelby Township proved unproductive.

The Court of Appeals said the Sunoco Pipeline replacement project wouldn't "alter the nature of Bloomer Park" and that the company's horizontal boring method "eliminated the need to dig a trench from the surface of the park."

Staran said that project, which installed new piping and straightened out some sharp angles to improve oil flow, is complete.

"You wouldn't have known they were there," he said, referring to Bloomer Park. "They didn't harm a single tree or blade of grass. There is no physical evidence they did anything."

Barnes, of Don't Drill the Hills, said the group is unlikely to appeal the court decision but may start a citizens' petition drive to amend the city charter to "more explicitly define 'park.'"

As for the appeals court decision, Barnes said, "This opens it up for other municipalities, without fear of repercussion or public outcry, to lease their parks for drilling, so long as there is no well-head on the park itself."

"Most parks in cities are valuable properties surrounded by homes and schools with higher property values. That's where our kids drive their bikes and we drive our cars," she said. "It's a little bit NIMBY (not in my backyard), but weighing the risks and benefits, residential areas are not for industrial use."

Kelsey's Lakeside Grille ready for summer

ANNIE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — On Ferry Avenue at Irish Boat Shop the boats are waiting expectantly in their blue shrink wrap for the 2016 summer season on Lake Charlevoix.

Next door, Tina and Dr. Jeff Wilder, owners of Kelsey's Lakeside Grille, are also looking forward to the up-coming months and a fourth successful summer season.

The summer menu is printed, a chef transition is in place and they're ready to go. As a matter of fact, this ambitious couple has several frying pans in the fire. In addition to owning and operating Kelsey's Lakeside Grille, they have recently sealed the deal to buy Leo's, a classic Petoskey bar, and will be taking over the management and running of the Rainbow Room restaurant at Hidden River Golf and Casting Club, a small restaurant in Brutus.

The Wilders both are retired from careers in health care, Jeff, an obstetrics and gynecology physician and Tina as a registered nurse. They've owned Kelsey's Lakeside Grille in Charlevoix since 2013 when they decided to do a career shift into the restaurant business. Jeff's parents and grandparents had been restaurateurs in the Manistee, Benzonia, Manton and Mesick area, so when the opportunity to become a third generation restaurant owner presented itself to Jeff in Charlevoix, the couple took the leap.

"We were looking to make a change," Jeff said. "The practice of medicine is changing and not always for the best. My dad always said, 'Don't go into medicine' but of course, I didn't listen then."

As for experience in the field, Jeff grew up washing dishes, making milkshakes and taking a stint as a fry cook in his parents' and grandparents' eateries. Tina was a waitress in college.

"But there's a lot more to owning and managing a restaurant than just working at one," Jeff said. "You have to learn about taxes and regulations, liquor licenses and payroll and how to manage your employees."

Kelsey's staffs between 25 and 40 workers at the restaurant depending on the season.

"We encourage open communication with our employees," Tina said. "Our door is always open."

Staffing is the biggest

Michigan ripe for ecotourism industry

YVONNE WICHTNER-ZOIA
Michigan State University Extension

Sustainable tourism is defined in a USA Today article as "the concept of visiting a place as a tourist and trying to make a positive impact on the environment, society and economy."

The article goes on to say, "A key aspect (of sustainable tourism) is respect for the people who call the location home, the culture and customs of the area, and the socio-economic system. While sustainable tourism is sometimes confused with ecotourism, ecotourism is actually only one aspect of sustainable tourism."

Ecotourism can be defined as the practice of traveling to natural places, which may include rural or urban areas, without damaging the environment. The ecotourism visitor supports sustainable tourism and conservation of the environment by leaving a location in exactly the same condition they found it.

Michigan author, Sally Barber coins the phrase "eco-explorer" to further describe the ecotourism visitor. In her book, "The Michigan Eco-Traveler: A Guide to Sustainable Adventures in the Great Lake State," Barber extends the definition of an eco-explorer as someone who "bends to the inner call of travel and recreate without negatively impacting ecosystems. (It is the combination of) the ecotourist, the responsible tourist, and the nature explorer all in one curious, adventurous package."

Barber emphasizes that responsible tourism is up to every traveler. An "eco-checklist," included in each chapter, can assist a traveler by creating awareness about a business' eco-policies as well as what the eco-explorer themselves can do to tread lightly and preserve Michigan's natural environment. Included are questions such as inquiring if the lead organization offers an interpretive program focused on resource protection? Or are soy-based oils and cleaning products used at the facilities? And, is there an aggressive recycling program?

Each chapter focuses on an outdoor theme (sailing, skiing, wildlife, golf, trails, etc.) and Barber identifies examples of standout ecotourism businesses located in Michigan. It is easy for the reader to learn more about these specific areas in Michigan and the 'eco-checklist' offers an eco-friendly lens from which to review any sustainable tourism experience.

The Michigan State University Extension tourism team offers a workshop, Understanding Tourism in Michigan Communities, which includes discussion about a variety of niche tourism markets, such as eco-tourism, nature-based tourism, heritage/cultural tourism, food-based tourism and voluntourism.

PETOSKEY — Builders and contractors in Northern Michigan will be lining up to interview and hire high school juniors and seniors during the Construction and Building Industry Job Fair from 1-2:30 p.m. on Monday, April 25, at the Emmet County Fairgrounds.

Institute and Preston Feather Building Centers.

"Builders and contractors in Northern Michigan are searching for high school juniors and seniors who are interested in construction and looking for summer employment," said Kelly Johnson, Char-Em ISD career/college readiness specialist. "This job fair is a great opportunity to connect students who are interested in construction with experts already in that field."

The Construction and Building Industry Job Fair gives students an opportunity to network with area builders and contractors, obtain job and internship information, receive an on-site interview, and accept summer employment that could lead to a full-time career.

Students interested in attending should contact their school counselor or Johnson at johnsonk@charemsd.org or (231) 582-8070.

Volunteer water quality monitors' training

The Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council is looking for help from volunteers in the community that are interested in learning about water quality and gaining hands-on experience through monitoring rivers and creeks in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Cheboygan counties. A free volunteer monitor training session will take place from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. on Saturday, May 14, at Watershed Council located at 426 Bay St., Petoskey.

The 4-hour training includes an overview of the program history and goals, monitoring protocols, sampling methods, and basic, aquatic, macroinvertebrate identification. The training also includes an aquatic invasive species section to teach volunteers how to identify and report any exotic species they come across while conducting monitoring activities. Any person or group willing to devote a small amount of time and energy to conduct simple stream checks in lower-depth streams on a bi-annual basis, in the spring and fall, can become a Volunteer Stream Monitor. No prior experience is necessary. All materials are provided.

Spring stream monitoring events will take place on the following dates:

- Training day is from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. on Saturday, May 14, at the Watershed Council office, 426 Bay St., Petoskey.
- Field day will be from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. on Saturday, May 21, at various local streams in Northern Michigan. During the field day, volunteers teams will collect a representative sample of aquatic macroinvertebrates and note general stream conditions at two sites. Materials for the field day are supplied. Waders are recommended.

- Indoor identification day is from noon-3 p.m. on Sunday, June 5, in room 335 of the Health Education and Science Center at North Central Michigan College. Samples that were collected during the field day are sorted and identified. Materials and microscopes to help identify the macroinvertebrates is provided.

Attending all three sessions is recommended, but not required. For reservations or more information, call Kevin Cronk at (231) 347-1181 or email kevin@watershedcouncil.org.

The Watershed Council's service area contains more than 2,500 miles of rivers and streams, including multiple blue-ribbon trout streams. With the assistance of volunteers, the Watershed Council is currently able to conduct monitoring at 43 sites on 16 different rivers and creeks, but that is only a small fraction of the waters that could be monitored. With additional citizen scientist volunteers, the Watershed Council can continue to expand the program to other streams. For more information, visit watershedcouncil.org.

Chamber orchestra hosting emerging artist competition

The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra will host the 2016 Charles F. Davis Emerging Artist Competition at 1:30 p.m. on Sunday, April 24, at the United Methodist Church at 1804 E. Mitchell in Petoskey.

This annual competition is open to students of piano, winds, brass, percussion, strings and voice between the ages of 14 and 19, who reside in Northern Michigan and attend schools located between the 45th Parallel and the Straits of Mackinac.

Eight years ago, the Chamber Orchestra sought a venue to encourage and promote young musicians in this area, vocal artists have recently been added; hence, this annual contest. The Emerging Artists Competition offers local youth an opportunity to showcase their talent while competing for a chance to perform with the orchestra, or in other orchestra-sponsored concerts. In addition, winners also receive a monetary award for first and second place.

This unique musical opportunity was named to honor Charles F. Davis after his untimely death in an automobile accident. He had been a member of the original youth orchestra, board member, frequent volunteer and vocal advocate for young musicians.

According to Dr. Robert Pattengale, he was "one of the prime movers in establishing this event."

The young musicians who have accepted this elite musical challenge this year include Alexander Bembien, Kaitlyn Buttigieg, Mikayla Cerrudo, Mackenzi Mier, and Isaac Wittenberg.

This competition is free and open to the public.

The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra produces live orchestral performances providing entertainment, education and inspiration for northern Michigan community. Support for the orchestra is provided by the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs, the National Endowment for the Arts, the Petoskey Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation, the Bay Harbor Foundation, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, the Frey Foundation and hundreds of individual patrons of the arts.

Char-Em ISD initiates disability support for parents

Parents of students with disabilities are invited to a special day of activities on Saturday, April 30, to help them "Find their Seat on the Journey through Special Education."

During the day, parents will participate in hands-on activities to help them build a support system, understand their role in engaging with their school and caregivers, and leave with tools to support the special education journey.

The free event will be held from 8:15 a.m.-3 p.m. at the Library Conference Center on the North Central Michigan College campus in Petoskey.

"Throughout the day, parents will learn how to unleash the potential they have to work with schools and obtain better outcomes for their student with a disability," said Diane Heinzelman, director of special education with Char-Em ISD.

"Attendees will hear from other parents about the success they have had with getting the right people and resources in place to support their child in school," she added.

One interactive session will allow parents to discover and explore nine big ideas for effective participation in the special education process. Parents will have the opportunity to contribute to the list based on their journey, and use the tools from this session in real life with their student.

"Parents will also have a chance to talk to other parents of students with a disability," Heinzelman said.

Beverages, snacks and lunch is provided and parents are encouraged to reserve their seat by calling (231) 582-8070. For more information, call Heinzelman at (231) 547-9947.

Mandala art awakens at the library

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Public Library is offering Sand Mandalas: How to Find Awakening in Letting Go, a two-part workshop from 1-3 p.m. on Friday, May 6 and 13, in the community room. Those interested to experience and learn about the art of the sand mandala are invited to take part in the instruction from professional artists Angeline D'Balentine.

The sand mandala is constructed as a vehicle to generate compassion, realize the impermanence of reality, and a social/cosmic healing of the environment. Workshop attendees will construct a sand mandala in the workshop and when finished, to symbolize the impermanence of all that exists, attendees will take the colored sand with them, and pour into a nearby river or stream where the waters will carry the healing energies throughout the world.

Instructor Angeline D'Balentine, a professional artist, designer and writer, received her Bachelor of Arts from Eastern Michigan University in imaginative writing and fine art, and her Master of Science from Full Sail University in entertainment business.

Angeline started her artistic career as a teenager when providing sheets of tattoo art to local tat boutiques. She had her first solo show at age 16, and went international in 2003 when two of her paintings were displayed in the UNSCO (United Nations for Middle East Projects for Peace) in Beirut, Lebanon. Her work has been sold in charity auctions and sold in galleries. Her work has also been licensed and sold commercially and domestically.

This series was made possible through a partnership with North Central Michigan College and space is limited. To register, call (231) 237-7340. The Charlevoix Public Library is located at 220 W. Clinton St., in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix earns 23rd Tree City USA designation

LOWME ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — For 23 years, Charlevoix has earned the honor of being a Tree City USA.

And little wonder: Look around you. Beautiful, large, old trees are everywhere, but the city is not content with leaving it at that, they continually plant new ones — knowing trees don't last forever.

"The city of Charlevoix has had a long commitment to having a tree-filled city and we are once again pleased to receive this recognition," said city manager Mark Heydlauff.

"Our efforts toward planting and maintaining our trees would not be possible without our dedicated staff and the volunteers on our Shade Tree Commission."

The award, bestowed by the Arbor Day Foundation, is given to towns dedicated to urban forestry. In order to earn the award, communities must have a tree care ordinance, a tree board, a comprehensive urban tree forestry program, and an Arbor Day observance or recognition.

"Tree City USA communities see the impact an urban forest has in a community first hand," said Dan Lambe, President of the Arbor Day Foundation. "Additionally, recognition brings residents together and creates a sense of community pride, whether it's through volunteer engagement or public education."

According to The Arbor Day Foundation, more than 3,400 communities have the distinction of being a Tree City USA.

Trees provide multiple benefits to a community when properly planted and maintained.

They help to improve the visual appeal of a neighborhood, increase property values, reduce home cooling costs, remove air pollutants and provide wildlife habitat, among many other benefits, Lamb said.

The Charlevoix Shade Tree Commission is one of the groups instrumental in keeping Charlevoix up to date with an effective urban forest management plan.

"We have a very active shade tree commission," said member John Campbell. "We meet with our city manager and street department for our current and long range planning on the planting of 100 trees each year."

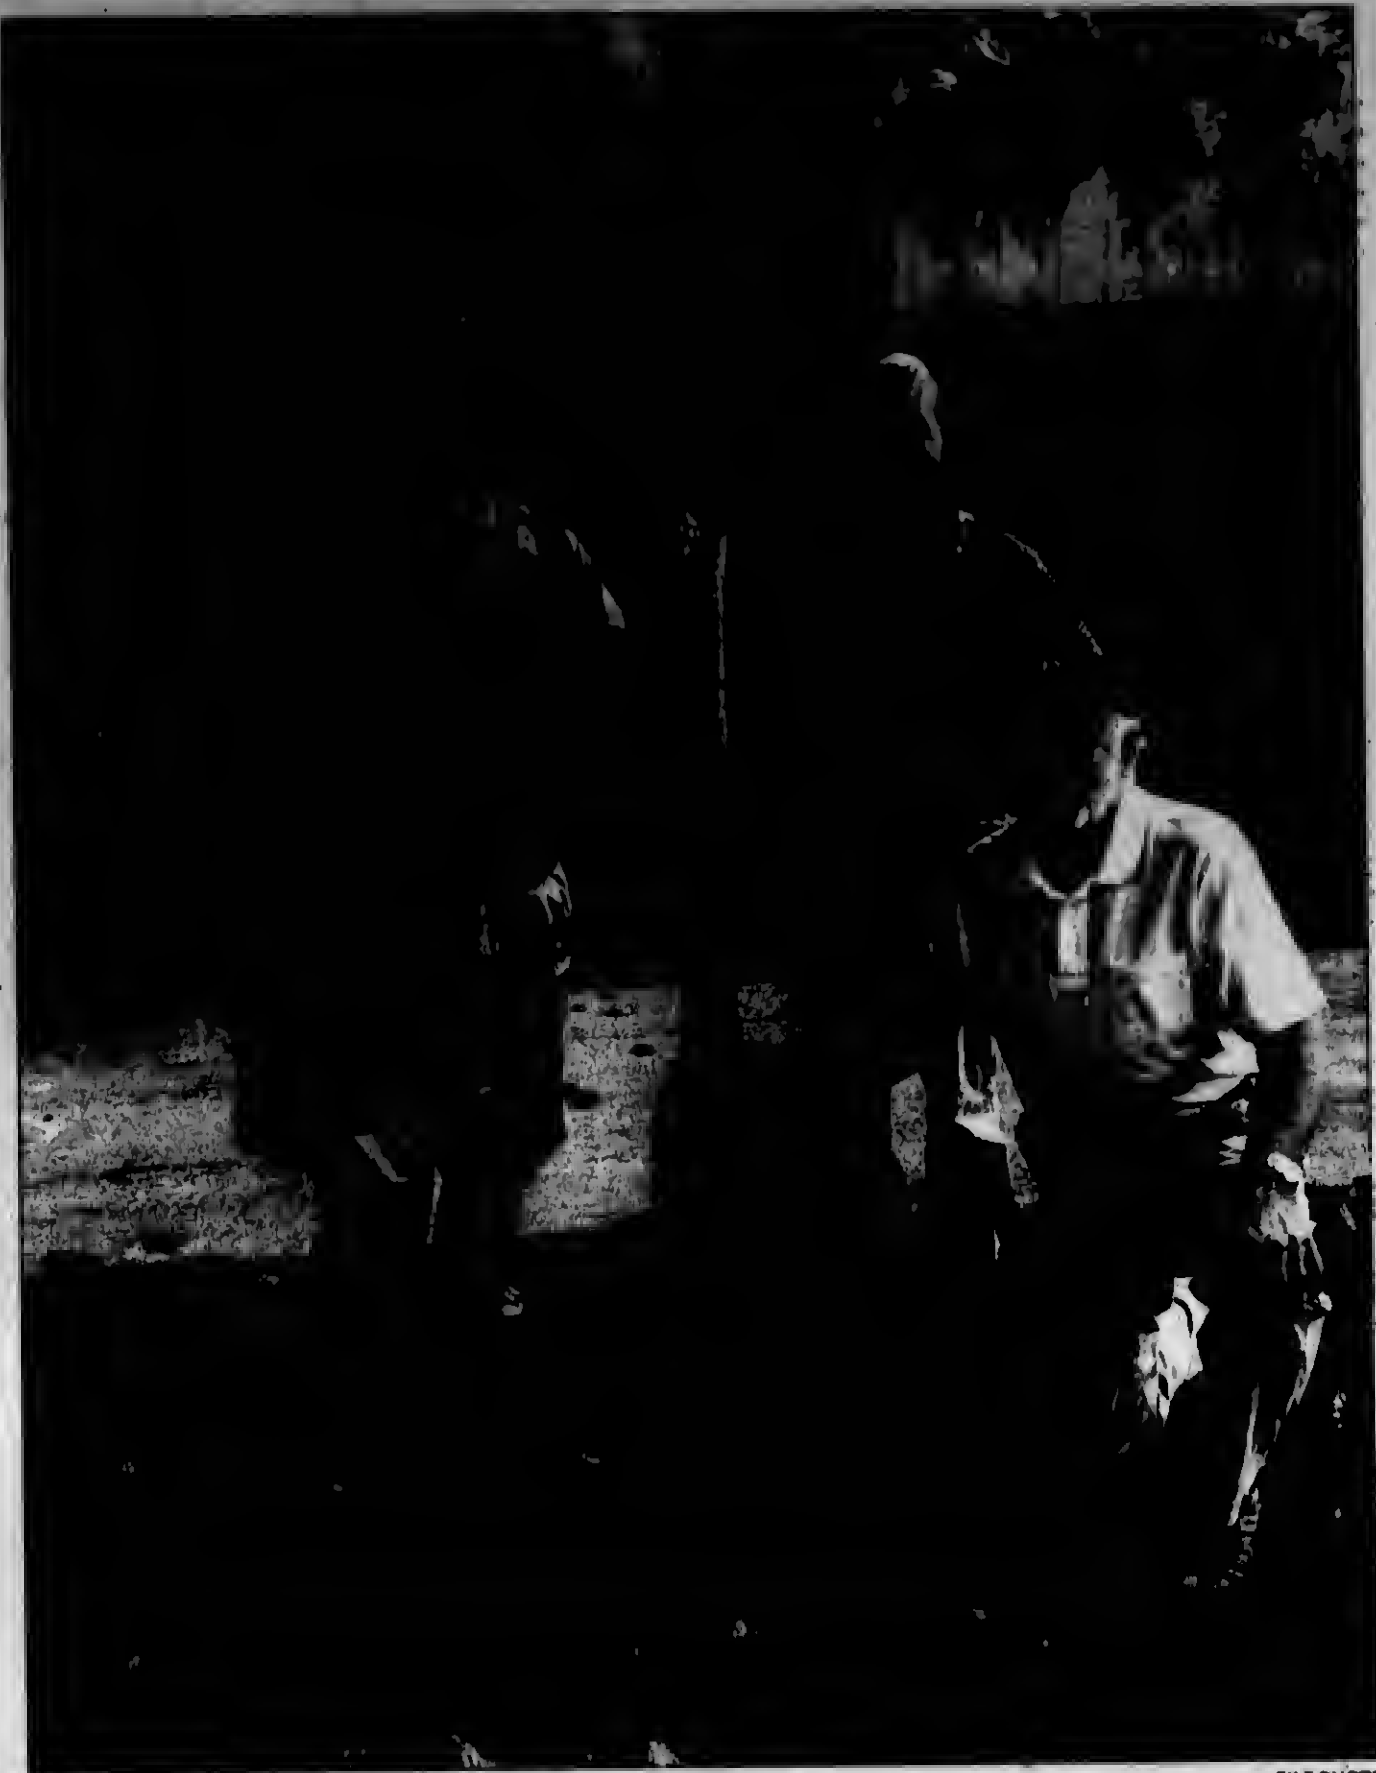

This year the plan is to add 100 trees to the southwest section of the city.

The commission also has an active tree removal plan for older and dying trees along with a planting policy to address overhead wires, buildings and other obstacles that could be a problem as trees grow.

"Tree planting in the city involves lots of planning," Campbell said. "We even have a trimming policy."

Some of the other programs include a diversified tree species planting to prevent large die outs from disease and invasive species, Campbell said.

"This year we instituted a new program that will manage and inventory the trees and plants at Lake Michigan Beach and Mount McCausa parks," Campbell said.

Charlevoix was designated Tree City USA in 1993. Charlevoix has been named a Tree City USA for 23 consecutive years. The Charlevoix Shade Tree Commission chair John Campbell (left) and commission member Ken Polakowski (right) and Department of Public Works superintendent Pat Elliott (center) gather next to one of the 100 trees planted by the city in 2015.

Smith touts 'Friendly Fungi'

Marilynn Smith, of Petoskey, spoke to the Charlevoix Area Garden Club on April 12 about fungi. Smith is a local mycologist with an Masters of Science from the University of Iowa in mycology; she has done research at the University of Vermont and the University of Michigan. She has traveled the world studying mycology and has taught at the high school and college levels. Beyond the spring-favorite morel mushroom, she explained how plants and mushrooms work with each other to their mutual benefit. The edible part of mushrooms are more like the fruit, with the living fungus being underground or embedded in the host. Fungi do not create chlorophyll, nor do they have microscopic cell-structure that would categorize them with true plants. Although queried by the members, Smith did not reveal any special morel-rich sites.

The hostess committee, headed by Carolyn Navarre, assisted by Cecilia Bustos, Susan Flanders, Joanne Hawkins, Ann Hollis, Diane McMahon and Madison Ramsey, supplied sweet treats and floral table decorations.

Also at the meeting Carrie Minch displayed a certificate of recognition from the Michigan Department of Transportation for the club's 25 years of service in the Adopt-a-Highway Program. She announced that the first pick-up of the season will begin with a safety presentation at 9 a.m. on Monday, April 25, at the First Congregational Church.

Human Services. She is a registered dental hygienist and her last position with the department was with appeals. Kalbfell currently works part-time for the Round Lake Gallery and decided to run city council after hearing Kurtz was vacating his seat to run for mayor.

"I liked the direction Luther was taking with council and I would like to continue to make Charlevoix better," Kalbfell said.

She believes having younger people combined with the experience of older people working together on council will bring results.

"I understand experience is good to have when on council, but we need the mix of experience and youthful ideas going forward," Kalbfell said.

Kurtz and Shirley Gibson are the only two residents who have filed petitions to run for mayor, after Gabe Campbell chose not to seek reelection.

Kurtz is finishing up his first two-year term on the council and believes he can do more as a relationship builder with the city, townships, businesses and its residents than he could do as a council member.

"I hope to continue our collaborative progress with the surrounding townships, our efforts in developing a business and resident friendly government, and further our progress toward a positive Charlevoix," Kurtz said.

Gibson is pleased to have another mayoral candidate in the race.

"The voters should always have a choice in any election," Gibson said. "I am glad someone else is running for mayor. I encouraged my opponent to run against me so there would be a choice in this election. We all love this town and as mayor I intend keep moving Charlevoix in a positive, forward direction that includes all the people of this city."

In the 2nd Ward, Bill Supernaw is nearing the end of his first two-year term and also will seek reelection in November, but said he has not determined the reason he seeks reelection.

"(Why I am running) is a good question," Supernaw said. "I am trying to figure that out myself."

Thomas Oleksy has filed his petition to run against Supernaw for the 2nd Ward City Council seat.

The 71-year-old Oleksy is a Charlevoix native and served from 1963 to 1967 in the U.S. Navy as an electrician. Upon his leaving the armed forces he worked for 40 years as an electrician for the Medusa Cement plant and was part of the cement company transitions through the years before retiring from St. Marys Cement.

"I saw a lot of changes over the years," Oleksy said. "There is quite a history in that plant."

Oleksy decided to run for the city council seat because of his father, Frank Oleksy, was an avid attendee to city council meetings. His late father's interests lead Oleksy to make the decision to represent the 2nd Ward constituents.

"My father, Frank, never missed a city council meeting and I always was interested in city government," Oleksy said. "I thought a lot about running and decided it was time for me to serve the city, if the people will elect me."

Councilman Shane Coie also filed to run for reelection the city's 3rd Ward. He is running unopposed for his fifth term on city council and believes the city council is in a good place.

"I think council works well," Coie said. "I want to keep that running because I think we've done a lot of good."

LEADER

"With Charlevoix, like the six future Leader Dog puppies we raised before her, we will take her most everywhere we go," said Steve Landry. "Restaurants, church, stores, etc. not only exposing her to things she might encounter as a guide dog, but training her with all the basic commands she will need to know before having her formal training as a guide dog."

This part of her training will allow her the ability to learn how to focus on the task at hand. When a Leader Dog is working it has a lot of responsibility and must not be distracted. Touching, petting, or even something as simple as making eye contact with a working dog could cause them to lose focus on the task at hand. With so many rules to follow and such rigorous training, one of the questions the Landrys deal with the most is whether or not Leader Dogs enjoy their jobs.

"These dogs change lives forever as many of our clients can testify to," Landry said. "Guide dogs, as well as other service dogs, are very happy doing the work they do and when they are not working that enjoy playtime at home like just like other dogs do. Leader Dogs are educated in the same way as many pets, with lots of repetition and positive reinforcement."

With the training process still taking place at home, the Landrys are looking forward to coming back to their favorite vacation destination and spending time getting Charlevoix out and about to places like the farmers market, Round Lake, and the bike trails.

Charlevoix is one of the many dogs that the Landrys have trained some even travel the world to reach new owners. The other question the Landrys get asked most often is regarding being able to give up the puppies once they've had them for a year.

"It's very hard to give them back as we grow to love them more with each passing day," he said. "We have found that getting busy raising another puppy right away helps take the sting out of saying good bye."

Anyone interested in raising a puppy for Leader Dogs for the Blind can get more information at leaderdog.org.

Charlevoix Township supervisor Chuck Center has been in contact with Jim Malewitz of Performance Engineers about a plan for the boat launch.

Engineers will make contact with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources to see what needs to be done before moving forward, Center said.

"Jim has agreed to look into the launch for us," Center said. "He will get us a quote on fixing the launch to make it usable for boaters."

Treasurer Theda Williams said she believes that when the township put together a parks master plan it included quotes on the boat launch.

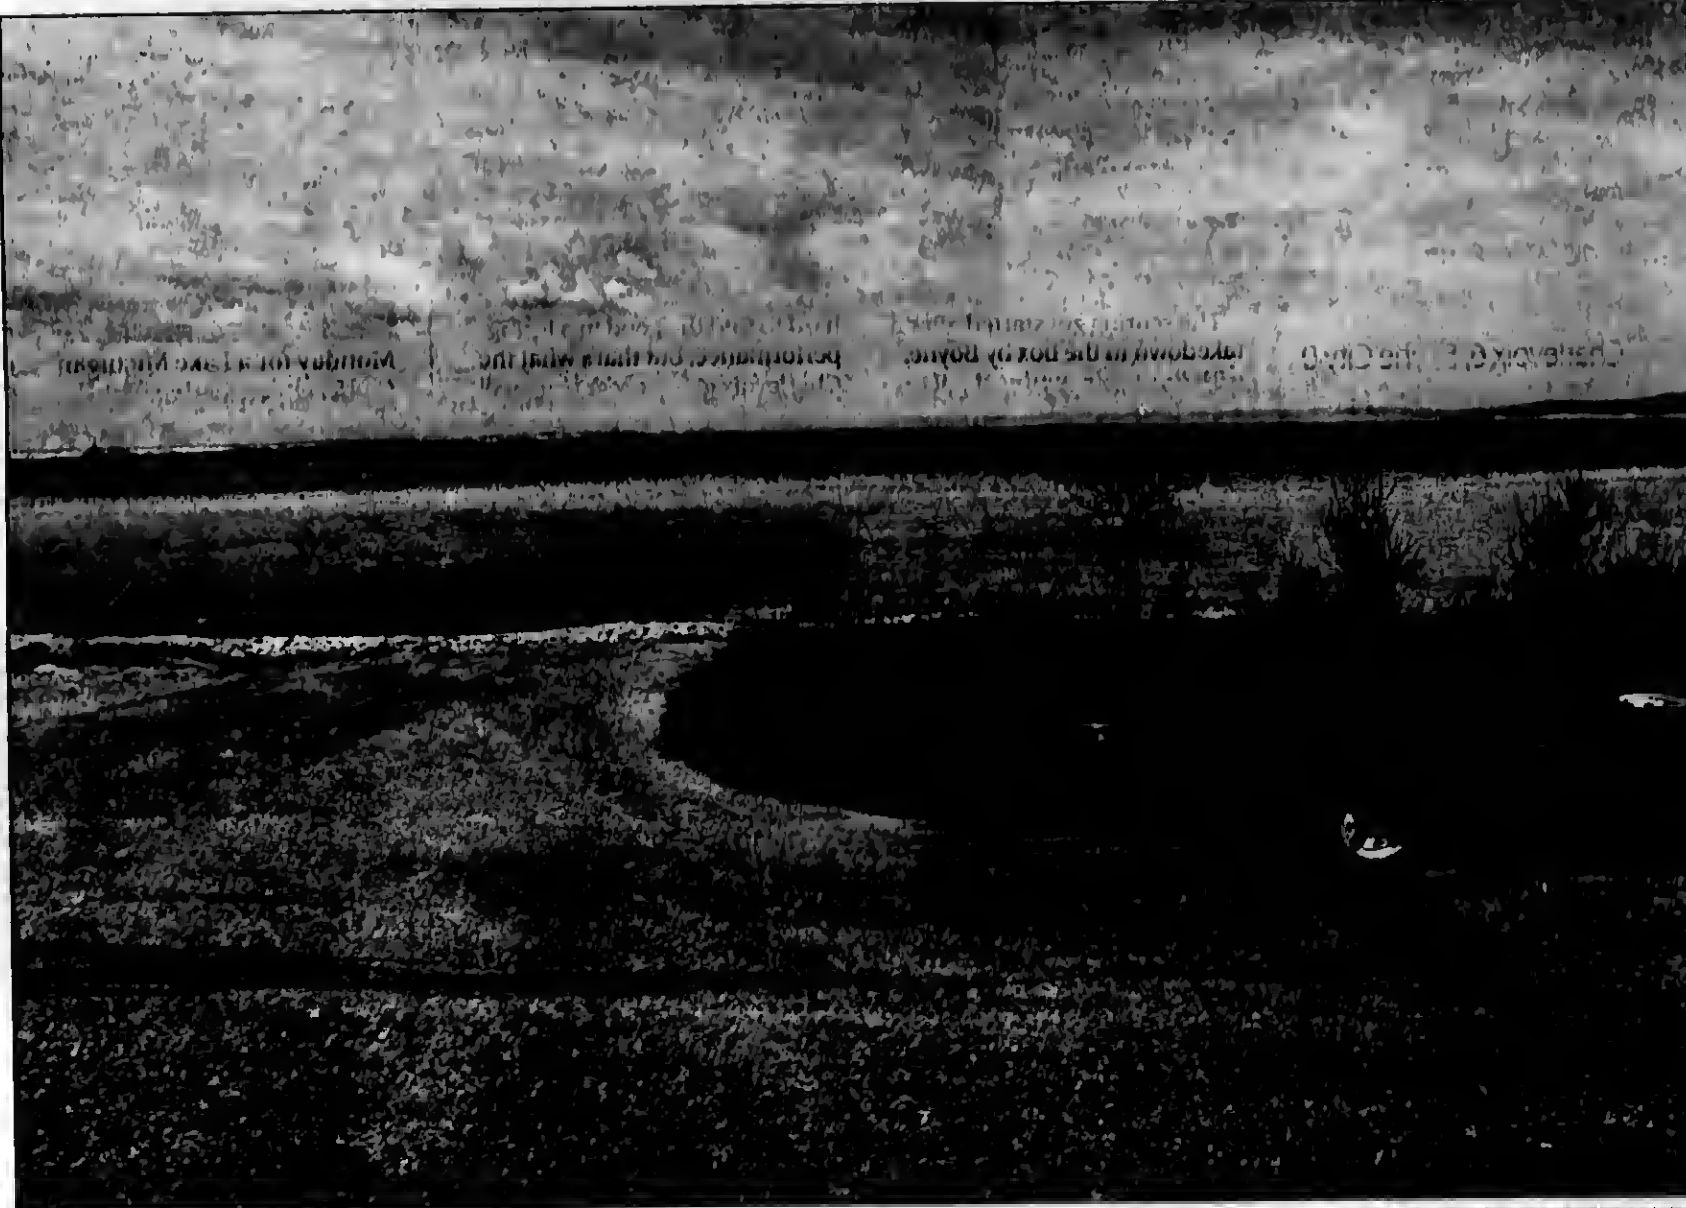

"I believe at the time we did the plan it was going to be very expensive to repair this launch," Williams said.

Center expects the board will know more about costs of repairs and if anything can be done at its May meeting.

"We want a professional quote on the restoration of this launch," Center said.

Root hopes the township board will do something to make the boat launch more usable for area and visiting boaters.

"I would like to see something done with it to bring it back to a usable condition," Root said.

DAY CAMP

camp for children who have completed kindergarten through fifth grade. The program is designed for children with varied abilities. All camp activities integrate faith and fun through age-appropriate large and small group interactions involving music, dancing, games, skits, crafts, and Bible teaching. High-adventure activities include archery, bungee, trampoline, climbing wall, giant swings, rope ladder, and bounce house slip-n-slide and waterslide. All camp activities are onsite at the Community Reformed Church from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

This year's camp will be the largest camp the church has ever hosted, said church volunteer Patti McCreadie.

"We don't want this camp to be a CRC thing,

We want this camp to be a community and beyond thing," McCreadie said.

"That is the idea of SpringHill coming because we want to get that extension of children from outside of our community to experience a camp that is close to home."

The cost of the camp is $189, but those who register before May 1, will receive a $20 discount. Scholarships are available and organizers are requesting help from the community, so every child that wishes to attend camp will be able to do so.

"It is our desire that no child miss out on a SpringHill experience because of financial circumstances," McCreadie said.

Financial support is based on need and not simply on a cut and dry income level. Scholarships are available along with the opportunity for people to sponsor a child to attend camp. Eligibility requirements will vary, and financial hardship, as well as other factors, will be taken into consideration.

"We want families to know that the SpringHill camp is coming to Charlevoix and that funding is available," McCreadie said.

Organizers would like to see a great number of kids sponsored by increasing awareness of this meaningful event, McCreadie added.

"We are hoping that other organizations and churches would also sponsor their own kids to attend the camp or help send a child from the community to camp," McCreadie said. "Register your children, grandchildren, nieces and nephews so no child eligible to attend will miss this opportunity."

It's been a busy start to the season for the Charlevoix girls soccer team, which is 2-2-1 after playing five games in six days, starting last Wednesday against Boyne City.

Charlevoix 6, Boyne City 0

CHARLEVOIX — It's been a long road back to the soccer field for Kelsey Engstrom.

And the Charlevoix girls' soccer team couldn't be happier she's returned.

Coming off of a standout sophomore campaign in 2014, Engstrom missed all of last season with a knee injury, making Wednesday's season opening matchup with Boyne City her first game in a Charlevoix uniform in two years.

She certainly made up for lost time, though, scoring three goals and adding an assist in a 6-0 victory over the Ramblers.

Engstrom wasn't the only one coming off of a torn knee, either, as sophomore forward Rachel Nesburg spent the fall and winter seasons recovering from her own knee injury and made her presence felt in the win with a pair of goals herself.

The scoring got started after a takedown in the box by Boyne, with Engstrom getting the Rayders started on a free kick goal, then minutes later, senior Kylee Scholten sent a crossing pass to Nesburg for a 2-0 lead less than 10 minutes in.

Sophie Herboldsheimer finished off a pass from Engstrom for goal three, then Engstrom made it a 4-0 game at the half, booting a pass out of the air from Nesburg.

In the second half, junior Isabel Hess set up Nesburg for her second goal to make it a 5-0 game, then Hess gave Engstrom the hat trick for her third goal of the night.

Grace Sutherland record three saves in goal for Charlevoix, splitting the win with freshman Emily Hinkley.

Elk Rapids 4,
Charlevoix 1 (OT)

CHARLEVOIX — It's always hard to find the good in a losing performance, but that's what the Charlevoix girls' soccer team will have to do.

The Rayders' winning streak against Elk Rapids came to a halt on Thursday, as the Elks pulled out a 4-1 overtime victory, dropping Charlevoix's record to 1-1 on the season.

It was the first loss the Rayders had suffered to Elk Rapids since the 2013 campaign, ending a six-game advantage over the Elks.

"Both teams were always motivated to play one another,"

CHARLEVOIX — Through Charlevoix's first four games, it's become clear that Garrett Seese was ready for baseball season to begin.

The Rayder sophomore is making the most of his first varsity season with the club, in just four quick outings.

After going 2 for 4 with a pair of doubles and then 4 for 5 with three runs batted in over the weekend, Seese showed up big for Charlevoix once again on Monday against Rudyard.

The Rayders pulled in a 10-0 win over the visiting Bulldogs, thanks in part to Seese on the mound, as he pitched four scoreless innings, while allowing one hit and six walks. He'd also strike out four in the game.

At the plate, Seese added a 2 for 3 clip with one RBI, while bringing in his third double BOYNE CITY — Track and field is off to a later start than usual for area programs, but that hasn't stopped the Charlevoix boys and Harbor Springs girls squads. In particular, from hitting the ground running.

Both the Rayders and Rams beat the field at Monday's LMC track quad hosted by Boyne City, a meet that served as the season opener for all three programs.

On the boys side, Charlevoix swept all four relay races, winning the 3,200 meter relay in 8:45.60, the 800 relay in 1:39.18, the 400 relay in 47.30 and the 1,600 relay in 3:47.21, and took first in six individual events to score 98 points and beat runner-up Harbor Springs' 71 points.

Jared McLean won both the 200 dash (23.86) and 400 dash (51.70) to lead the Rayders, and Oliver DeYoung took first in the 110 hurdles (18.11) and the 300 hurdles (47.09) as well.

Malcom Williams also won the long jump for Charlevoix (18-foot-10), edging Boyne City's Tarin Bell by a half inch for first place, and Noah Carson also won a close race in the 800 run (2:11.11), beating Harbor Springs freshman Jeremy Kloss by just over a second.

Luke Buday took second (55.31) and Jacob Bondie third (56.35) between McLean in the 400 dash for the Rayders, David Ritter took second in the 1,600 run (5:01.44), and John Pischner took second in the 3,200 run (10:39.97).

Bondie also added a fourth place finish in the 200 dash (25.10), Tyvin Whittaker took fifth in the 100 dash (12.51) and Ryan Erskine took fifth in the 1,600 run (5:17.13).

In the field, Justin Bond took second for Charlevoix in the discus (110-8) and fifth in the shot put (38-5), Eric Smith took second in the high jump (5-4), and DeYoung took second in the pole vault (9-0).

Addison Bemis took third in the pole vault (8-0) and Nick Bradley took third in the long jump (16-9.5) as well for the Rayders.

On the girls side, Harbor Springs pulled out a win led by a strong performance in the field, scoring 81 points to top runner-up Boyne City's 75.

Charlevoix finished with 37 points, led by Izzy Witthoef, who won both the 100 dash (13.6) and the 200 dash (29.34), and also helped Charlevoix claim a first-place finish in the 800 relay (2:01.45).

Olivia Jeakle took third (20.00) and Emma Kane fifth (21.23) in the 100 hurdles for Charlevoix, Sydney Whitley took third in the 300 hurdles (58.61) and Cheyenne Scott took fourth in the 400 dash (1:17.39).

In the field, Lukila Witthoef finished third in the long jump (12-0) and Alexa Shafer fifth in the discus (53-2.5).

Charlevoix will be running at the annual Ram Scramble on Friday in Harbor Springs for their next meet.

The season is just underway, but the Charlevoix junior varsity baseball team has already been busy, getting in six games on Friday, Saturday and Monday to open the season 4-2.

Opening the season last week, Charlevoix traveled to Traverse City Central to take on the Trojans' JV squad, dropping both games 6-3 and 13-3.

In game 1, Nathan Pearl led Charlevoix with a single and two RBIs, and Spencer Haan, Josh Carlson and Michael Webb each added a single, with Collin Davis taking the loss despite giving up only one earned run.

In game 2, Webb and Michael White had Charlevoix's only hits, while Haan added an RBI. Adam Hybi struck out two and Carlson took the loss in relief.

The next day, Charlevoix traveled to Evert for a doubleheader against the Wildcats, winning 7-5 and 17-8.

Davis earned the win in relief in Game 1, pitching five innings with five strikeouts and three walks, and added an RBI single at the plate.

Haan went 2 for 4 with an RBI, Michael Pearsall, Jacob Harrod and Ronnie DePotty each added an RBI single, and Carlson finished with two RBIs.

In Game 2, Charlevoix exploded at the plate, led by Haan, who finished 1 for 4 with a double and six RBIs.

Webb went 3 for 5 with an RBI, Pearsall went 2 for 3 with an RBI, Davis went 2 for 4 with two RBIs and Mark White finished 2 for 3 with two RBIs as well for the Rayders, and Pearsall picked up the win on the mound with Tre Hart pitching in relief.

On Monday, Charlevoix took two from the Petoskey freshmen at home, winning the first game 6-5 in seven innings thanks to a complete game effort from Hybi, who struck out seven to earn the victory.

Pearsall finished 2 for 4 with two RBIs, Carlson went 2 for 3 with an RBI, White and DePotty each doubled and Webb and Hart added singles for the Rayders in the win.

In Game 2, Charlevoix rolled to an 11-2 win, as Carlson went 3 for 3 at the plate with two doubles and two RBIs, Hybi went 3 for 3 with three RBIs and Davis went 2 for 2 with an RBI.

Hart earned the win on the mound, striking out five, walking none and giving up nine hits.

The Rayder JV hosted Suttons Bay on Wednesday before traveling to Kalkaska on Friday for their next outings.

said Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten. "It's a great rivalry, kids look forward to it, and I think they step it up for these matchups. In the past we usually go to overtime, it's a pretty typical matchup that we do go to overtime, unfortunately, we came out on the losing end, but Elk Rapids is tough."

"We've had some great matchups with Elk Rapids. We've had a really good run, and it was the kind of thing you know is not going to last forever."

The Elks never trailed during the contest and once overtime began, they controlled the tempo from start to finish knocking in three goals to pull away from the Rayders and improve to 2-0 on the season.

Before the game started, the Rayders were dealt a blow to their lineup, when junior goalkeeper Grace Sutherland went down with an injury during the pre-game warmup.

With Sutherland sidelined, Charlevoix turned to freshman Emily Hinkley, who made her first career start and recorded several saves to keep the Rayders within striking distance for most of the game.

Despite allowing three goals in the overtime period, Scholten was pleased with the way his freshman goalie responded to the unusual turn of events.

On the defensive effort of Hinkley, the Rayders stayed close and trailed by one goal until late in the second half when senior Kylee Scholten tied the game with a free kick that bounced off the top of the goalpost and crept in over the diving hands of Elk Rapids' goalie.

able to bounce back after adversity hits can propel a team forward as a season progresses.

That's what the Charlevoix girls soccer team was able to do Saturday, when the Rayders tied 1-1 with defending Division 4 state champion Grandville Calvin Christian following a 5-1 loss to Muskegon West Michigan Christian.

Sophomore Rachel Nesburg scored both goals for the Rayders, who now sit at 1-2-1 on the season.

After the breakdown against WMC, the Rayders found themselves in comeback mode again against Grandville Calvin Christian.

However, the Rayders were able to salvage the weekend with Nesburg's second goal, which came off of an assist from senior midfielder Sophie Herboldsheimer that dropped over the Squires defense and into the back of the net.

Against WMC, the Rayders scored first, but after taking a 1-0 lead into halftime, WMC's offense exploded for five goals, putting the game out of reach.

Freshman goalie Emily Hinkley was in goal for the Rayders starting her second and third start in place of junior Grace Sutherland, who continues to be sidelined with an injury.

Charlevoix 5,

KALKASKA — The Rayders started slow but took care of business on the road on Monday, besting Kalkaska 5-0 for another Lake Michigan Conference win.

Five different players scored for Charlevoix, with Abbey Scholten breaking a scoreless tie 14 minutes in off a pass from Kelsey Engstrom.

Isabel Hess and Raigan Novotny each scored a goal within the next 11 minutes to give Charlevoix a 3-0 lead heading into the half, and Rachel Nesburg and Sophie Herboldsheimer each scored in the second half to add insurance for the Rayders.

Emily Hinkley earned the shutout win in goal for Charlevoix (2-2-1, 2-1 LMC) which hosts rival Harbor Springs on Thursday at 4:30 p.m. for its next game.

fourth, with Jake Seger and Jordan Adkins adding two hits in the game, with Adkins knocking in two runs.

Austin Putman singled and drove in one, while Colin Smith and Brad Klinger each stole two bags.

In game two, the Rayders and Bulldogs played to a 4-4 tie, with each team putting up two runs in the opening frame.

Christian Matye received the ball on the hill, going all five innings, with three hits and four walks allowed, striking out four.

Putman, Seger and Matye all singled twice, with Seger and Putman adding an RBI each.

The Rayders (2-1-1) next take the field on Wednesday April 20, when they open Lake Michigan Conference play by hosting Grayling.

Charlevoix will then continue their non-conference tour to begin the season on Friday, April 22, when they travel to Johanneburg-Lewiston.

Charlevoix 7-16
Evert 13-4

EVART — The Rayders got their bats going in their first action of the season to split a high-scoring doubleheader with host Evert on Saturday.

In the first game, Charlevoix jumped out to a 5-1 lead, but a 10-run third inning allowed Evert to pull away for the 13-7 victory, while in the nightcap sophomore Colin Smith pitched well for the Rayders and Charlevoix cranked out 13 hits to roll to a 16-4 win.

Hunter Cox took the loss in Game 1, while Smith earned the win in Game 2. At the plate, Garrett Seese went 6 for 9 with two doubles and three RBIs to lead Charlevoix, Austin Putman went 5 for 8 with three RBIs, and Smith went 4 for 8 with two RBIs and a double.

Jake Cox had an RBI single in each game, and Jordan Adkins was 2 for 4 with a double and a RBI in Game 1.

In Game 2, Jake Seger also went 3 for 5 with a RBI and Hunter Cox added a two-run single.

"We played well, especially against a team that already had six games under their belt," Charlevoix coach Nick Vuilleumier said. "We showed our youth at times and we've got a lot to work on, but I was happy with how we responded to the loss and bounced back in the second game."

Charlevoix (1-1) hosts Rudyard today, Monday, for its next doubleheader.

Robert Bridge Memorial Park building

DDA OKs contract for building improvements

Renovations expected to be completed by June

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — People coming and going from the businesses located in the Robert Bridge Memorial Park building will notice a vast improvement to the interior portions of the building since renovations began earlier this year on the walls and officials say there are more changes coming.

On April 22, the Main Street/Downtown Development Authority board approved spending $9,248 to make upgrades to the restroom lighting fixtures, floors and sinks utilized by the building's tenants and customers. The repairs come from a short list of immediate building needs comprised by the board's facilities committee, said Annie Doyle, Main Street executive director.

"It was pretty clear that an assessment was required on what needed to be done in the building," Doyle said. "The committee had a couple of meetings on site we did a walk-through several times to determine the maintenance needs for our tenants."

Members of the facilities committee met with contractors earlier this month to determine CHARLEVOIX — Earl Young history is about to get a helping hand in Charlevoix.

The Charlevoix City Council unanimously approved an ordinance at its regular meeting on April 18 to designate the Earl Young homes along the 300 block of Park Avenue and portions of Clinton and Grant streets as a historical district.

"These homes are an integral part of the Charlevoix landscape and our tourism economy," said Shirley Gibson, a member of the city council. "I'm pleased to see a plan in place that protects these landmarks."

Known throughout the world as "the mushroom houses," Young used massive glacial boulders, limestone, and fieldstone to create the fascinating structures he built through the mid-20th century.

These iconic stone homes attract thousands of visitors each

Festival preparations under way

Donors, volunteers key to Venetian week success

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Boasting festivities that include such uniqueness as the annual boat parade, spectacular fireworks displays and AquaPalooza, not to mention music stars providing free, live entertainment each night, it's no wonder why many refer to Venetian Festival as the best event in the region.

But to its organizers, it's also a comprehensive team effort.

"Let's just say this," said Dan Barron, a member of the festival's board of directors. "We begin discussing the next year's live music while Venetian is in full swing."

With Rhythms of Venetian finalized and bands announced earlier this month, festival planners turn their focus to seeking volunteers and sponsorships for the many events scheduled for July 16-23.

It costs the Venetian Festival more than $300,000, to put on its premier event, which is why the nonprofit volunteer organization depends on community support. Venetian fundraising is always a challenge and 2016 is no different, Barron said.

CHARLEVOIX — Mid-spring means the arrival of fresh produce, with local farmers and gardeners harvesting lettuce, spinach and asparagus, with strawberries not far behind.

The bounty of produce also means that it's time for Charlevoix shoppers to hit the downtown farmers market.

The Charlevoix Farmers Market will open from 8 a.m.-1 p.m. Thursday, May 5. The market again will be located along Bridge Street in East Park.

Market manager Chris Leese said new this year is an early start time with curbside parking.

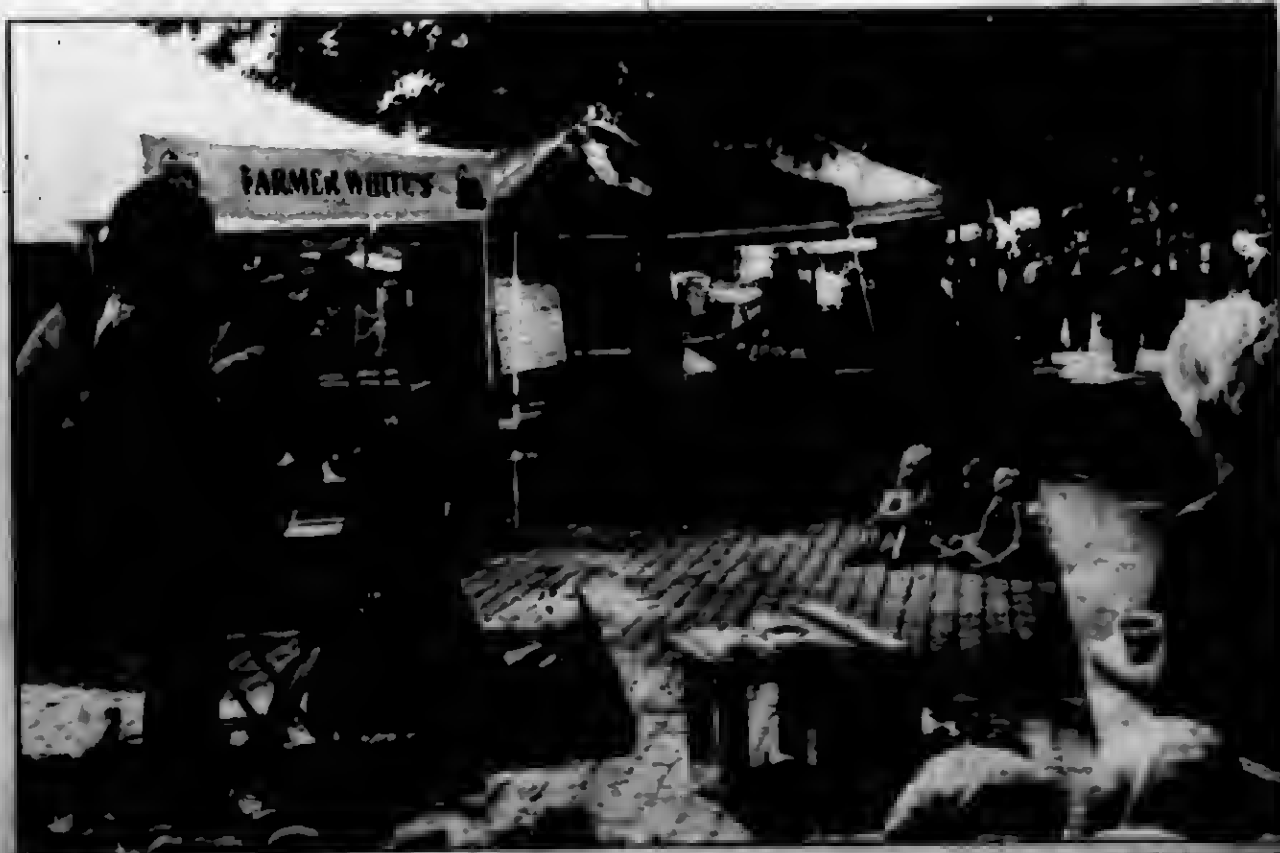

"This will help locals shop early with easy parking before heading off to work," Leese said.

Another new market feature will be wine tasting each week with Royal Farms and Walloon Lake Winery.

"We are pleased to feature two local vineyards in the market that help support our community."

Keeping traditions alive

Larry Denemy, the Title VII Indian Ed Coordinator, arranged for Ray and Leroy Shenoskey and Mike and Pat Naganashe to share a demonstration of their Native American drumming and singing with Jodi Thompson's first and second grade music classes at Charlevoix Elementary School. Students learned about Native American culture, what Native American drums and sticks are made out of and how they are played, and the students had an opportunity to perform a circle dance.

triotic and religious organizations a program, appropriate and impressive was held." During the celebration, attorney Arthur L. Flich gave an "impressive talk" dwelling upon Johnson's "exemplary life." He also gave the centennial 100 silver dollars, which was a gift from the local religious and civic organizations, according to the Courier.

In the article about the Chicago Club golf course, the Courier reported "the operation and maintenance of the Charlevoix Golf Club course as a municipal enterprise, a proposal under consideration for several months, was unofficially approved at an informal meeting of the city council and cooperating citizens Tuesday night." Acceptance of this proposal will give the city a one-year lease and an option of five years. "Under the present plan, which it is understood, will be officially ratified by council next Monday night, complete charge of the course will be vested in a board of directors of five composed of Harry A. Craig, Robert Bridge, Leo W. Carey, Oakley J. Hammond and Charles Hamlin." The group of five worked with council to take complete charge of the course. Representatives of local civic and business interest urged acceptance of the Chicago Club proposal on the basis that Charlevoix as a resort town could not afford to have the course closed, according to the article.

Charlevoix creates code enforcement position

LOUISE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — A part-time code enforcement officer position is being created in the city to help handle the workload.

City manager Mark Heydlauff brought the idea before the city council during its regular meeting on April 18.

The city's zoning and planning department is currently in transition as officials search for a new administrator, leaving it short-staffed as the city enters the summer season.

"With only one person working in that department, the city could use a separate person to handle the city's zoning compliance issues and be more diligent enforcing such regulations," Heydlauff said.

The council, by a unanimous vote, approved the job description for the position, including directing city staff to recruit and hire a person to fill it.

The funding for the new position is coming from the planning department budget and depending on the candidates the city may pursue this as an hourly position or an independent contractor.

"Employment details will depend on the qualifications of the applicant," Heydlauff said. "We also may look at how our neighboring communities handle code enforcement for a possible partnership."

Councilman Shane Cole said he sees the new position as a small expense to keep the city looking its best.

"It's a positive all the way around," Cole said. "I have seen what happens when nothing is done when a violation occurs. This just helps the city do a better job. It is a minimal expenditure to keep us 'Charlevoix the Beautiful.'"

Councilwoman Shirley Gibson said the workload and other various duties that are handled in the city's zoning and planning office are reasons for someone else to handle city code enforcement.

"I don't think the planning department should be involved with enforcing city codes," Gibson said. "They have more important work to do. This should be a separate position and I support a designated person to do the job."

Councilman Luther Kurtz supported the hiring of a part-time employee to focus solely on code enforcement because it is an efficient and effective way to further city goals set by council.

"(This position) allows us to have uniform code enforcement at a reasonable cost," Kurtz said. "This is reasonable and it furthers the goal of city code enforcement."

Ready for rhythm: Venetian announces music lineup for 2016 summer festival

SEAN MILLER
(231) 439-9378 - smiller4@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Canadian rockers The Guess Who highlight the list of Venetian Festival musical acts scheduled for this summer's event.

Northern Michigan bands like The Accidentals, Horton Creek, and the Charlevoix City Band will also take the stage to provide entertainment throughout the week.

Organizers said the process for getting bands can be tedious and takes time to do. For larger acts, the Venetian Festival works with Meridian Entertainment out of Traverse City.

"For our Wednesday through Saturday bands we use them. They help us book most of the bigger bands just because the bigger bands have a larger process they had to grow through and have more agents compared to the smaller ones we can book ourselves," said LaRae Stevens, event coordinator.

The Venetian Festival works on getting bands and learning about prospective acts in a number of different ways. Sometimes they have scouts help them and other time it's from community input.

"Sometimes we have scouts that will tell us bands that they think are good and we will look into them. There is also a lot of community input that we will hear during Venetian and we go with that, as well," Stevens said.

However, every year the routine for booking is a little different. Dan Barron, president of the Venetian Festival, will sometimes take trips to Nashville, Tenn. to scout out bands himself.

"If Dan takes a trip down to Nashville, he will go to saloons where country acts are playing and he will get information for us that way. He will decide if we should try booking them or not," Stevens said.

When booking bands, the Venetian Festival tries to provide a spectrum of music that everyone can enjoy. Every day seems to have a theme that they try to stick to.

"Sunday is usually Christian music, Monday we have the movie in the park, Tuesday we feature our own local city band, Wednesday is also classic rock, Thursday has turned into country night, and Friday and Saturday we try to get acts that are family friendly because those are firework nights and everyone is downtown," Stevens said.

This year for Venetian Festival, Stevens has said this could be one of the best lineups that the festival has ever had.

The lineup this year is as follows:

- AquaPalooza: The Sunshine Reggae Band
- Worship on the Water: The Neverclaim
- Tuesday: She-Bop & The Riff Raff; Charlevoix City Band
- Wednesday: The Accidentals; The Guess Who
- Thursday: Horton Creek
- Friday: Venetian Queen Coronation; Anthony Orio
- Saturday: David Bennett; 1964...The Tribute

Veronica had the surgery first. As Candy watched her mother's sleep apnea vanish and her life improve in every way, she decided it was right for her, too. "It's the hardest thing you will ever do, but it's the most life-changing and rewarding decision you will make," she said.

Before weight loss surgery, Candy rarely ventured outside. Now, she's looking forward to her first 10K race with her mom this summer.

Headline misleads readers on pipeline

Editor:

To the casual reader of the Charlevoix Courier the paper's April 15 headline "Enbridge: Line 5 safe for oil transport" could too easily be interpreted as a statement of fact when it only reflects Enbridge's opinion. And this opinion is not news let alone headline news. The Line 5 representatives express this opinion on a continuing basis, year-in and year-out. Simply because they happened to express this opinion in Charlevoix does not make it worthy of headline status in my view. Why weren't the opinions of others at the Charlevoix meeting who disagree or are skeptical of the company's claim given the headline?

To learn of the disagreement or skepticism about the company's claim of "safe-ness" the reader has to go to Page 9. In other words, I am concerned that the public may have been misinformed by the Courier on a very, very important matter of concern to us all. In the April 13 Letter to the State of Michigan from "Oil and Water Don't Mix," Enbridge and its Line 5 are in "Violations of state easement and law. Immediate state action is required." The pipelines in the Straits are "stressed, dented, deformed, abraded, cracked, and corroded" with "insufficient supports". Further the Oil-and-Water-Don't-Mix letter says the company's emergency spill response plan is not approved by the federal government as law requires. Further, it states its liability Insurance is only $1 million. Yet its Kalamazoo River cleanup costs ran $1.2 billion. Nearly a million gallons of oil flow through the Strait pipelines every hour. Repeat, every hour. At that speed or just about any other, Line 5 is UN-safe.

A very recent University of Michigan study provides it findings in video form. The videos show up to 700 miles of Michigan Shoreline are at risk should the pipelines fail. Charlevoix's shoreline and fresh water supply are included in the at-risk geography should the Strait's currents be so inclined on the day of the spill according to the study findings. As Attorney General Schuette has said "the Pipeline's days are numbered."

For good reason. Our entire region and all that is good and beautiful about it is at risk too great to bear any longer.

Much ado about morels

With the snow gone and warmer weather in our future, Boyne City is warming up to kick off its busiest month yet. May is morel mushroom time in Michigan and Boyne City celebrates this fungus with its annual mushroom festival to start the festival season off right.

For a few short days, everything is all about morels. Restaurants prepare mushroom styled entrees and favorite recipes are shared, local songsters sing of the morel, and people hunt for morel mushrooms throughout the neighboring woods.

The festival begins on Wednesday, May 11 with an open mic competition in Veterans Park's festival tent in the evening. The competition costs $35 and prizes are awarded.

On Thursday, May 12, Schmidt Amusement Carnival is back in town for the weekend to provide fun for you and your whole family. While the kids enjoy the carnival, I encourage the adults to head downtown and enjoy the Craft Beer Block Party featuring 20 craft beers in an area filled with brewers, food from local restaurants, food trucks, and live music from Thornetta Davis Band, straight out of Detroit. There is a $10 cost for those 21 and older, but no charge to enjoy the music and food if you are under the age of 21.

Do you need a gift for a special someone in your life? I suggest you head down to the Craft Show that features crafters with unique, handmade items. The Craft Show runs all weekend and there also is the M.O.R.E.L. show, which is "Michigan Outdoor Recreational Experiences & Living Show" in Sunset Park, on the corner of Water and Lake streets, adjacent to the chamber of commerce office. The show features outdoor living and ideas on how to survive in the wild.

At 4 p.m. on Friday, local morel hunting expert Anthony Williams will offer free tips on finding morels in the woods and immediately following Williams at 5 p.m. those registered will take a guided morel hunt. The buses depart from Veterans Park to a local wooded area to find morel mushrooms, if you want to go, it's $15 and you have to register online. You can also register in the festival tent from 2-4 p.m. Friday but it's cash only.

There is a Morel Breakfast from 7-10 a.m. on Saturday at the VFW Post No. 3675 at 1108 Boyne Avenue and don't forget the National Mushroom Hunt that same day where mushroom hunters can hang their morels on a Mushroom Pole for prizes. There are awards for largest mushroom, best dressed mushroom, best of show mushroom and longest distance traveled to pick your mushroom. The festival offers many events for the entire family to see an entire listing of what is available or for more information, visit bcmorelfestival.com. Don't miss out on this wonderful event.

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

Ice cutting in Charlevoix started as a survival necessity when the first settlers harvested ice from Round Lake or Lake Charlevoix and stored it under sawdust or hay to keep food fresh for an extended period of time. The first mention of ice harvesting here was in the March 19, 1870, Charlevoix Sentinel. The newspaper reported that enough had been brought in to satisfy the town's needs until the next winter. But the dangerous job of ice cutting soon became a big business. In 1876, 5,000 tons from Round Lake alone were taken for shipment to the Chicago market, transported by schooner once the lake ice melted. When the railroad arrived in 1892, the south side tracks were laid along the Lake Charlevoix shoreline. This meant that ice could be lifted directly from the lake and conveyed into waiting boxcars for shipment all over the country. Blocks that weighed 150 pounds were not uncommon. The railroads themselves were big customers, plus the big city hotels.

Tons of sawdust from the area's lumber mills were able to keep the ice insulated in local warehouses all year long. In the photo here, taken off Depot Beach, ice blocks are being "spudded" through a channel onto a conveyor belt that will lift it onto a horse-drawn sledge. At peak operation, this method was able to load one block per second. In the beginning, ice was cut by hand with long saws, a backbreaking ordeal. Later, automobile engines were repurposed to run large circular saw blades that cut through the ice much more quickly, the method that shaped the ice and channel seen here.

This image, and more than 150 more, are part of a new exhibit at the Historical Society's museum at the Harsha House, 103 State Street, that will officially open on Thursday, May 12. The exhibit, titled "The Working World—Business & Industry in Charlevoix," features images and artifacts from Charlevoix's unique history, including a nuclear power

COMMUNITY Highlights

Summer movies at Hotel Walloon

Throughout the upcoming summer, Hotel Walloon will be sponsoring movies in the park for hotel guests and visitors to the village.

The idea for the movies came about from discussions in a village of Walloon events meeting. During these meetings, businesses in Walloon come together to brainstorm how they can bring people to the community.

"We are trying to create a destination and the feel that there are lots of activities and things going on. That is one of the reasons we are offering something more in the summer time," said Lauren Butwell, marketing manager at Hotel Walloon.

All of the movies will be shown on a screen that will be in the village park next to Barrel Back restaurant.

"That is kind of where the public parking is for the docks. We thought it would be neat to point the screen towards the lake so people can pull in and watch the movies from their boat," Butwell said.

Including boaters is something new and unique to the idea of showing movies in the park. The hotel will be using an FM transmitter so boaters can tune in to get the sound.

"One of our concerns was disturbing people on the lake. This way, boaters who would like to can tune in to the station the audio will be played on to listen. People at the park will also have handheld radios," Butwell said.

The movies will be family friendly and open to everyone to enjoy. A schedule of movie nights will be released at a later date.

"I don't have specifics yet as to how often movies will be shown but the plan is to have it twice a week in the summer from June to August," Butwell said.

Mural artist Katherine Larson will offer a presentation about her Charlevoix mural and the preparation and research that went into it 7 p.m. Tuesday, May 3, at the Depot Museum, Depot Beach on Lake Charlevoix

Mural artist presenting at Depot Beach

The Charlevoix Historical Society is presenting a program on the inception, creation, and installation of the new downtown outdoor five-part mural that welcomes visitors to Charlevoix, the Beautiful. The program will take place at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, May 3, at the Depot Museum, Depot Beach on Lake Charlevoix.

The huge, colorful work appears on the side of the Central Drug Store at the Bridge Street stoplight intersection. Mural artist Katherine Larson will share her adventures while she did research for the project, and the presentation will include a detailed slideshow of the research materials, the original sketches, and a progressive film showing the actual creation. Larson will also share some of her 20-year history as a mural artist and opera singer. To date, she has created more than 150 murals across the United States and sung with many well-known opera companies and orchestras. Larson is also in demand as a speaker.

Anishnaabe storytellers to visit Armchair Theatre

The Armchair Theatre of Charlevoix Circle of Arts will present storytelling and music by three members of the Anishnaabe tribes of Little Traverse Bay, the native peoples of the upper Great Lakes. Through storytelling, accompanied by the sounds of the wood flute played by Aaron Otto of Petoskey, John Witherspoon of Charlevoix, and Joe Mitchell of Alanson will seat themselves around a stage-crafted fire and tell creation stories especially significant to an understanding and appreciation of the culture of the Anishnaabe people of the region.

The program is scheduled for 6 p.m. on Sunday, May 1, and is presented in conjunction with the In Celebration of Native Peoples Worldwide visual arts display in the upstairs gallery. The May 1, program is free and open to the public. Donations to the Armchair Theatre project of Circle of Arts is appreciated. For more information, visit charlevoixcircle.org.

Cowell Family Cancer Center brings new level of cancer care

A big pair of scissors sliced the ribbon under the covered entrance to the Cowell Family Cancer Center on Munson Medical Center's main campus in Traverse City, Wednesday, April 13, inaugurating a new level of cancer care for the residents of Northern Michigan.

Munson Healthcare president and CEO Ed Ness said the gleaming $45 million state-of-the-art building was made possible by the generosity of 2,500 donors who contributed $18.5 million to the project. Those donations included a $5 million lead gift from Traverse City resident and businessman Casey Cowell.

Cowell characterized the structure and the patient care inside as a "great thing."

"This is a fantastic building and in my experience so far whenever you have the opportunity to go inside and experience it - it is fantastic culture inside," Cowell said. "It is as focused on keeping our population healthy as it is on curing the people who walk through the door."

The structure consolidates cancer care services from 10 different locations under one roof, making it much easier for patients to navigate their care. At 100,000 square feet, the building is the largest free standing cancer center in Michigan.

The cancer center is part of the Munson Healthcare Regional Cancer Network that includes other Munson Healthcare system hospitals. The network promotes care coordination and convenient access for infusion services, and medical oncology consultations and follow-up close to the patient's home.

Munson Medical Center Medical Director for Cancer Services David Gordon, M.D., said, "Cancer care for the region is being transformed and patients now will experience better coordination of care."

"When they make that call they will get an answer," he said.

The Cancer Center contains advanced diagnostic technologies including two new replacement linear accelerators, stereotactic radio surgery, endoscopic ultrasound for diagnosing GI cancers, and endobronchial ultrasound for lung cancer. A health and wellness suite want to do about it."

Gordon said the center also has established a "one call" process that means a patient need only call one number to talk with someone and learn the next step in their care.

"When they make that call they will get an answer," he said.

The Cancer Center contains advanced diagnostic technologies including two new replacement linear accelerators, stereotactic radio surgery, endoscopic ultrasound for diagnosing GI cancers, and endobronchial ultrasound for lung cancer. A health and wellness suite also provides a spa-like environment that includes yoga, massage, acupuncture, and other supportive care including nutrition, exercise, support groups, social work and palliative consults.

Community lectures at the cancer center are being planned to cover a range of topics including the arts, cooking, cancer screening, gardening, approaches to cancer prevention and treatment and much more. There will be health and wellness resources available to peruse. Recent studies support the fact that healthy lifestyle behaviors can impact prevention of cancer and reduction in the risk of cancer recurring.

The Cowell Family Cancer Center is partnering with county transportation departments to provide transportation to radiation therapy at no cost to the patient.

"We just hope this place is tremendous for the community," Cowell said. "May everyone who walks through these doors be healed and nurtured."

BUSINESS

Business profile:

Round Lake Gallery a showcase for Michigan artisans

By KERRY KELLY

Special to the Charlevoix Courier

Pair a background steeped in art with a heavy dose of entrepreneurship and you will have a fairly accurate business profile of Katherine (Kathy) Ackerman, owner of Round Lake Gallery in Charlevoix. Ackerman first studied art history and German at the University of Boston and then attended the University of Chicago, where she completed coursework for a master's degree in information science. Initially, it was her information science degree that kick-started her career.

Ackerman worked for three-and-a-half years as an editorial researcher for the Chicago Tribune. Ackerman then left the Tribune to become one of the original information brokers of the 1980s, maintaining a private business doing competitor marketing research for companies using networks that would eventually be the Internet but were still difficult and expensive.

"I was considered an at-home pioneer at a time the corporate world was just beginning to consider it," she said. "There were only about 10 people in the country doing this at the time."

Her work led her to a top national training position for a company that created the databases. In 1983, she was featured in Forbes Magazine. Forbes had asked the Chicago Tribune if they knew of anyone who had opted out of corporate life to work at home.

"They knew of me because I had left them under those circumstances," she said.

The article came out and Ackerman and other corporate employees who had left their jobs and were successful working at home.

"I was a 'working at home pioneer' because people at that time were hiding their home offices and the dialogue was just beginning about things like zoning and how to keep track of employees who worked at home," she said. "I also ran seminars on how to market information services and trained librarians in this brand new technology."

Prior to opening Round Lake Gallery in Charlevoix, Ackerman was no stranger to Charlevoix business and art worlds. Her parents, Pat and Dr. Charles Koucky became enamored with the area while helping her brother, Chuck, set up his pottery business in East Jordan in the 1970s.

"My parents bought their Charlevoix property, a summer place, sight unseen over the phone while vacationing in Florida," Ackerman said.

Chuck and his wife, Nancy, eventually opened a gallery in downtown Charlevoix calling it "Koucky Gallery" and another in Naples where they eventually moved. The senior Kouckys bought property in the 200 block on Bridge Street and in 1977 developed it into Beacon Center, which houses both condos and stores. They included a health club in back, which is now the site of the Elks Club.

During those years, Ackerman worked and raised her family, son, Brad, and twin girls, Corey and Alyssa in East Lansing. She opened her first art gallery there and ran it for five years (1991-1996). After her parents passed away, Ackerman was the only Koucky sibling still harboring an interest in living in Charlevoix. She bought the buildings that her parents had owned from her three brothers.

"I love these old buildings as much as my parents did and can't think of a piece of commercial real estate with a prettier view than we have with the harbor outside the door," Ackerman said.

"I never considered owning it and it was a complete change of plans for me. But it gave me a connection with the past and a focus after both my dad and my partner passed away within two months of each other. Bringing Johan's to town was a nod to both of them as it would be tough to choose which man loved doughnuts more."

Ackerman's decision to open the Round Lake Gallery was a decision that happened spontaneously at a time she was searching for a void to fill in her life.

"I wanted to bring something new and different here that tourists and locals could both enjoy... I had a building, a love of gallery work and time on my hands," she said.

Ackerman made the decision to open a gallery in May of 2012, and five weeks later, on June 12, she opened her doors.

Round Lake Gallery could be called eclectic in that it features often edgy and unusual work by a variety of artists. The store is a showcase of art, handmade articles, clothing, jewelry and home décor. Sometimes she is approached by artists who wish her to include their work at the gallery, other times she travels to gather inventory.

Most of the paintings and products at the gallery feature Michigan artists. A pet project was developing, along with Bob Jess, the patio area behind Johan's Café as part of a Charlevoix Leadership Class in 2015.

"That area was an eyesore... many people have thanked us for doing something with that space to enhance the alley," she said.

Ackerman is proud of the fact that one of her senior gallery employees, Candace Speck, has been chosen as the Venetian artist for 2016.

Ackerman also promotes the Earl Young Mushroom House Walking Tours sponsored by the Charlevoix Historical Society and displays the T-shirts promoting the tours conducted by expert guides. This season, the gallery is holding a July exhibition which will feature a recycled art theme.

Actively involved in the community and a promoter of year-round businesses, Ackerman closes only in March to restock inventory.

"I have the unique perspective of being a landlord and a retailer," she said. "The reality of seasonal towns and seasonal businesses is very tough. I know how hard it is. I feel really fortunate to have involved and energetic employees, supportive customers, dependable tenants, wildly creative artists and such a gorgeous view of the lake."

Study: Role of inland fisheries often under-reported, undervalued

By ERIC FREEDMAN

Capital News Service

LANSING — Inland fisheries and aquaculture account for more than 40 percent of the world's reported fish production but their harvest is frequently under-reported and ignored in the Great Lakes region and elsewhere, a new study says.

"The central role of inland fish in aquatic ecosystems makes them good indicators of ecosystem change," said the study by scientists at Michigan State University, the U.S. Geological Survey, Carleton University in Canada and the University of Hull in the United Kingdom. Ecosystem change includes threats from agriculture, hydropower projects and deforestation, as well as overfishing and invasive species.

Although the study focused primarily on inland fisheries in the developing world, it also addressed the situation in the Great Lakes and the region's inland waters.

"Fish respond directly to some environmental stressors such as toxic and thermal pollution, flow change and climate change," according to the first global review of the value of inland fisheries and fish.

The study cited "massive die-offs" of alewives in Lake Michigan in the 1960s, an occurrence that "brought to public and political attention large ecological changes occurring in the Great Lakes."

It identified 10 reasons why inland fisheries are important globally, starting with food security and economic security.

Lead author Abigail Lynch of the Geological Survey said the importance of inland fisheries "is sometimes masked in areas in the Great Lakes where there are surely people who are fishing for subsistence."

The high profile of larger-scale recreational and commercial fisheries may hide the importance of "these invisible fisheries," said Lynch, who works for the federal agency's National Climate Change and Wildlife Science Center.

Co-author Steven Cooke, a Carleton University fish ecologist, said the study points out that there are "multiple dimensions of fisheries. It's not just one thing for one group. It's many things for many groups, especially in the North American context."

Culture matters too, including tribal culture, Cooke said.

Lynch said, "When you think of all the places where fish are culturally important, often those cultures have a strong connection with the land and the waters."

Other benefits of inland fisheries include empowerment of people in low-income nations, recreational services, human health and biodiversity, the study said.

Co-author William Taylor, a fisheries and wildlife professor at MSU, said many Great Lakes Basin fisheries provide food for low-income people.

The study identified "knowledge transfer" as reflected in exchanges of information and sharing of management successes between scientists and resource managers in the U.S.-Canadian Great Lakes and the African Great Lakes.

Taylor said that transferred knowledge includes "what happened with the collapse of the commercial fisheries" in the U.S.-Canadian Great Lakes, as well as the "resurgence of the walleye and lake trout with different food webs, and all the lessons we've learned about invasives and how to mitigate the impact of things like lampreys."

The study described inland fisheries as "aquatic canaries in the coal mine" that can warn of current and potential adverse environmental impacts.

"Nobody planned for alewife in the Erie Canal and sea lamprey coming through the Welland Canal. It signaled system collapse. Changes in the food web were giving us a warning that things were not good," Taylor said. "When discussing land, municipal water, shipping, hydropower, fish will tell you how healthy the ecosystems are. It's giving fish a voice at the table. To me, they've always been the sentinel organism."

Large crowds gather each night at East Park in Charlevoix to view the free, live entertainment scheduled during Venetian Festival.

"We would never be able to do Venetian at its current level without the support of our donors, community sponsors and volunteers," Barton said.

LaRae Stevens, administrative assistant/events coordinator for Charlevoix Venetian Festival, said between the individuals who serve on committees that are assigned specific tasks associated with the festival to the multitude of volunteers, help make festival events run like a well-oiled machine.

"Each person that volunteers plays an important role during Venetian week," Stevens said.

Stevens, a Charlevoix native, said planning and working for Venetian was her goal as a young child.

"As a kid, I remember that I always wanted to work for Venetian," Stevens said. "Being part of the excitement that comes with each year fascinated me and I knew I wanted to be part of it."

Stevens, who began as a Venetian volunteer, is now in her third year as administrative assistant with the festival board.

"It's exciting to be part of something that brings so many people home to celebrate the culture and beauty of Charlevoix," Stevens said.

Each undertaking is so significant that the committees recruit their own volunteer force to help plan the festivities they are responsible for. By the time the festival opens, a combined crew of about 250-300 volunteers is utilized.

"From the attendees' viewpoint, or from the viewpoint of our patrons who come, what we want is for them to have an enjoyable experience," Stevens said. "In order to do that, our volunteers are key because there is a tremendous amount of work behind the scenes."

Of the preparations, Stevens offers a practical approach.

"We don't try to recreate the wheel," she said. "We implement what has worked before. We also rely on our Venetian board experience for direction and advice."

Stevens credits the city, local police department and other organizations for help during the Venetian Festival.

"There are so many responsibilities that the administrative staff could never accomplish this event without these volunteers that come in and take charge," Stevens said. "The city is a big help, along with the Chamber of Commerce and our local service organizations."

HISTORIC

year to tour neighborhoods in Charlevoix, said David Miles, curator of Harsha House Museum and Charlevoix Historic District Commission member.

"The historic district has been a long time coming," Miles said. "We are glad to see that the Earl Young homeowners understand what Charlevoix could begin to lose if these homes are not protected. Earl Young's buildings are significant to Charlevoix and to the people who travel from around the world to see them."

The district places restrictions upon what property owners can do with the exterior of their structure. It also prevents — barring proof of financial hardship — the demolition of the structures.

Charlevoix interim city planner Zack Panoff said various homeowners worked with the city to help accomplish the new ordinance.

"The property owners were included in the process that made this district possible in Charlevoix," Panoff said.

Charlevoix Historic District Commission member John Campbell said the Lake Michigan Beach and Park Avenue land management plan passed earlier this year by the city also helped.

"The cooperative efforts in creating a long-range land management plan for that portion of the city played a positive role in this process," Campbell said.

There also was more enthusiasm from the Young homeowners along with the collaboration efforts from several city committees that helped this district come into fruition.

"Everyone worked together," Campbell said. "Homeowners were key in their input through the process. The collaboration between the various commissions, city and residents is one of the main reasons for the historic district."

The "Half House" at 302 Park Avenue is one of a series of homes in Charlevoix built by Earl Young. The homes are usually referred to as mushroom houses or Hobbit homes and feature stonework and distinct curves. Young sought to incorporate nature into the design of his homes. The Charlevoix City Council approved the historic designation of these homes at its last meeting on April 18.

the costs of the repairs. Earlier tours of the facility led members of the Main Street board to believe a complete renovation of the marina facility was needed, but that was not the case, said Rick Wertz, Main Street board member.

"We originally set out thinking we were going to have to buy new toilets, sinks and faucets, but the consensus of the plumbers was that we would be wasting our money," Wertz said.

It was determined that the main needs would be to re-tool the current restroom sensors for the toilets and urinals, add new toilet seats, add new sinks and faucets in the men's room to be motion sensors and redo the restroom and hallway floors with new surfacing to prevent slips and make for an easier cleanup, added Wertz.

The cost for the plumbing repairs is $2,797 awarded to Wojan Plumbing and Heating in Charlevoix. The floor will cost $2,100 and was awarded to Armor Seal, of Charlevoix. Herzog Electric, of Charlevoix, will complete the electrical work for $4,351.

The electrical work will include new hand dryers in women's restroom, moving the hand dryer in the men's room closer to the sinks and removing old light fixtures and replace with new LED lighting fixtures in each restroom.

"The difference in wattage will be roughly a 1,000 watts less usage compared to what we have now in the facility," Wertz said. "We will have a significant savings in our electric bills and we will see a rebate from the city for all the LED fixtures we are going to buy."

The work is projected to complete by June. It is expected that work on the floors will close the restrooms for a three- to four-day period while the sealant sets, Wertz said.

"The plan is to do one restroom at a time to avoid closing both bathrooms while the floor is done," Wertz said.

Rich Bergmann, of the Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company, thanked the board and its facilities committee for the facilitation of the renovations inside the building.

"We are very pleased with the progress made to date," Bergmann said, referring to the renovation of the drywall in the lobby. "The moldy wallpaper in down, new paint is up. It looks much, much better in there. I think we have a professional looking building that represents what a great asset that facility is."

LONGIE ALLEN/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Leese said. "Wine tasting will be an exciting new feature for the market."

The market will also feature new vendors to complement the wine tasting section of the market, Leese said.

"These vendors will have foods and items that complement the local wines being sold in the market," Leese added.

People also can count on many vendors returning bringing back favorite items of market shoppers like fresh bagels, specialty breads, sauces, syrups and sandwiches.

"For lunch, there's crepes, sliders, organic produce, cheeses and meats," Leese said. "Enjoy the morning in full view of the sun rising over Round Lake. It is one beautiful market setting imaginable. Bring a friend and visit downtown Charlevoix's East Park each Thursday."

Charlevoix wins three co-ed relays, boys take first at Ram Scramble

HARBOR SPRINGS — The Charlevoix boys track and field team watched a lot of talent walk out the door with diplomas after the 2015 season. So far, however, replacing that star-studded cast has been relatively painless, as the Rayders followed up a victory in an LMC Quad on Monday with a repeat of last year's Harbor Springs Ram Scramble Invitational title.

The Charlevoix boys racked up 117.33 points to beat out East Jordan and Sault Ste. Marie, who tied for second with 87 points, thanks to seven first-place finishes.

The Rayder boys did get an assist from the girls squad for three of those, however, as the Rayders dominated the co-ed relays, taking first in the 3,200 relay (9:16.97), first in the 800 relay (1:44.88), first in the 400 relay (49.76) and second in the 1,600 relay (4:03.95).

In individual events, Charlevoix was led by junior Jared McLean, who claimed titles in the 200 dash (23.34) and 400 dash (51.93) for the second straight meet.

John Plschner won the 1,600 run (4:50.69) for the Rayders, edging teammate David Ritter (4:52.47) for first place, and Noah Carson won the 800 run (2:07.34) as well.

Malcom Williams took second in the long jump (36-8.75), Danny Nesburg

WEST BRANCH — While it may have taken longer to get out on the course for area boys' golf teams, it's clear the rust is shaking off quite fast.

A number of programs got back to the course over the weekend, with the Charlevoix boys golf team putting forth an impressive performance.

On Friday, the Rayders traveled to the Nightmare in West Branch for an Ogemaw Heights hosted event, with Charlevoix earning sixth out of 23 teams from throughout the state in attendance.

Gaylord placed first overall with a score of 315, as four golfers shot 81 or lower, including overall medalist Nick Rowley, who shot a 73 on the day.

Charlevoix shot a round of 354 for the sixth place position.

Matt Good led the Rayders with a round of 83, followed by Montana Thompson, 85; Collin Turkelson, 92; Tyler Fuchs, 94; Tanner Drost, 97; and Hunter Jensen, 108.

Charlevoix makes the most of opportunities, win 4-1 over Rams

CHARLEVOIX — In Thursday's rivalry showdown with host Charlevoix, Harbor Springs won the time of possession battle and outshot its opponent. But the Rayders had the edge where it counted, on the scoreboard, pulling out a 4-1 victory thanks to a strong defensive performance and lethal and efficient finishing at the net.

Charlevoix scored goals on each of its first two shot attempts, the first on a breakaway by senior Kylee Scholten nine minutes into the game and the second by sophomore Rachel Nesburg just two minutes later.

When senior Kelsey Engstrom added a goal on a penalty kick after a handball in the box with 10 minutes left in the first half, the Rayders held a commanding 3-0 lead despite being outposessed by the Rams.

"Coming off the weekend (games against Muskegon WMC and Grandville Calvin Christian), we really focused on our first touch with the ball and our passing," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "I thought we still made a lot of mistakes tonight,

Charlevoix returned to the golf course on Saturday, heading to A-Ga-Ming Golf Resort in Kewadin, where they met a number of other Lake Michigan Conference teams.

Charlevoix moved from a sixth place position on Friday all the way to the top of the board at A-

Ga-Ming, dropping their round by 14 strokes, thanks in part to a great round by Good.

Good carded a 74 to earn the medalist spot, a new career low, which consisted of three birdies and 10 pars.

Boyer City's Griffin Powers tied for second place with a 77, along with Traverse City St. Francis' Ryan Navin.

Aside from Charlevoix's first place round of 340, Suttons Bay placed second with a 365, followed by Elk Rapids, 367; Boyne City, 377; T.C. St. Francis, 382; East Jordan, 384; and Kalkaska, 414.

Also for Charlevoix, Thompson tied for eighth with an 87; Jensen, 89; Turkelson, 90; Drost, 91; and Fuchs, 92.

All three area LMC teams, along with Harbor Springs, will get back to the course today, Monday, at Grand Traverse Resort in a T.C. St. Francis hosted event.

Rayders tie TC Christian; compete in Harbor Invite

JAMES GUNTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 - jgunsterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Winning is nice, but to keep getting better requires challenging yourself at every opportunity.

The Charlevoix girls tennis team is taking that to heart, facing the toughest opponents they can get on their schedule, even if it means taking their lumps on the court.

That was the case on Saturday, as Charlevoix traveled to the Harbor invite in Petoskey, taking on Class A schools East Lansing and the host Northmen, and perennial Division 4 state qualifier Harbor Springs in a quad match.

While all eight flights went 0-3 against tough competition, the experience was far from a waste for the Rayders, who got a taste of what it means to compete at a higher level in the sport.

"We placed fourth overall, as we were unable to close out matches," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "Despite that, the girls continue to grow, and they learned a lot playing today against these seasoned teams."

No. 1 singles player Becca Moon and No. 2 singles player Emily Zabawa had the most success on the day, taking several games from opponents and showcasing long rallies.

The pair also played well for the Rayders in a 4-4 tie with T.C. Christian on Friday, Apr. 22, the day before the invite.

Moon beat her opponent in a thrilling three-set match, 3-6, 6-2, 12-10, while Zabawa also pulled out a close 6-1, 8-6 result.

Charlevoix's No. 1 doubles team of Nicole Swadling and Rilyn Wagner also won their match against the Sabres, 6-3, 6-2, while the Rayders' No. 4 singles player, Elyssa Seger, won by default, and also performed well in an exhibition match.

"All of the girls are working on how to structure their play, setting up the point better and getting invaluable experience," Randall said.

East Jordan 6, Charlevoix 2
CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix

girls' tennis team took a 6-2 loss from East Jordan on Tuesday, but picked up some much needed experience along the way.

"We had some exciting matches and tiebreaks come up with only one win of three tiebreaks," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "But one thing is for sure, we have a lot of tiebreaks and that is great experience. We keep getting better."

SINGLES — No. 2: Emily Zabawa, Charlevoix, defeated Hailey Podskalny, 6-4, 6-3.

DOUBLES — No. 1: Nicole Swadling/Rilyn Wagner, Charlevoix, defeated Bri Healy/Murphy Holt, 4-6, 6-4, 10-8. No. 2: Lydia Balyo/Maggie Potter, Charlevoix, lost, 3-6, 6-3, 1-8. No. 4: Grace Freda/Abby Nolrot, Charlevoix, lost 5-7, 7-6(7-4), 10-5.

"Margaret Purvis and Elyssa Seger fell to their opponents but had great effort against the East Jordan girls," added Randall. "For the doubles teams, all duos showed great progress in their quick pace environment and as long as we keep a positive attitude along the way, good things are happening."

but we improved enough that we were able to take advantage of the opportunities we were given to score and not throw them away."

After the half, Harbor Springs was even more dominant, locking the Rayders in their own end offensively for the first 20 minutes of the second, but the Rams couldn't come away with a goal thanks to stout play from a rotating Charlevoix backline that included Alex Snabes, Michelle Bollini, Jane Kelly and Natalie Nesburg, among others.

Freshman Emily Hinkley made several solid saves in net as well to help keep the Rams from coming back.

"I thought Emily played a fantastic game in goal; she showed confidence and wasn't afraid to come out of the net and challenge shooters," Schoiten said. "We got a little lucky at points that some of their chances didn't go in, but I also thought our defenders did a good job of clearing the ball and not giving up anything easy."

Having weathered the storm, the Rayders got a second goal from Nesburg to seal the win, as the sophomore shot from the left side of the net to the top right corner to make it 4-0 with 10 minutes to play.

Harbor Springs broke the shutout when Haley Rushing got on the end of a cross into the box and scored from five yards out, but with just three minutes to play it was too late to spark a comeback rally.

"It felt like we dominated the game, but we didn't win where it counts, on the scoreboard," Harbor Springs coach Aaron Riley said. "Credit to Charlevoix for finishing the chances they got, and we just didn't do enough of the little things to turn scoring opportunities into goals."

"As a team, we're improving every game and you can see the progress in the way we possess the ball and create chances for ourselves. We just have to figure out how to put more of them away."

Now 3-2-1 on the season and 3-1 in the LMC, Charlevoix travels to Cadillac on Saturday for a tough road test against a Big North foe.

With games against two state powers on Saturday, as well as two contests against rivals Elk Rapids and Harbor Springs, Charlevoix knows a lot about itself as it moves forward into the middle part of its schedule.

"We've been through the fire and it's taught us a lot," Schoiten said. "We've figured out what everyone's best fit is position-wise and we have a much better understanding of our strengths and weaknesses moving forward."

Harbor Springs (0-5, 0-2) has also been tested, with four games against competition that should be ranked at some point this season already.

"Our goal is to be the best team we can be by the end of May and make a tournament run," Riley said. "We can't get too down on ourselves right now for games we're losing in April, we have to learn what we can from the losses so we can improve and then put them behind us mentally."

"We've got a lot of things to work on but we're closer to being the team we're capable of than the results show so far."

round out the Rayders' point-getters.

It's a great start for a Charlevoix team that had big questions after last season's LMC title and strong showing at the Division 3 regional meet.

"Last year, between Nick Plude, Parker Elowsky, Parker Skeel, Bryan Nolrot, and Sam Hovie it felt like we were walking into most meets with 70 or 80 points in the bag, so losing that group definitely left us with some questions," Charlevoix coach Nick Barnum said. "What we've seen in these first two meets is that we've got athletes on this team who are ready to step in and fill those gaps in the lineup, and that's been huge for us."

"To come out and win these first two meets after losing what we lost, it's a huge confidence boost for these guys, and a validation of the work they put in to make sure there wouldn't be a hannesburg-Lewiston and Frankfort teams to wrap up the nonconference portion of its schedule.

On Friday night, the Rayders traveled to JoBurg, dropping tight 4-1 and 4-3 contests to the likely Ski Valley title favorite.

Christian Matye took the loss for Charlevoix in Game 1, striking out five and giving up four hits, while Austin Putman drove in the lone run for the Rayders on a single.

In Game 2, Jake Seger hit an RBI single in the top of the sixth with Charlevoix trailing 3-2 to tie the game, but the Cardinals scored a run in the bottom of the inning to win in walk-off fashion.

Alex Kleiber added two hits for Charlevoix, and Garrett Seese pitched four and two-thirds innings with five strikeouts and two walks, while Putman took the loss in relief.

On Saturday, Charlevoix traveled to Davenport University in Grand Rapids to take on Frankfort in a late night doubleheader, with the Panthers coming out on top 6-2 and 12-6.

Rayders go 2-2 against Grayling, JoBurg in doubleheaders

JAMES GUNTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 - jgunsterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — It's still early in the season, but the Rayder softball squad has already surpassed last season's win total, and had another big day in a doubleheader split with visiting Central Lake on Tuesday.

Skylar Herriman struck out five batters, walked three and gave up six hits to help Charlevoix win Game 1 9-5, and added two singles at the plate as well.

Emily Shrift hit a double and Nichole Hart added two singles as well for the Rayders.

In the nightcap, Hart hit a single and a double, Hannah Solomon added two singles and Kelsey Marfuta and Herriman each added a double, but the Rayders couldn't overcome a strong offensive outing from the Trojans in an 11-5 loss.

That improves Charlevoix's record to 5-7 on the year, moving past last season's wins mark with more than half of the season left to play.

The Rayders swept Johannesburg-Lewiston on the road on Friday, Apr. 22, winning 18-10 and 14-3 behind a great showing at the plate and strong pitching performances on the mound from Shelby Wurst and Skylar Herriman.

In sweeping JoBurg, the Putman had two hits to lead Charlevoix offensively in Game 1, and Hunter Cox took the loss on the mound.

In the nightcap, Charlevoix used four pitchers, with Putman taking the loss.

Matye led Charlevoix with a two run double, Smith chipped in two hits, including a double, and Jordan Adkins added a triple for the Rayders in Game 2.

Brad Klinger and Seger each added an RBI single for the Rayders (3-6-1) who open LMC play against rival Boyne City on Thursday at home for their next outing.

Charlevoix 2-4, Grayling 7-2

CHARLEVOIX — A rough fourth inning in Game 1 spoiled Charlevoix's home opener against Grayling in a 7-2 loss on Wednesday, but the Rayders rallied in the nightcap to take a 4-2 win and a doubleheader split.

Austin Putman earned the Game 2 win for Charlevoix, striking out four and holding the Vikings to two runs, while the Rayders scored a run in the third, fourth and fifth innings to take control.

Christian Matye finished with two doubles and an RBI to lead the Rayders, Putman added a single, a double and an RBI as well, and Garrett Seese and Jordan Adkins each chipped in an RBI single.

In Game 1, Hunter Cox pitched three scoreless innings to lead off the game for Charlevoix, but Grayling exploded for five runs in the fourth to seize control.

Charlevoix got a two-run single from Mason Louiselle in the bottom of the fifth to cut into the deficit, and Jake Seger went 3 for 4 as well, but in the end the Rayders came up short.

Wurst

Rayders bounced back from dropping both games against visiting Grayling on Wednesday Apr. 20, 9-1 and 10-2.

Hannah Solomon had three hits in the first game for Charlevoix and Herriman and McKenna Ebert finished with three and two hits, respectively, in the second game as Charlevoix had a solid day at the plate.

Hayley Coss had a hit in each game for the Rayders, and Kara Simpson and Kelsey Marfuta each added a hit as well.

Pitchers Shelby Wurst and Herriman also had strong outings on the mound for Charlevoix, which were ultimately undone by defensive errors.

"We hit .300 in the first game and .550 in the second, so we're making progress offensively," Charlevoix coach Tom Mielke said. "Our pitching is much improved as well, and now we just need to focus on tightening up our defense."

Charlevoix hosts Boyne City on Thursday to open LMC play for its next doubleheader.

finished runner-up in the 100 dash (11.22) and Oliver DeYoung took third in both the 110 (18.13) and 300 hurdles (45.09) as well for the Rayders.

Pischner also picked up a sixth place finish in the 3,200 run (11:05.51), and Eric Smith finished in a three-way tie for fourth in the high jump (5-1) to round out the Rayders' point-getters.

some questions," Charlevoix coach Nick Barnum said. "What we've seen in these first two meets is that we've got athletes on this team who are ready to step in and fill those gaps in the lineup, and that's been huge for us."

"To come out and win these first two meets after losing what we lost, it's a huge confidence boost for these guys, and a validation of the work they put in to make sure there wouldn't be a huge drop-off."

Not to be outdone, the Charlevoix girls team also had several strong finishes from new faces to take fourth overall, with 71 points.

On top of their strong performance in the co-ed relays, Izzy Witthoef just missed a school record for the Rayders in winning the 200 dash (27.95) and also took second in the 100 dash (13.10), while Michelle Bollini won the 3,200 run (11:32.96). Lukila Witthoef took fifth in the long jump (24-4.25) and sixth in the 400 dash (1:10.36) as well for the Rayders, and Olivia Jeake earned sixth place finishes in the 100 hurdles (21.24) and the 300 hurdles (58.34).

The Rayders' next meet was supposed to be a home Lake Michigan Conference quad on Monday, however, weather has forced that to be moved to Tuesday, May 3.

Charlevoix Township Volunteer firefighters were at the township hall on April 20, to take the annual SCBA mask-fit test. Fit testing evaluates the interface between the firefighter's face and the SCBA face piece to ensure a proper and correct fit. Not properly testing SCBA face pieces could put firefighters in danger.

Pilot food truck policy OK

Council unanimously establishes operational rules

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — A pilot policy governing food trucks in Charlevoix was passed by the city council Monday.

Council members unanimously approved the recommendations submitted to them by the food truck committee to establish the permitted boundaries, hours of operation and uses throughout the city.

The committee — appointed last fall — was made up of food truck and brick-and-mortar restaurant owners and managers along with a representative from the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority, Charlevoix Planning Commission and Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. The group met extensively the last several months to bring a test policy to the city council before the summer season began.

"I like the proposal the committee came up with," said councilwoman Shirley Gibson. "That is why I asked for a committee made up of the stakeholders to work on this. They did an excellent job working together to bring us a trial policy they could agree on."

Councilman Luther Kurtz also feels the committee was a "great" process utilized to develop a pilot policy.

"It allows the people on both sides that are closely affected by the changes to participate," Kurtz said. "If they can come up with a CHARLEVOIX — Maybe you've wondered about the LED warm white lights missing from the trees this year that usually line Main Street. Maybe you haven't.

No matter which camp you're in, there's a reason for the noticeable change in the trees, according to Annie Doyle, executive director of the Main Street/Downtown Development Authority.

"We are in a process of replacing the lights in the trees downtown," Doyle said. "We will go the summer without lights as we wait for new LEDs to be available after August."

New Hall of Fame honors 10

Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education president Dick Joseph said he hopes a new hall of fame will provide inspiration to students.

This will be the inaugural year for the Alumni Hall of Fame and there will be a ceremony to celebrate at 1 p.m. Sunday, May 22, in the auditorium of Charlevoix High School/Middle School. The ceremony will include a speaker, band performance and a gathering afterward.

"What happened is our board president Dick Joseph grew up in Grayling. Grayling did this a number of years ago. He had a vision of bringing it to Charlevoix because we have a strong tradition here as well," said Charlevoix superintendent Michael Ritter.

Ritter said they created the guidelines needed for a person to be nominated, created a committee and they selected the nominees. There are 10 people inducted and they include: Scott Davis, Walter Drenth, Doug Sloan, April North, Hon. Roy C. Hayes, III, Dean Davenport, James Bowman, Oscar P. Stroud, Ian Weiher, and George Haggard, Jr.

Joseph said the concept of a hall of fame has been a process many years in the making. When he ran for school board in 2004 one thing he wanted to accomplish was the creation of a hall of fame.

Charlevoix eighth-grader's hero essay places in statewide competition

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

A Charlevoix student is one of the top 10 winners in a statewide essay contest that included entries from nearly 5,000 Michigan students.

Elisabeth Petrosky, an eighth-grade student at Charlevoix Middle School in Charlevoix and the daughter of Tim and Tricia Petrosky, earned fourth place in the America & Me Essay Contest, sponsored by Farm Bureau Insurance. Her essay, based on the topic My Personal Michigan Hero, is about her mother Tricia, who is a pre-school educator in Charlevoix. The essay is reprinted below.

English teacher Nick Barnum, who assigned the essay as a class assignment, entered Petrosky's along with the other students' essays in the contest. Petrosky took first place from Charlevoix and her contest went on to be judged in the statewide contest, Barnum said.

"It's an honor and a testament to the writing skills of these students to reach this level of recognition," Barnum said.

Petrosky and the other top 10 statewide winners will spend Wednesday, May 25 in Lansing, where they will be presented with a personalized plaque, a medalion and a $1,000 cash award.

They also will meet with government dignitaries and the students and their guests will be featured guests at a Lansing Lugnuts minor league baseball game and attended an awards luncheon aboard the Michigan Princess Riverboat.

"I'm real happy and excited to be going to Lansing," Petrosky said. "I'm looking forward to the whole experience."

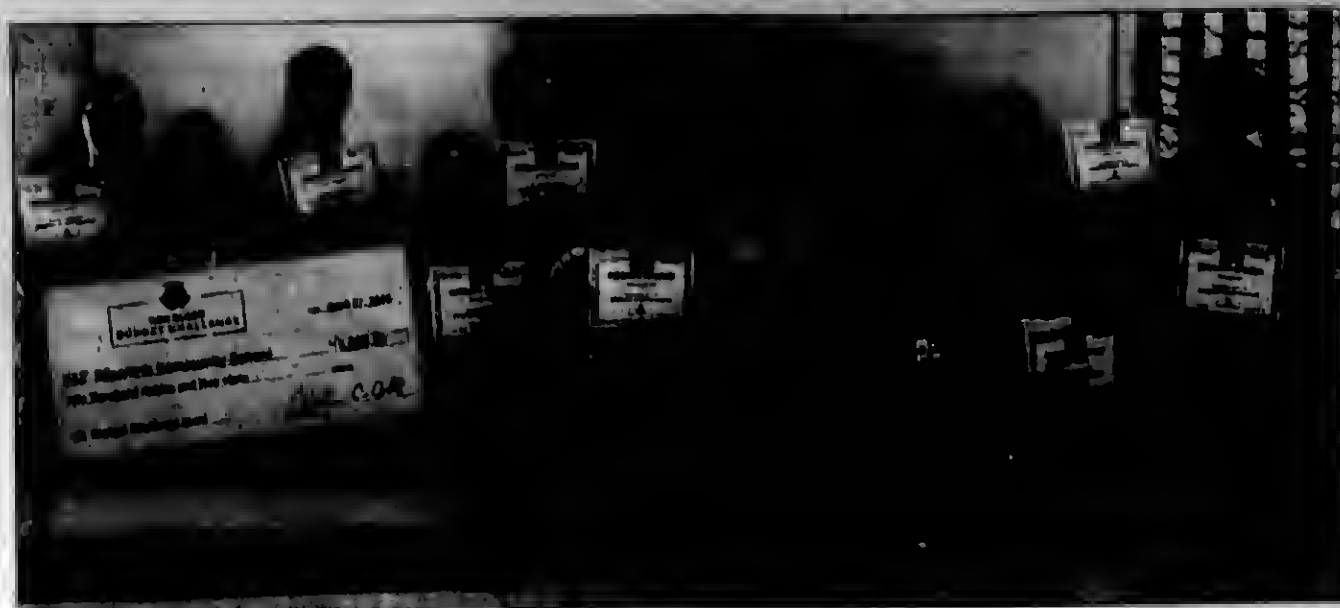

Editors note: Here is the essay that was written by Elisabeth Petrosky that finished in fourth place in a statewide competition: "My Personal Michigan Hero"
I suddenly awoke to a faint clicking noise. My room is overtaken with darkness when I glance at the clock: 12:17 a.m. Strange. I slither out from under my covers and shiver at the plummeting temperature of my room. A quick glance down the hallway is all I can manage before I hear the tapping noise again. The sound echoes through the silent rooms of the home. I quickly and quietly take to the stairs, and soon I am at the bottom. Tap-click-tap-tap. I'm getting close to it, whatever it is, as I can make out the sound coming from just beyond the door guarding our computer room.

My curiosity gets me on, and I reach out to grab the bronze handle. The door opens with a creak. A woman sits on the far end of the Ellsworth Community School received a $5,000 grant from the H&R Block Budget Challenge on Wednesday, April 27. The H&R Block Budget Challenge is a national real-life simulation personal financial education program. This free program helps students master real-world budgeting and personal finance decision making – crucial skills all teens need after graduation. Currently, only seven states require high school student testing of personal finance concepts, which means teens across the country are graduating without basic financial skills — like how to pay bills and save for the future. In addition to the grant (which goes to the school), the students received certificates for successfully completing the H&R Block Budget Challenge.

New chief of police appointment approved by council

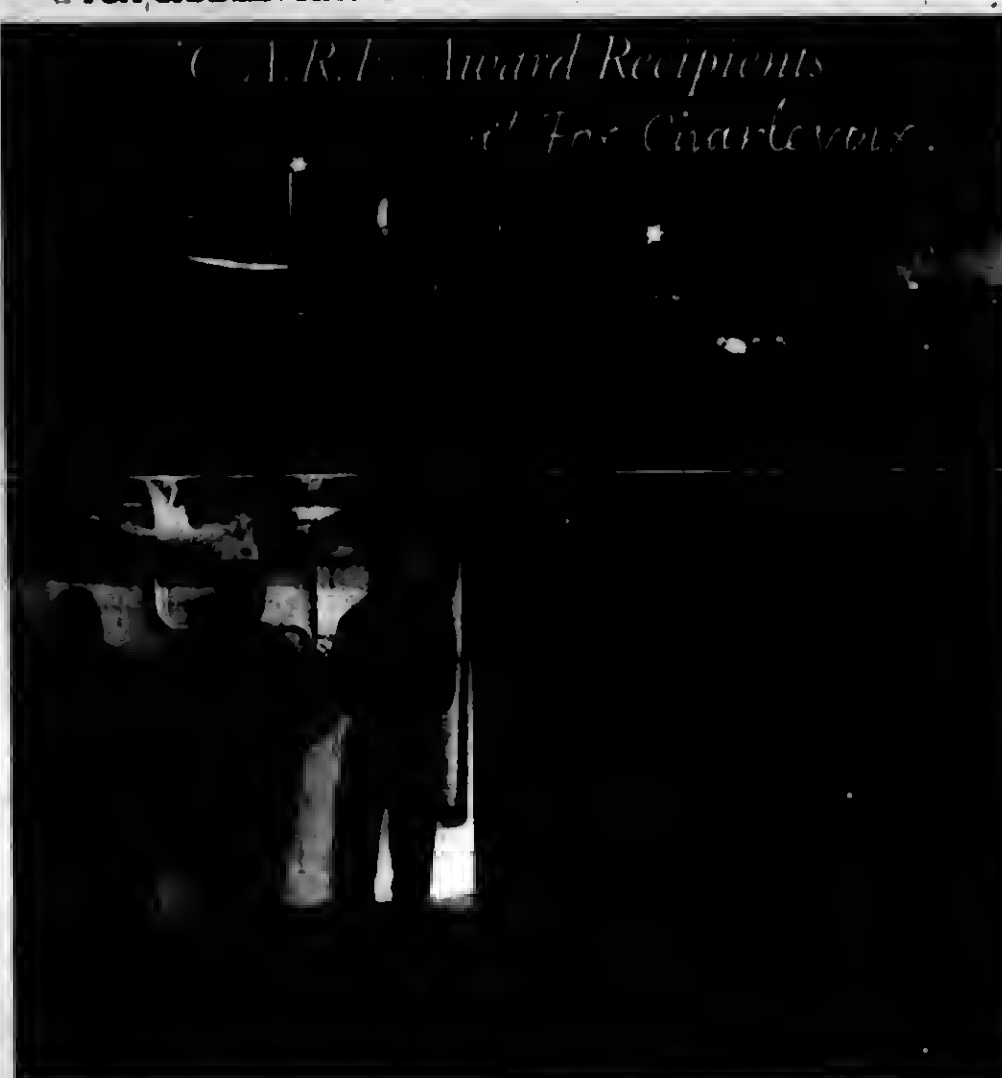

Editors Note: The year is 1936 and the name of the newspaper is the Charlevoix Courier. "That was then" is a weekly feature by the Charlevoix Courier that will take news headlines from the front page of a past Charlevoix Courier to share with today's readers. To read full articles visit charlevoix-library.org/charlevoix-history and click on the yearbooks and newspapers tab.

On this day in 1936 the Charlevoix Courier featured an article about several city appointments. The headline "Coblentz Named Chief of Police" was one of the many headlines on the front page on May 6, 1936. There also were several other appointments made by mayor Arthur Bergeon and confirmed by city council along with numerous other important business matters at Monday night's council meeting, according to the article. "Clarence Coblentz was named chief of police, succeeding Harry Glosenger, who resigned last week. Coblentz returns to a familiar role, having several years on the police force and two years as chief," reported the Courier. The appointment of city attorney Rolie

L. Lewis, Robert F. Sloan, and Oakley J. Hammond as special assessors was also confirmed by city council. A more flexible traffic ordinance also was adopted through amendment of the previous ordinance that set a mandatory penalty of $25 fine for violations. The amended ordinance provides, upon conviction, a fine not to exceed $50 or imprisonment, not to exceed three months in the county of city jail, or both in the desecration of the court. Lesser fines or probation are also permissible under the amended ordinance. The council also by resolution, voted to exempt ex soldiers or sailors or their wife or widow from property taxation as provided by the Public Acts of the State of Michigan. The courier also followed up the sale of the golf course formally operated by the Chicago Club. "Following a decision reached at an informal meeting last week, the council voted to sign the lease with the Charlevoix Golf Association for maintenance and operation of the Charlevoix Golf Club course for a period of one year with the option of five years," according to the article.

East Jordan announces music lineup

SEAN MILLER
(231) 547-9378 smiller@petoskeynews.com

EAST JORDAN — The city of East Jordan and the Music in the Park Committee recently announced this summer's music lineup, which includes acts like The Accidentals, Kellerville, and Joshua Davis.

The music in the park committee was formed in 2004 as a group effort to bring free concerts to East Jordan. This first concert series started in 2005 and it has been successful for the city ever since.

"Our committee, and our job, reaches out to get both local and regional talent with a range of genres," said Tom Cannon, East Jordan city administrator and committee member.

Every year, the committee has been building its concert series and this year believes it is one of the best they've had.

"This year I think is one of our best lineups we have had. We have six shows this year and we kick it off with The Accidentals," Cannon said.

In the past, concerts have been free and they will remain that way except for one larger concert that the committee is excited about. This year, Joshua Davis will be playing in the community auditorium at the East Jordan High School.

"We can use the auditorium for several things and so myself and the school have started thinking of ideas of having some larger shows. That's how we got the idea to bring in Joshua Davis," Cannon said.

"All of the money raised off of ticket sales will be going towards the auditorium endowment fund which is another nice thing about this concert," he said.

Joshua Davis will be playing second in the lineup on Thursday, July 7. Ticket are currently on sale for $25 and can be purchased at www.mynorthtickets.com including The Accidentals, all other acts for the summer music series will be performing for free at the Memorial Park adjacent to the city marina in East Jordan. All of the shows will take place between 7-9 p.m.

The lineup as is follows:

Friday, June 17 — The Accidentals
Thursday, July 7 — Joshua Davis

Friday, July 15 — Nessa
Friday, July 22 — Full Circle
Friday, July 29 — Kellerville
Friday, August 5 — Steel and Wood.

"We are excited about this summer and hope that this can build over future summers. With the success of this, it could lead into headlining entertainment," Cannon said.

City approves moving forward on procedural rule changes

LOUISE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The city council's vote Monday on minor amendments to its rules and procedures is now set for approval at the May 16 meeting.

Council was unable to approve amending the rules and procedures to reflect the changes made by the city attorney and staff at its regular meeting on May 2, because of Rule 20. The rule states a resolution to amend or repeal rules shall not be voted on until the next regular meeting.

"They have to wait a meeting before they can approve the changes according to that rule," said city manager Mark Heydlauff. "It is a formality that is required to be followed."

At the April 18 meeting council members directed necessary staff meet with the city attorney to revise the agenda item miscellaneous business in order to prevent unnecessary and unclear actions during that portion of city council meetings.

"We have developed this with an eye toward making the meetings smooth and concise," Heydlauff said.

The revisions also propose other amendments that remove language regarding the election of the city clerk, combine agenda items to act on resolutions and to clarify all resolutions need not be read aloud in their entirety.

"There are resolutions that we all can agree rather not be read aloud in their entirety," Heydlauff said.

Following the council's discussion of the changes, the resolution was laid on the table until the next regular meeting.

The changes city staff and the city attorney came up with pleased councilwoman Shirley Gibson, who along with councilman Luther Kurtz wanted to see changes made to city council's miscellaneous business agenda item.

"These amended rules will help our meetings run more efficient," Gibson said. "The revision of miscellaneous business will help keep the council transparent in the public eye. It is a good thing we are doing."

Kurtz said the changes meet his expectations of his request to revise miscellaneous business and the proposed agenda format.

"I mainly asked to review the miscellaneous business so we would all be on the same page with what we think is appropriate to do during miscellaneous business," Kurtz said. "I think that goal was accomplished."

He also said it is a "win, win" for council and the public.

"It's more efficient and easier to understand for the council and the participating public," Kurtz said.

Councilman Aaron Hagen thought council had a productive meeting on Monday. He said after viewing another government body does business, the changes are the right course to take.

"I want to thank Mark and our attorney for working on these proposed changes," Hagen said. "After attending a local communities city council meeting, which operates under a similar format and rules of procedures as proposed, from a member of the audience the meeting ran more efficiently and seemed more organized."

VFW post to sell 'Buddy Poppies' starting mid-May

LOUISE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — It's that time of the year again. Buddy Poppies will begin to be distributed throughout the Charlevoix area.

VFW Post No. 1153 will be selling poppies to help veterans and their families during "Buddy Poppy Days" in May throughout Charlevoix County.

The annual distribution of Buddy Poppies by the VFW has been officially recognized and endorsed by government leaders since 1922. The tradition is dedicated to the soldiers who fought and died during World War I. The poppy is a symbol used in reference to a poem by Col. John McCrea that begins with the words "In Flanders Fields the Poppies Blow..."

VFW Post No. 1153 member Gus Schmidt handed out a pamphlet, stating the poppy flower was adopted as the "official memorial flower of the VFW" shortly after the first distribution in 1922.

The flowers are assembled by disabled veterans, with proceeds of the fundraising being used exclusively for the benefit of disabled and needy veterans, as well as the widows and orphans of deceased veterans.

Schmidt said local VFW members will sell poppies at numerous locations throughout Charlevoix beginning in mid-May to the end of the month.

"Poppies are worn to not only remember the soldiers lost during wars, but also to provide help to veterans in our area," Schmidt said. "Wear your poppy proudly to show your support for the veterans."

Law limiting talk about elections won't be enforced under new deal

ANN ARBOR — The state of Michigan won't enforce a law that blocks local government officials from talking about a ballot question before an election, under a deal approved Thursday by a federal judge.

U.S. District Judge John Corbett O'Meara dropped the law in February with a preliminary injunction, saying the so-called gag order was vague and violated free speech rights. Now, nearly three months later, the Secretary of State's office said it won't fight the lawsuit any further.

"County commissioners and other local leaders will be pleased to know they can continue to inform their constituents about ballot issues in the same fashion that they have done for years," said Matthew Bierlein, an elected commissioner in Tuscola County.

The law, passed in 2015 by the Republican-controlled Legislature, was intended to stop local officials from distributing information about ballot proposals, such as property tax questions, 60 days before an election. Supporters said it would stop biased interpretations. Michigan law already prohibits officials from using tax dollars for advocacy.

Dearborn Mayor Jack O'Reilly has said the law was trying to "solve a problem that didn't exist."

The Secretary of State's office enforces election law, although it took no position on the gag order when it was approved by the Legislature, spokesman Fred Woodhams said.

A bill that has passed the House would strike the 60-day election restriction and allow officials to talk about ballot issues through mailings and other means — if they don't take one side or the other.

LETTERS to the editor

No funds for flags

Editor:

Due to lack of membership participation at American Legion Post No. 226 we will not be able to decorate veterans' graves in Charlevoix's local cemeteries. This is indeed unfortunate, however, the active members of the post number six to eight on a good day. I, the commander, am the youngest at age 58 and I am 100 percent disabled military retiree.

My roster shows a membership of approximately 60 names; this is down from the more than 200 in years past; even though there is a glut of veterans of all ages in the local community. At least five of my members reside in other states. One lives overseas. While we have financial resources from the sale of our hall, they are finite. We do not have the active membership to properly conduct fundraising activities. Without this we cannot continue to buy hundreds of cemetery flags year after year.

Recently, the good citizens of Charlevoix County passed a Veteran's Millage. I wrote to the County Veteran's Affairs Committee for funds to finance the flags and uniforms for the Charlevoix Veteran's Area Color Guard. Someone called me in regards to this letter and basically said "no." I specifically asked for a written explanation of the disbursement of these funds during the conservation. To date I have not received an answer.

Nor have I as commander of the post and retired soldier ever been approached in any way by the fund raising efforts of local groups "for the veterans." These events seem to have even made it into the newsreels at the local cinema. Curiously one of the last events in 2015 went so far as recognizing veterans from Central Lake as the guests of honor. Are these efforts the result of the Veterans Millage? If not, where does the money go?

Per Michigan State Code, Act 63 of 1915 "the legislative body of a county in this state, upon petition of a local, recognized veterans organization, a local affiliate of a recognized veterans organization, or five eligible voters of the county, may procure for a furnish to the petitioners, at the expense of the county, a suitable flag holder and United States flag for the grave of each veteran who served in the armed forces of the United States and who is buried in any public or private cemetery located within the limits of the county." The key word in this is "may," which says it at the discretion of the county to do so. Given the present tone I don't think that this would be likely. The act also states "local units of government will provide flags and holders upon suitable petition." I do not have five active members who are Charlevoix city residents to sign such a petition.

As a veteran, as a soldier; I am honored and duty bound to respect and preserve those who went before me. I will gladly do so for the rest of my life. However, under the present circumstances American Legion Post No. 226 and Charlevoix needs help.

Thank you for your consideration in this matter.

Regarding the Charlevoix County Road Projects

Editor:

I noted with disdain the recent article regarding the roads in Charlevoix County scheduled for work in 2016.

Marion Center Road from the high school south to the county line is the worst major road in Charlevoix County. It is a danger to our citizens, including the young drivers who travel the road daily. I find it necessary to cross the center line often to avoid the deteriorating pavement. This, combined with the excessive speed allowed on the highway and the history of deadly accidents, should make Marion Center the highest priority.

I voted for the county millage many years ago - primarily because the commission promised that Marion Center Road would be fixed within five years. If the millage passed. Five years have passed.

Apparently county politics and the location of commissioners residences are more important than public safety.

If an accident occurs on Marion Center Road, I would recommend that the County and Road Commissioners be sued personally. That would be my intent.

Social Security benefits U.S. citizens outside the U.S.

More than half a million people who live outside the United States receive some kind of Social Security benefit, including retired and disabled workers, as well as spouses, widows, widowers and children.

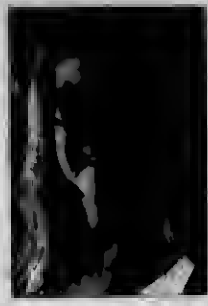

If you're a U.S. citizen, you may receive your Social Security payments outside the United States as long as you are eligible. When we say you are "outside the United States," we mean you're not in one of the 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, Guam, the Northern Mariana Islands, or American Samoa. Once you've been outside the United States for at least 30 days in a row, we consider you to be outside the country.

If you are traveling outside the U.S. for an extended amount of time, it's important that you tell Social Security the date you plan to leave and the date you plan to come back, no matter how long you expect your travel to last. Then we can let you know whether your Supplemental Security Income (SSI) will be affected.

You can use this online tool to find out if you can continue to receive your Social Security benefits if you are outside the United States or are planning to go outside the United States at socialsecurity.gov/international/payments_outsideUS.html.

This tool will help you find out if your retirement, disability, or survivor's payments will continue as long as you are eligible.

When you live outside the United States, periodically we'll send you a questionnaire. Your answers will help us figure out if you still are eligible for benefits. Return the questionnaire to the office that sent it as soon as possible. If you don't, your payments will stop.

You can also read the publication titled Your Payments While You Are Outside the United States at socialsecurity.gov/pubs.

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY LOOKING BACK...

Bridging our past with our future

In 1880, pioneer Morris J. Stockman began construction of the first commercial brick structure in downtown Charlevoix. It stood at the intersection of Bridge and Clinton streets on the southeast corner, now East Park. Stockman moved his hardware store in the following year, soon to become one of the most highly regarded businesses in northern Michigan. The building stood there until 1946. The Min-Eva restaurant then on the premises was so severely damaged by a gas explosion in December of 1945 that the building had to be razed. It had been the third to last holdout for the completion of East Park, something that did not happen until after the turn of the century when the brick building on the Mason Street corner was taken out. South of the Stockman building appear the wood structures that housed A. J. Orser, The Artistic Tailor, and J. Z. Linton's Fruit and Canned Goods store. The bicyclist pedaling down the middle of a rutted, dusty Bridge Street may have had the thoroughfare all to himself other than the occasional horse-drawn wagon or buggy. The first automobile in Charlevoix did not appear until 1904 after Bridge Street was finally paved.

This image, one of over 150, is part of a new exhibit at the Charlevoix Historical Society's museum at the Harsha House, 103 State St., that will officially open on Thursday, May 12. The exhibit, titled "The Working World—Business & Industry in Charlevoix," features images and artifacts from Charlevoix's unique commercial history in 34 categories, including items from our Big Rock Point nuclear power plant down to a milk delivery basket. COMMUNITY Highlights

Upcoming fashion show to support Charlevoix Area Community Pool

CHARLEVOIX — With warm weather near and summer approaching, the Charlevoix Area Community Pool is making waves planning "NOMI Style," a fashion show featuring the latest Northern Michigan styles.

In the past, the pool annual fundraising event has been held toward the end of summer with themes ranging from a barn dance, to an imaginary pool party, and an aquatic evening with Amanda Beard.

"This year, we are looking to make a big splash with something new in June," says Naomi Singer, board president. "We are thrilled to partner with local retailers to show off their latest day and evening fashions, and we have asked them to jazz it up through over the top haute couture styling that you might see on the runway of Milan, Paris or New York."

"NOMI Style" will include a runway, shopping, seated lunch, silent auction and many fantastic raffle items. The event is scheduled 11:30 a.m.-3 p.m. Thursday, June 23, at the Bay Harbor Yacht Club, Lange Center.

"The pool has an active committee working on this fundraiser," says Carissa Mullaney, coordinator of marketing and development. "We have staff, board members, and pool patrons working together to make this an event not to be missed. It is exciting to see the number of people vested in the success of the pool."

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool provides a wide range of aquatic programs promoting health, fitness, recreation and water safety. In March alone, the pool provided swim lessons and water safety instruction to a total of 373 area children through Saturday lessons and school group lessons.

The pool looks to provide programs that meet the changing needs of area children and adults through a safe, professionally managed aquatic facility that is affordable and accessible to all. Ongoing local support and community involvement has enabled the pool to maintain its current facility and offer high quality programming to its patrons.

To make show reservations or for more information, call (231) 547-0982 or visit charlevoixpool.org.

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool is a 501 (C)3 nonprofit organization. The mission of the pool is to provide a wide range of aquatic programs promoting health, fitness, recreation and water safety. The pool strives to be the best aquatic fitness and recreation resource in the community.

Businesses work to prevent underage drinking

Twenty local Charlevoix businesses are joining forces with Bay Area Substance Education Services (BASES) to prevent underage drinking during the month of May.

In addition to the pamphlet, there is reference to a smartphone app for parents titled "Talk. They Hear You." Community members are also encouraged to visit basesteencenter.org/CP.htm to view numerous resources for adults and teens alike to prevent underage drinking.

Interested parties can pick up a brochure at the following participating businesses:

Business profile:

Tall Tales Tackle Shop something special

AMBER KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — It's business, but not quite business as usual, in special education teacher Courtney Kretovic's class at Charlevoix High School/Middle School. Kretovic is a teacher, cheerleader and coach for her 14 students grades 7-12 as they are introduced to the concepts of real life business and social interaction in their Tall Tales Tackle Shop.

These young entrepreneurs are learning life skills, that Kretovic feels will serve them well as they work their way out into the community.

"The purpose of Tall Tales Tackle is to give my students a meaningful work experience with the support of a trained special education staff," she said. "They view Tall Tales Tackle as 'their shop'."

Students learn (social interaction) soft skills needed for employment, how to use a cash register, how to stock inventory and even how to make coffee for the customers who stop by to purchase fishing gear and chat with the students.

In the studio, they learn to measure and cut driftwood into useful or decorative projects and to use basic home tools. There is a live bait alcove which houses tanks of minnows and the students are learning about the importance of worms for bait and how red worms can be farmed for decomposing garbage to make fertilizer. The class also has use of the kitchen facilities for planning menus and experiencing a cooking exploratory each Friday.

"Last year," Kretovic explained, "we brainstormed for an idea that would give the kids a positive work experience that would extend out into the community. We came up with the tackle shop idea after considering what community niche would be a good fit. Charlevoix really didn't have bait-and-tackle shop and is a fishing community so it was a logical choice."

Kretovic is assisted in her endeavors by para professional team, Andrea Whitley and Chris Way, many community volunteers, and several Charlevoix businesses who offer part time employment to some of her students. One volunteer, an avid fisherman, will be taking the students fishing to put the whole tackle theme into perspective.

"We received funding from donorschoose.org, the Charlevoix Schools Foundation, a T-shirt fundraiser (bondfire-funds.com) and donations from community members. The DNR Fisheries Research Station has been a huge help with the minnow tank and anything else we have needed," she said. "Dave Ciapp checks in regularly to make sure that everything is running smoothly."

Kretovic couldn't believe the response from the "donors choose" site. Between Google and Disney fund matching initial donations, $2,500 was raised in the first four hours of presenting the project on line.

"It's also out there on Facebook, e-mail, Instagram and Twitter," she said. "We are grateful for all the initial support. Now we need to get the word out to local anglers to stop in and get their tackle, hooks, fishing line and bait. It will do a lot toward making the kids feel that they are doing an important service for their community and toward bolstering their self-esteem."

Many fishing related props to embellish the décor of the store and new and/or previously owned fishing items to be sold have been donated to supplement the ordered supplies, but all donations and contributions are welcome going forward. Tall Tales is open for business in Room No. 14 of the old middle school, which faces the back of the former American Legion Hall building. A Tall Tales Tackle sign has been installed on the west side entrance to the building.

"My classroom at the high school/ middle school is small and didn't accommodate all we had planned," Kretovic said. "A science lab in the old middle school, formerly high school, building provides a larger space to base our operation. The science lab rooms accommodate the bait and tackle store, tables for small group learning, and a studio for crafting related items."

Senator introduces updated energy legislation

The Northern Michigan Chamber Alliance, for which the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce is a member, have serious concerns about the future of electric generation capacity in our state, and the corresponding impact that it will have on electricity markets, especially in Northern Michigan.

On Tuesday, Kent Wood, Government Relations director for the Northern Michigan Chamber Alliance, submitted a testimony before the Senate Energy and Technology Committee where the much-anticipated substitutes for the Michigan Comprehensive Energy Plan was unveiled. Doug Luciani with Traverse Connect and Andy Hayes with the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance also were present to make sure our voices were heard on

CHAMBER UPDATE

Alison Hubbard, Chamber president presented by Senator Mike Nofs, we appreciate being given the opportunity to give our perspective on certain energy issues of interest in Northern Michigan. Below is an excerpt from the testimony presented.

In the Midwest, most electricity is generated by a fleet of aging coal-fired power plants. The same is true in Michigan. With this important issue. While the Al... has not taken any formal position yet on the recent substitute language being the EPA's new proposed regulations on emissions, we understand that many of these plants are being or have been closed, with no immediate plan for fully replacing that production. We have genuine concerns about what this is going to do to the cost and reliability of serving electric needs in northern Michigan. Any new baseload generation seems to be coming primarily in the form of natural gas, which also has a history of sizable price fluctuations.

We believe more Michigan based generation is critical for cost and reliability in Northern Michigan. We believe new, local generation is important especially considering an electric capacity shortfall scenario like the one potentially on our energy horizon. Setting policies that help us meet this capacity shortfall in-state could pay dividends for creating stable electric costs and reliability in the future. We would love to see a system that fairly balances the benefits of reduced electric costs without putting the burden on smaller customers to subsidize that loss, and giving incumbent utilities more certainty in their customer base to be able to make long term power generation investments.

We are happy to see that Senator Mike Nofs' bill maintains the Retail Open Access program at 10 percent, and allows those customers currently in the system to maintain their program or place in line, while also providing protections for small business - the vast majority of our members - and residential customers from paying for the loss of larger customers to the Retail Open Access program.

We also believe that alternative energy suppliers should be helping to provide baseload energy generation in Michigan to help meet Michigan's

Michigan is a great example of a utility and alternative supplier that provides local jobs and power generation, and is currently investing millions in a natural gas plant in the Gaylord area. The economic impact of this project has been eye popping in the short term, and will provide much needed reliable capacity over the long term. Truly a win-win for Northern Michigan.

While we know there is still a ways to go in this process, we believe the bills presented put the state on the right path toward an energy future that is equal parts reliable and affordable. Stay tuned for more information on this important issue and opportunities to learn and take action.

Van Dam Custom Boats welcomes new president

BOYNE CITY — Ben Van Dam, son of boat builder Steve Van Dam, was appointed president of Van Dam Custom Boats in January 2016. The company was founded by Steve Van Dam in 1977, and has become known for building quality wood boats.

Ben Van Dam started his apprenticeship as a small child, building his first boat with his father at age 5. He knew from the start that this was his chosen profession, and made the choices that would fulfill his dream. After high school Ben earned an engineering degree in Naval Architecture and Marine Engineering from the University of Michigan and worked part-time in the test tank facility. After graduating in 2005, Ben came back to the family business and developed into a project manager on several notable builds. His woodworking skills coupled with systems knowledge and university training provide an exceptional background in order to propel the business into the future.

He intends to follow in the direction his father started, working toward developing innovative methods of building boats and creating a workplace that thrives on talent, with the collective goal of creating the finest wood boats in the world.

The company goes well beyond traditional building. Their proprietary methods and in-house design capabilities create superior products, and their expertise has allowed them to build a wide variety of boat types; cruising and racing sailboats, power cruisers and runabouts, boats with classic proportions and boats that stretch the imagination. The company also has full design services and a machine shop, including a CNC machining center, and fabricates the custom metal parts used in their boats.

Van Dam Custom Boats is currently building a 50-foot power boat of its own design, a next-generation development of the Alpha Z from the design team at Michael Peters Yacht Design and a 30-foot retro classic speed boat of its own design.

Steve Van Dam will stay actively involved with Van Dam Custom Boats in a supporting role for his son and the rest of the crew as the business continues to grow, with his focus mainly on new business development. However, both will be intent on maintaining the deep relationships they've created with their clients.

Armchair Theatre auditions

CHARLEVOIX - There will be open auditions from 4-7 p.m. on Friday, May 13, and from 1-7 p.m. Sunday, May 15, for actors age 13 and older for the upcoming season of the Charlevoix Circle of Arts Armchair Theatre. All interested in acting, directing, performing as a musician, vocalist, dancer or helping with stage management, technical support, set-up, hospitality or promotion are encouraged to contact the Charlevoix Circle of Arts.

In 2013, Ruth Willis introduced the Armchair Theatre Program to the Charlevoix Circle of Arts, with programming that received rave reviews during their inaugural season including Edgar Lee Masters, "Spoon River Anthology."

The first Armchair Theatre production cast stage and professional actor David Crawford in a performance of Poe's Last Night, held at Castle Farms. After that production, performances were moved to the Charlevoix Circle of Arts at 109 Clinton Street, where audiences enjoy plays, prose and music under the direction of Willis from a cozy armchair, hence the name.

The goal of the Armchair Theatre is to increase enjoyment and understanding of theater arts. For those who delight in words written, spoken, acted and sung, the Armchair Theatre presents offerings to suit many moods. Selections are made to inspire thinking, feeling, laughing, seeing, hearing and speaking more intimately. The atmosphere is informal but presentations are often provocative and sophisticated.

Board member and active participant in the Armchair Theatre, Cindy Boss notes, "The Charlevoix Circle of Arts and our community can benefit from Ruth Willis' gifts as an accomplished professional actor, director, producer, teacher and mentor, as she develops Armchair Theatre. She brings the community an opportunity that is usually only offered in urban areas."

The Armchair Theatre will present, "Under Milkwood" Dylan Thomas at 6 p.m. on Sunday, June 31. Director Sandy Miles will take the audience to a small Welsh town full of melodious language.

DNR provides map of previous year's burns for morel hunters

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources provides an online interactive map that highlights the state's 2015 wildfires and prescribed burns - each more than 10 acres in size - to help mushroom hunters in their quest for morels.

"Morel mushrooms are often found in locations where large fires occurred the previous year," said Jim Fisher, resource protection manager for the DNR Forest Resources Division. "Each spring we get calls from people who are seeking details on those sites to hunt morels. We've enhanced the features of this map to give our customers the information they are looking for in a mobile-friendly, easily accessible package."

The DNR's interactive Mi-Morels map provides forest cover type information, latitude and longitude coordinates and state-managed land boundary information.

Morel mushrooms commonly sprout in locations burned by wildfires or prescribed burns with a tree canopy; grass or sunlit open areas are less likely to produce the tasty fungi.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources provides an online interactive map that highlights the state's 2015 wildfires and prescribed burns - each more than 10 acres in size - to help mushroom hunters in their quest for morels.

"While the map may provide details on the cover type that was burned, it's up to the user to investigate whether morel mushrooms are growing at any location on the map," Fisher said. "Just because a spot is marked on the map, it doesn't mean morels will be growing at the area identified. We're providing a resource, but it's up to the hunters to head out to the forest and see what's available."

The information and data in the map on burn locations, state forest cover type, and state-managed land boundaries are available for users to interact with and download via the DNR Open Data portal. This site gives residents and public land users of Michigan access to Michigan DNR spatial data and information.

The Department of Natural Resources is not responsible for the incorrect identification of morel mushrooms. For more information on safe mushroom hunting, visit the DNR's website.

County preps for work on major roads

JORDAN SPENCE
(231) 639-9397 - jspence@charlevoixcourier.com

Three major Charlevoix County road projects are expected to start in May.

Charlevoix County Road Commission Manager Pat Harmon said the projects will begin sometime in May and are slated to be finished in October.

The Deer Lake and Korthase roads projects were bid at $2.26 million dollars for 7.88 miles of roadway. A portion of Korthase Road is in Antirrim County.

"We've got an arrangement with them on their portion and they will pay for that portion," Harmon said.

The Ellsworth Road project is about 3.5 miles long and cost $1.77 million.

"We also have a lot of township projects out for bid. It's going to be a very, very busy summer," Harmon said. "We've got projects — some that have taken bids on. The townships haven't acted yet. We're going to have lots to do. It's going to be unbelievable."

Harmon noted there aren't going to be many traffic detours for the projects.

The Korthase project will require a detour for about a week during the project while a new cement culvert is added, Harmon said. Traffic will be changed to flow from Pessick Road to Barber Road and then Boyne City-East Jordan Road.

This is the only detour and the rest of the time it will be open to local traffic. He said during this time there will be delays.

"Once they get that started they will have traffic control on that," Harmon said. "People should remember there could be five- to 10-minute delays."

FOOD

plan then I think it's a good starting point."

One aspect still up in the air is how council will judge whether the program is successful at the end of the trial period. Its success — or failure — will determine whether officials further ease regulations on the culinary craze.

Kurtz said he wants to see how the program works over the summer before making any other determination on the policy.

"I will pay attention to whether the program can work under the system we put in place," Kurtz said. "I hope to visit each location to see how it feels."

The mobile food vendors will be allowed to park in designated zones on city-owned property on designated days. The hours of operation depend on the day and zone the vendor is in.

During the Charlevoix Farmers Market from 9 a.m.-8 p.m. on Thursdays, two vendors shall be permitted in the parking lane in the vicinity of Plaza B, which is where the market manager sets up for the day.

One vendor each shall be permitted at Lake Michigan Beach and Ferry Beach from 10 a.m.-10 p.m. In the parking lot near the concession stands.

On any day of the week one vendor can be at Depot Beach from 10 a.m.-9 p.m., from 10 a.m.-8 p.m. at the Charlevoix Golf Club in the parking area near the clubhouse, and from 9 a.m.-8 p.m. at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport in a parking spot designated by the airport manager.

Upon meeting all requirements to be a vendor and paying all fees, the vendor may register for a space or spaces on the schedule, but there are a few more details that need to be completed, said city manager Mark Heydlauff.

"It will be details about health department guidelines and other standards related to the food trucks," Heydlauff said. "I will be (reluctant) to approve any food trucks until we have those guidelines in place."

LIGHTS

activated — will be released later this year, said John Campbell of the Charlevoix tree lighting committee.

"Diodes are changing and it was recommended to us to wait for the new ones to come in mid-August," Campbell said. "It is a big deal for us to not have the lights this summer, but it was important for us to remove the lights."

The LEDs that are strung on the trees in the downtown business district on Bridge Street will be replaced in September with the upgraded LEDs, Campbell said.

Campbell said the downtown tree lights were actually harming the trees.

Ideally, the lights should be removed after few years to preserve tree health, he said.

A tree typically sprouts laterally about 10 inches a year, he explained. But it will also grow around anything constricting it.

"We had some dead wood in some of these trees," he said of those wrapped in lights. "There was branching in the crown that was strangled because of wires and the bark was overtaking some of the lights, which was creating stress on the trees."

Approximately 40 percent of the LEDs in downtown were still working properly, but to leave them in the trees throughout the summer would have caused more harm than good, Campbell said.

"The current lights are like a tourniquet on the tree," Campbell said. "All the nutrients coming from root system are being blocked causing the trees to starve."

There is discussion on how to string the lights to allow the trees to grow because the new lights will last longer than the ones that were removed last week, Campbell said.

Lonnie Allen/Charlevoix Courier

An employee of Holiday Lighting Service from Manchester, Mich., removes the LED lights from a tree downtown.

The cost to remove the lights and trim the sucker branches was $4,600, which is part of the approved $35,000 the Main Street/Downtown Development Authority approved along with a contribution from the city.

The tree committee also is considering adding lights to the north hill and to some of the trees on Park Avenue and Clinton Street to enhance the local business district.

"We have businesses in those areas and if we have the capability to add those lights there we should," Campbell said.

Downtown Business owner Jodi Bingham favors allowing the trees time to recover while the board waits for the release of upgraded LEDs.

"It's rough to go the summer without the lights, but we should follow the recommendations of the experts," Bingham said. "I don't think it is worth jeopardizing the life and value of those trees."

perintendent in five years we were never able to get it started and done," Joseph said.

There also was involvement from different committees but they had a hard time coming to an agreement about how the honors should be done. This year the four-person committee (which Ritter and Joseph aren't on) nominated 10 graduates.

Ritter said to be inducted graduates must have achieved one or more of the following: an advanced degree; a significant life achievement honor or award; or a significant contribution toward improving the lives of others.

"There were two things we wanted to accomplish," Ritter said. "We wanted to honor Charlevoix graduates who went on to do amazing things. Number two we thought it would be good for our students to realize coming from Charlevoix you can do what you want to do and set your mind to it. In my mind I think that's equally as important."

Joseph said he expects the ceremony to go along nicely. He added there isn't an exact spot for the plaques yet, but they will be placed somewhere in the high school near the front offices. The costs of the hall of fame are entirely covered by donations, Joseph said.

"Really anyone should come. I would love for the classmates of these people to come. We will involve the students, maybe it will inspire some of them."

room in front of a computer screen. Once I realize who it is I call out to her. "Hey mom," I whisper. She gives me a smile and keeps clicking away. I realize she is still doing work from her job as a preschool teacher and think about all of the people who work overtime to benefit their town. She is working late to make sure that everything is perfect for her students.

This is the most important thing someone in the city can do. My mom, and all teachers, should get so much more credit than they do. Just because they are not jumping into flaming buildings or fighting out in the battlefield doesn't mean that they aren't heroes. My mother is my hero because she cares for her students — and everyone she meets — while still having time for her kids.

An average day at my mom's work requires her to be happy and upbeat all day while teaching thirty-six four-year-olds what school is all about. She makes them want to come back to school, which sets them on a good path for their future. As her class is often a student's first "school experience," she is occasionally met with tears of kids who miss their moms. This is where my mom really shines. She has a special gift that makes little people feel very safe and loved around her. She is able to calm the teary-eyed children and still pay attention to her other students. She is such a great teacher and mentor for her kids in and out of the classroom.

A lot of people have the preconceived idea that because my mom is around kids all day she doesn't want to spend any more time with her children than she has to. They think that teachers need and get a break because of their job. If this is true, my brother, my sister, and I would never know it. She comes home every day and helps us finish our homework, makes us dinner, and packs our lunches for the next day at school. She does all of this while keeping the house clean and trying to spend some quality time with each of us. When she asks us how school was, she seems like she actually wants to know. She also comes to all of our sporting events and cheers like nobody is watching. She is my biggest supporter, and I don't know what I would do without her constant affirmation.

My mom is an everyday hero. Her job holds so much more importance than some people think. She works late hours, prepares young children for their journey ahead, and still has time for me. She isn't just my hero; all her students look up to her too. They think it is the best thing ever when they get to see her out and about. The list of things she does for my family and her students is endless, and that is why she is my Personal Michigan

Rayders shut out Vikings, split with Boyne City

CHARLEVOIX — Two sophomores came up big on the mound for Charlevoix as it swept a nonconference doubleheader with Alanson on Tuesday, 2-0 and 8-0.

Garrett Seese struck out 11, walked one and gave up four hits in a complete game shutout in Game 1 for the Rayders, while Colin Smith struck out four, walked none and gave up three hits in a shutout of his own in Game 2.

"(Garrett and Colin) did a nice job tonight of taking command and throwing strikes from the first pitch," Charlevoix coach Nick Vuilleumot said. "It's really nice when you've got quality pitching on the mound and good defense behind it, and it takes a lot of pressure off your team."

In Game 1, Christian Matye had an RBI double for the Rayders and Jordan Adkins an RBI single as Charlevoix got just enough offense to top Alanson ace Brett Williams, who finished with five strikeouts and conceded just two hits of his own.

Matye continued his hot streak in Game 2, extending his streak of RBI hits to five with two doubles that drove in five total runs.

Hunter Cox added an RBI single as well, Smith chipped in a single and Austin Putman drove in a run.

Charlevoix (6-7-1, 2-2 LMC) hosts East Jordan on Thursday for a big conference doubleheader.

"Everyone so far in our league has been competitive, and while I wouldn't say that the title race is wide open, it does feel like any team can beat any other on any given night," Vuilleumot said. "We have a real chance if we can keep improving and play consistently, and our players are hungry to try and make that happen."

CHARLEVOIX — Area teams are rounding into form as the track season approaches the midway point, with impressive times and close team races the norm at recent meets.

That includes Tuesday's tri-meet in Charlevoix between the host Rayders, Harbor Springs and East Jordan, where the Rams took first place in both the boys and girls meets, but faced stiff challenges from both of their opponents for the title.

On the boys side, Harbor Springs swept the distance races to finish with 63 points, East Jordan put up 56.5 points to finish second, and Charlevoix was also close behind the Rams in third place, with 51.5 points.

Jared McLean led the Rayders with a first place finish in the 100 dash (11.58) and ran on three winning relays, the 800 relay (1:36.05), the 400 relay (45.87) and the Charlevoix's Kelsey Engstrom takes a shot from the top of the box that would score the Rayders' first goal in a 2-1 win over the visiting T.C. Liberty on Monday.

Engstrom, Rayders hold off TC Liberty, 2-1

CHARLEVOIX — Host Charlevoix felt plenty of pressure from a tough Traverse City Liberty squad in girls soccer action on Monday.

The Rayders responded with pressure of their own, and used that pressure to set up both its goals in a tight 2-1 victory.

Trailing 1-0 in the first half and looking for an equalizer, Charlevoix pushed its forwards and midfielders up and aggressively went after the ball in the Liberty's end, preventing their defenders from clearing it and setting up Kelsey Engstrom in the center of the box for a scoring strike that tied the game at 1 all.

Engstrom's goal came on a nice cross into the box from forward Rachel Nesburg, and a similar series of events set up Engstrom again in the 65th minute for the game-winner.

Once again, pressure from Charlevoix's forwards kept the Liberty locked in their own end and forced them to concede a corner.

And when Isabel Hess crossed the ball into the box, Engstrom was again in position to pounce on it for her second goal of the night and a game-winner.

"I thought Kelsey did a great job with her positioning tonight and created several good chances for herself," Charlevoix coach Pete Schoiten said. "Combine that with a couple of great crosses into the box and good finishes and it really made the difference for us."

The Liberty proved to be a tough out for Charlevoix, striking first with a goal by Kelli Mannes on the counterattack 15 minutes in and creating several good chances early in the second half in an attempt to retake the lead.

Rayders place 10th at T.C. Tee-Off, second in first LMC Jamboree

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

ACME — The Charlevoix golf team put on an impressive showing at the annual T.C. Tee Off hosted by Traverse City Central and Grand Traverse Resort on Friday and Saturday.

Competing against a field of schools from across the state in Division 2, 3, and 4, most of them significantly larger than Charlevoix, the Rayders performed well, shooting a 344 on Friday to enter the final day sitting in seventh place.

Charlevoix couldn't match that mark on Saturday, carding a 363 to finish 10th with a two-day total of 707, but did finish the day as the school in the top 10 by a school with 300 students.

LMC Meet at A-Ga-Ming
Kewadin — The season's first

Lake Michigan Conference jamboree, held on Wednesday at A-Ga-Ming Golf Resort in Kewadin, should have all four area squads thinking they have a shot at the league crown.

It should also make clear that whoever wins, the race is going to be close until the end.

With weather cancelling what was originally supposed to be the first jamboree at Grand Traverse Resort on Monday, the conference's first action came on Wednesday, with Harbor Springs edging Charlevoix by two strokes, 351-353, to claim first place.

Just seven strokes separated the winning Rams and third place Boyne City, who carded a 356, while East Jordan and Traverse City St. Francis finished within striking distance, shooting 365 and 366, respectively.

Depth was the name of the game for Harbor Springs, which Rayders survive wild Game 2, sweep Alanson in doubleheader

JAMES GUNTERBLUM

CHARLEVOIX — The Rayder offense was potent all night, combining for 36 hits and 38 runs in a doubleheader sweep of Alanson on Tuesday, but defensive struggles in Game 2 made the victory a hard-earned one.

Skylar Herriman won Game 1 for the Rayders, striking out seven and giving up four hits in a 16-3 victory, and Charlevoix's offense backed her up with 16 hits, led by Nichole Hart's three, including a triple.

Shelby Wurst and Emoneyah Ford each chipped in a single and a double, and Hannah Solomon, Emily Shrift and McKenna Ebert each added two hits as well.

In the nightcap, the Rayders finished with 20 hits and 22 runs, leading 11-3 early and 22-16 entering the final inning, but defensive errors cost Charlevoix.

It wasn't until Ellie Louise induced an Alanson groundout for the final out with the bases loaded in the top of the sixth that Charlevoix finished off a 22-21 victory.

Solomon led Charlevoix with four hits, Haley Coss chipped in three, including two doubles, and Kara Simpson added three as well.

Herriman added a single and a home run, Shrift chipped in a single and a double and Hart added two hits for the Rayders.

The sweep ends a four-game skid for Charlevoix, who fell to Boyne City 18-0 and 17-1 last Thursday in a doubleheader, and dropped tournament games to Kingsley and Tawas in the Boyne City invitational over the weekend.

Charlevoix (7-9, 0-4 LMC) travels to East Jordan on Thursday for its next doubleheader.

CCJGA prepares to award scholarships for 22nd year

CHARLEVOIX — For the 22nd year, the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association is preparing to select 5-7 of its own members to receive scholarships to the prestigious Ferris State University Golf Camp this summer.

Honorees will be chosen from applicants who have attended more than half of the previous summer's CCJGA sessions and are of at least 12 years of age, and packets have already been mailed out to 35 Charlevoix youths who meet the criteria.

Winners will be selected based on their dedication to golf, their potential as a player, their responses to the official application questions and by references included with their submitted applications.

The deadline to apply is May 16, and winners will be announced on June 11 at the same time as sign-up for the 2016 CCJGA program.

Over the program's existence, it has helped 127 golfers from the Charlevoix area attend the camp at Ferris State.

"It's a great opportunity for Juniors to be exposed to one of the state's great universities that has an impressive reputation for motivating campers to be thinking of higher education while mixing with campus students and teaching professionals," CCJGA director Dean Davenport said. "When they return home, parents are excited to notice a change in attitude and motivation by their youngsters."

The CCJGA also will be hosting sign-ups soon for its 2018 program, with attendees getting a chance to play on high-caliber courses like the Belvedere, the Antrim Dells, the Charlevoix Country Club and the Municipal—Charlevoix Golf Course free of charge as a part of the program.

In addition to local teaching pros, the CCJGA also has over 20 volunteer mentors who have helped the program earn a ranking among the nation's best.

day in Charlevoix.

Led by a dominant outing from ace Derek Willis, Boyne City rolled to a 6-1 victory in Game 1 of the doubleheader, while the Rayders' Hunter Cox shut out the Ramblers in the nightcap, outdueling Boyne City's Mason Gardner to win Game 2 2-0 and force a split.

After a shaky first inning in Game 1 that included giving up an RBI single to Charlevoix's Christian Matye, Willis pitched five straight scoreless innings to secure the win for Boyne City, finishing with five strikeouts and conceding just one hit.

Offensively, Boyne City did all of its damage in the second inning, scoring six runs.

The Ramblers loaded the bases and Ethan Hewitt opened the floodgates with a two-run single, and Coiton Sieradski followed that hit up with a two-run triple of his own.

Tristan Stackus finished with two hits in the Game and drove in a run as well.

Austin Putman took the loss for Charlevoix, which got four innings of no-hit ball in relief from Colin Smith, who struck out seven.

In Game 2, Cox scattered three hits and struck out five to earn the shutout victory on the mound for the Rayders.

Matye came through again with the big hit for Charlevoix, scoring two on a double in the third inning for the winning runs, and Jordan Adkins and Mason Louisville each singled as well.

JV Baseball

BOYNE CITY — Charlevoix's JV baseball squad opened Lake Michigan Conference play last Thursday with a sweep of host Boyne City, 6-5 and 8-0.

Colin Davis struck out 12 on the mound to earn the Game 1 win for the Rayders, while Jacob Harrod finished 2 for 2 with two RBIs.

Adam Hybl added a two-run single for Charlevoix, and Michael Pearsall, Tre Hart, Nathan Pearl, Josh Carlson and Spencer Haan each added a single.

In Game 2, Hybl threw a complete game shutout, giving up four hits and striking out five for the win for Charlevoix.

Jacob Harrod hit a RBI double, and Davis, Pearl, and Hart each chipped in an RBI single for the Rayders.

Pearsall and Carlson each added a single, while Hybl and Michael Webb each finished with an RBI as well.

Charlevoix is now 9-3 overall and 2-0 in the LMC.

In the field, Caleb Hart was runner-up in the shot put (41-9) and Eric Smith tied for second in the high jump (5-4).

Also for Charlevoix, Noah Carson took third in the 400 dash (54.4), Tyvin Whittaker took third in the 200 dash (26.08), Ben Peterson took third in the 3,200 run (11:52.18), and Nick Bradley took third in the long jump (16-7).

Justin Bond added a fourth place finish in the discus (98-9) for the Rayders, and Jon Pischner finished fourth in the 400 dash (56.87).

On the girls side, Harbor Springs scored 68 points to win, and East Jordan put up 47 points to take second.

Charlevoix finished third, with 39 points, led by strong days from Izzy Witthoef, who won the 100 dash in 13.48 and the 400 dash in 1:06.96, and Michelle Bollini, who took first in the 1,600 run (5:40.21) and ran a leg on the winning 3,200 relay (10:40.21).

Witthoef added a second place finish in the 200 dash (29.11) as well, and Grace Whitley took second in the 300 hurdles (58.93) for the Rayders.

Emma Kane finished third in the 100 hurdles (22.14) for Charlevoix. Lukla Witthoef took fourth in the 400 dash (1:10.95) and Bree Farmer took fourth in the 200 dash (30.70).

Aaron Troilo and Cole Ketterer each shot an 86 to tie for sixth place and lead the Rams, while Cam Kennard shot an 87 to finish just behind the pair in eighth place.

Keith Fitzpatrick carded a 92 to round out the Rams' scoring golfers, shooting the best score of any fourth golfer in the round by five strokes to help Harbor Springs clinch first place.

Charlevoix finished just behind, led by junior Matt Good, who carded an 82 to finish in a three-way tie for medalist honors with Boyne City's Griffin Powers and East Jordan's Logan Smith.

Collin Turkidson carded an 83 for the Rayders as well, finishing fourth, Tanner Drost shot a 90 and Tyler Fuchs a 98 to round out Charlevoix's top four on the day.

Boyne City's Powers was part of the three-way tie for first to lead the Ramblers, while teammate Tanner Evans shot an 88 to finish tied for ninth place with Caleb Wedemeyer of Elk Rapids.

Trenton Glem carded an 89 and Taylor Hubbard a 99 as well for Boyne City to round out the Ramblers' scoring golfers.

East Jordan's Smith also tied for first to lead the Red Devils, who edged T.C. St. Francis by a stroke for fourth place.

Britten Lewis shot a 90 for East Jordan, Jackson Robbins carded a 93 and Trent Raymond a 100 to round out the scores for the Red Devils.

But Charlevoix's defense proved largely up to the task after halftime, steering most of those chances away from the net.

And when the Rayders' freshman goalkeeper, Emily Hinkley, was tested in the second half, she was ready, making a leaping save and punching the ball out of play on a shot to the top left corner that was a sure goal without her intervention.

Strong defensive play lined up with a consistent effort to be first to the ball that paid off for the Rayders (6-3-1, 5-1 LMC) in the end.

"We said coming into this game that if we played lacrosse-style soccer, we'd get beat, and that we had to win balls in the air if we wanted to pull it out," Scholten said. "I thought overall we did a good job of that."

"We were first to the ball more often than not, and that allowed us to limit their chances and create looks for ourselves, including both of our goals."

Charlevoix 5,
Benzie Central 1

CHARLEVOIX — Heading into Friday's matchup, the Charlevoix girls' soccer team already had a plethora of scoring threats opposing teams had to worry about.

After a 5-1 win over Benzie Central, the Rayders now have two more options.

Sophomore Emily Chomiczewski and freshman Payton Novotny each scored their first career varsity goals in the win.

Benzie got on the board first against Charlevoix, scoring following a direct kick from 30 yards out.

It would be all Rayders from there, though.

Raigan Novotny set up Keley Engstrom to tie the game 1-1 less than 10 minutes later, then Engstrom found Kylee Scholten with 13 minutes left in the first half to make it 2-1 heading into the half.

Rachel Neuburg assisted Engstrom for her second goal, eight minutes into the second then Engstrom earned her second assist, setting up Payton Novotny.

Chomiczewski's first career varsity goal then came a minute later, off the assist of Payton Novotny, giving the game its final score.

Emily Hinkley earned the win in goal for Charlevoix, making three saves in the game.

Charlevoix 5,
Grayling 2

GRAYLING — The best and fastest way to get over a tough loss comes in the form of a win.

For the Charlevoix girls' soccer team, rebounding from an 8-0 loss to Cadillac came on Wednesday against Grayling.

After being down 2-1 quickly after halftime to the Vikings, Charlevoix knocked in four second half goals to run away with a 5-2 Lake Michigan Conference win.

Neuburg and Engstrom each finished with a pair of goals, Engstrom with two assists. Kylee Scholten finished the game with three assists and Grace Wey added a goal as well.

In goal for the Rayders, Emily Hinkley finished with the win and three saves on the night.

TOP RIGHT: Dan Myers is a water resource specialist for Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council. Myers spends most of his spring and summer days out on a boat monitoring water quality and clarity.

RIGHT: Myers tests water clarity with a secchi disk. BELOW: A secchi disk is dropped into the water and slowly lowered until it can't be seen anymore. The measuring tape on the disk shows what depth the disk is at to help determine water clarity.

ABOVE: Myers holds a Kemmerer bottle. A Kemmerer bottle is used to collect water samples at varying depths. The bottle is dropped in the water and when it reaches the correct depth, a metal bullet shaped top is sent down the line to close the bottle and collect a water sample.

LEFT: Myers demonstrates how to measure rope length while dropping the Kemmerer in the water. Each arm span is roughly five feet which helps him know how far he has dropped the Kemmerer. INSET LEFT: Water sample bottles are labeled with the lake, depth and where in the lake each sample was taken from. They are then stored in a cooler to keep them cold because if they sit out in the sun it could affect the levels or parameters of what is being tested.

Charlevoix superintendent gets high marks

JORDAN SPENCE

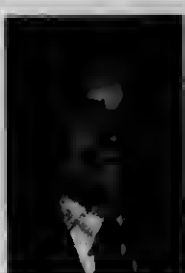

(231) 439-9397 - jspe@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — School board members in Charlevoix gave first-year superintendent Michael Ritter a "highly effective" rating during a recent public meeting.

The board discussed Ritter's evaluation during the last regular meeting, which was Monday, May 2.

The evaluation is based on three areas — communication, leadership with staff and academics. The evaluation and criteria are set by the Michigan Association of School Boards.

"He goes to the Lions, Rotary, goes to all the events and his communication with community is highly effective," school board

Ritter

Over the next few years as superintendent, Ritter said there are more goals he wants to achieve.

"The finances are incredibly important," Ritter said. "As far as leadership, I spent a great deal of time getting to know staff and building the culture of trust. That will continue to be an area of focus."

president Dick Joseph said.

"He's even ridden all the bus routes, talked with custodial staff, bus drivers, teachers. He's really exhibited how highly effective he is there, too."

He said he also hopes to strengthen his communication skills through writing articles, posts on social media and "making sure whenever possible to lead in a collaborative way with principals and teachers."

Academically he said the focus is on math.

"The students' reading scores are outstanding, so math is our focus," Ritter said.

He said they will purchase consistent math materials, and more professional development.

"There is also an online assessment program, (we) hope to build on that," Ritter said. "There are two data points to work with teachers to help set goals for students. We use that data to drive

Wine tasting debuts at Charlevoix Farmers Market

LONNIE ALLEN

(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Connor Dennis provided free wine samples made from the grapes of the family farm vineyard Thursday for the first time at the Charlevoix Farmers Market.

Dennis and a little more than 15 other vendors attended the season debut of the farmers market last week in Charlevoix. They set up their tables along Bridge Street next to East Park with the harbor and Round Lake providing the backdrop.

"It's always nice to be able to let the people taste your wine," Dennis said. "This is a great addition to the market."

Plus, he said, it's great to sell the family wine in Charlevoix.

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Planning Commission on Monday gave the go-ahead to the proposed development of a drive-through restaurant and retail space where the former Juilleret's restaurant is.

In what was a unanimous vote, the commission voted to move the Bridge Street Commons project forward to the Charlevoix City Council for review at its meeting on Monday, May 16.

The commission looked at whether the development proposal — restaurant and retail space, as well as a potential second phase building containing retail/office space — met the city's site plan standards for the property.

"I think it is commendable to (Doug LaBelle) that we have a plan before us in such a reasonably short amount of time from this property being available for development," said Planning Commission member Rick Golding.

Doug LaBelle, who has developed property downtown, said this plan is a good direction for the property.

"Hopefully everything will go right on this plan," LaBelle said. "I live here and feel I have a vested interest in the area. I think this venture will be a great addition to the area."

Adam Kline, Pigs Eatin' Ribs owner, has already committed to

"Michigan and American Chillers" author Johnathan Rand visited with the Charlevoix Elementary School second through sixth-grade students. Rand entertained students with anecdotes and life lessons emphasizing the importance of reading, writing and persistence. He also found time to teach students how to do a scary laugh, which is necessary for writing scary books. The visit was made possible with a grant from the Charlevoix Schools Foundation and the many friends and parents who contributed through a fundraiser on DonorsChoose.org.

WPA project builds municipal playground

COMPILED BY LORRAINE ALLIN

Editors Note: The year is 1936 and the name of the newspaper is the Charlevoix Courier. "That was then" is a weekly feature by the Charlevoix Courier that will take news headlines from the front page of a past Charlevoix Courier to share with today's readers. To read full articles visit charlevoixlibrary.org/charlevoix-history and click on the year-books and newspapers tab.

The development of a playground on Round Lake Harbor was considered to be one of the most progressive moves by the Charlevoix City Council to date, was noted in an article in the Charlevoix Courier that ran as front page news on this day in 1936.

Municipal Playgrounds Started; Will Develop Property on Round Lake Harbor are the two headlines leading into an article that would explain the planned construction of tennis and shuffle board courts along with the installation of playground equipment in an area that would eventually be known as East Park. These playground proposals were all approved by the city council, according to the article. "Work on a revised plan for developing property acquired by the city for parking purposes on the east side of Bridge Street between Clinton and Mason streets was started Tuesday morning as a WPA project — Work Progress Administration was part of the New Deal started by President Franklin Delano Roosevelt. The plan, backed by the Board of Commerce and approved by council, calls for the establishment of a municipal playground equipped with various recreational facilities centrally located in the business district on Round Lake," reported the Courier. Two terraces were to be completed in the project where the second terrace or lower level would be the tennis courts, shuffle board and children's playground equipment, while the up level will be sodded and planted with shrubbery and cement stairways will be built to access the grounds. Plans of the project included straitening out the water front line, providing a fill behind the sheet piling to extend the south property line into Round Lake about 20 feet. "If approval is given and when the work is completed, the city will build yacht slips along the lake front," according to the article. "Action to establish a playground on Round Lake is considered by many as one of the most progressive moves taken here in many years."

Township board approves road, boat launch repairs

LOUISE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558
allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — At the regular May 9 meeting, the Charlevoix Township Board approved spending approximately $181,000 to make repairs to a local road and a boat launch.

The board has about $200,000 in its 2015-16 budget for road repairs with an additional $100,000 being used for road maintenance and minor repairs.

"This project will tie up nearly all of the funds in our road budget," said township treasurer Theda Williams.

Cost of the Mount McSaub Road project will be $161,399 and the improvements to the Lake Michigan boat launch on Lake Shore Drive will carry a $20,000 price tag.

About a mile-long stretch of Mount McSaub Road from Division Avenue to Pleasant Street is now being scheduled for wedge work and a 2-inch overlay, said township supervisor Chuck Center.

"The work also includes bike and walking path improvements along the road," Center said.

No start date is set for Mount McSaub Road, but the project is scheduled to be complete by Sept. 30, Center said.

The board also looked at the cost to repair Waller Road, which is estimated at $260,000 for the 1.5 miles of roadway. "That project will depend on the renewal of the operational millage," Center said. "Once the millage renewal passes we will plan on Waller Road and have a new road budget for the next fiscal year."

Center said the cost of boat launch improvements could be less with the help of local employer St. Marys Cement.

"We may pay less than $20,000 because St. Marys Cement has agreed to help with the construction portion of the ramp," Center said.

Approximately 10 local fishermen attended the meeting to learn more about the plans for the improvements to the launch, Center said.

"The fishermen they want to fish for from that launch are right in that area," Center said. "It's a convenience for them."

This launch is an "ideal" location for small fishing boats, Williams said. "For those using small boats it is a trip for them to launch at Ferry Beach because they travel from Lake Charlevoix, through Round Lake to Lake Michigan," Williams said. "The fishermen said this would make the fishing trips shorter and even extend their season."

The improvement costs include the engineering, material and labor cost. Performance Engineers, Inc., in Charlevoix will work with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and Department of Environmental Quality before moving forward on the boat launch.

"Since it is an existing launch they don't anticipate any problems getting this done," said township clerk Sandra Witherspoon.

Gallery gearing up for summer opening

SEAN MILLER
(231) 439-9378
smiller@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — In business since 2001, the Cycling Salamander is preparing to open for the upcoming summer season.

Owned by Rebecca Giotfelty, the gallery got its unique name from two separate aspects of her life.

"The name came about because I was an avid cyclist and did a lot of races and cycling. As a kid I used to vacation at my parents' cottage on Lake Charlevoix, and would spend most of the day looking for salamanders and things like that. That's sort of where the gallery name came from," said Giotfelty.

Since opening 15 years

"I like that I have a close relationship with all of the artists."

Rebecca Giotfelty

ago, Giotfelty has incorporated fine and visual art into her gallery with displays both geared to sell and more for display only.

"Sometimes I show work that other galleries may not. One time I had a commentary on war that I didn't expect people to be buying but it was important to me, and to the artist, to show that," she said.

Cycling Salamander also offers a space for jam sessions for musicians to gather and play music together. Sometimes the gallery will even host small performances in a house concert style. Yoga and art classes will also be offered throughout the summer for those interested.

Giotfelty prides herself on getting to know, and become friends with, artists and patrons who come through the gallery.

"I don't have hundreds of artists; I have maybe 25 or 30. Everyone I represent at the gallery are either friends or have become friends through the years," she said.

"I like that I have a close relationship with all of the artists. We do have a few new artists come through occasionally but many of them I have had since I opened years ago."

Cycling Salamander will officially open on Saturday, May 21, for the summer season. During the opening there will also be a collage class taught by Beth Bynum between 10 a.m.-3 p.m.

For more information, contact the Cycling Salamander (231) 838-6460 or visit www.cycling-salamander.com. Cycling Salamander is located at 02217 U.S. 31 South in Charlevoix.

Hayes Township seeks volunteers for Camp Sea-Gull clean-up day

CHARLEVOIX — The Hayes Township Parks and Recreation Committee seeks volunteers to help on the first day of spring cleaning at the Hayes Township Camp Sea-Gull Park. The spring cleaning will take place at 9 a.m. on Saturday, May 21. Camp Sea-Gull is located at 08580 Boyne City Road, Charlevoix. Volunteers of all ages are welcome to give whatever time they can spare for the clean-up day.

Volunteer activities include raking leaves, trimming, clean-up of branches and tearing down a wood fence. Volunteers also will remove the cafeteria stage and all items left in the cafeteria building, clean the cafeteria, bathrooms and wash windows. Volunteers skilled in construction are needed to repair the cafeteria deck. Those mechanically inclined are needed to assemble the grill and power washer. A light lunch will be provided to all volunteers. The Hayes Township Parks and Recreation Committee appreciates all the individuals, families, organizations and businesses who donate their time, expertise and materials.

The Hayes Township Parks and Recreation Committee is excited about welcoming Camp Sea-Gull's summer 2016 host family. This summer Camp Sea-Gull's resident host family will be Charlevoix High School graduates Adam and Christine Laucher. Adam grew up in Charlevoix and Christine in Hayes Township.

They are returning to Charlevoix County from North Carolina. Adam, having a college degree in conservation and water management, helped create green jobs in Asheville and maintained streams and storm water systems for the City of Durham. Christine co-founded a nonprofit to engage high school students in their communities and traveled the country to share her expertise.

As former camp counselors, the Lauchers plan to create inviting camp experiences for the community and to develop special youth programs at Camp Sea-Gull. They hope to host weekly events including large group games, bonfires with music and s'mores and a morning play group for children and parents.

To volunteer or for more information, call Mariene Golovich at (231) 547-6961 or email clerk@hayestownship-mi.gov.

OPINIONS yours & ours

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

So what is happening with the CPS bond?

This is an important question I have received a number of times this year and I want to provide our community with an update of our current progress and focus for the coming years.

I will begin with what we have accomplished thus far in the 2015-2016 school year and finish with where we are headed in the coming years.

This year our board of education approved the purchase of three new buses, MacBooks for students in grades 7-12, new copiers to replace our 8-9 year old machines, sealed and repaired parking lots, installed new foam insulation in the bus garage, upgraded our technology firewall, and completed the safety and security upgrades at Charlevoix Elementary School and Charlevoix Middle/High School. Each of these expenditures were incredibly important and we are thankful for your support!

We have a number of potential projects planned for Charlevoix Elementary School and those plans will begin when our board of education makes a determination on future facility use. Our community facility study team is currently researching our current and future facility needs and will make a recommendation to the board of education this year about the buildings owned by our district. A few of the high priorities at the elementary school are roofing, carpet, door handle hardware, communication system for the playground, new sinks and countertops, and playground upgrades, just to name a few.

Technology replacement and upgrades will be shared in a future article. We did recently receive e-rate funding from the government that will allow us to make upgrades at a significant reduction. For every dollar we spend on technology infrastructure, we will receive a 70 percent reimbursement from the government.

Resurfacing of the track and refinishing the middle/high school gym floor projects are currently out for bids and the plans for an auxiliary gym are being studied by a committee led by Travis Garrett, our athletic director.

I want to thank our community and our board of education for their continued support of our schools, students, faculty and staff.

Hospice: A concept of care

When you hear the word "hospice," you might imagine a facility — a place that provides physical care to people who are terminally ill and at the final stages of life.

If so, you'll be surprised to learn that "hospice" doesn't refer to a physical place at all.

Hospice is a concept of care that can be applied in many different ways, in different circumstances, and in whatever physical spaces are best suited to the needs of the individual and his or her family. Unlike medical care, hospice care does not seek to cure illness; rather, it is focused on maintaining or improving the quality of life when curative treatments are no longer an option. Eighty percent of hospice care is provided in the patient's home, family member's home, assisted living facilities and nursing homes.

The hospice concept of care extends beyond the patient, and beyond medical and physical boundaries. It recognizes and supports the role of caregivers in assuring the hospice patient can enjoy the best possible quality of life. It may encompass environmental, spiritual, family and other considerations in developing the patient's plan of care, and it may change in response to the patient's condition.

Many hospice organizations are Medicare-certified. To that end, they are required to provide specific services to the patient and his or her family:

- Time and services of the care team, including visits to the patient's location by the hospice physician, nurse, medical social worker, home health aide, volunteers and chaplain/spiritual advisor.
- Medication for symptom control or pain relief.
- Medical equipment, like wheelchairs or walkers, and medical supplies, like bandages and catheters.
- Physical and occupational therapy for pain relief and comfort.
- Speech language pathology services.
- Dietary counseling.
- Any other Medicare-covered services needed to manage pain and other symptoms related to the terminal illness, as recommended by the hospice team.
- Short-term inpatient care, when adequate pain and symptom management cannot be achieved in the home setting.
- Short-term respite care

Amy Wieland, executive director Hospice of Northwest Michigan

for caregivers, to prevent caregiver burnout.

— Grief and loss counseling for patient and loved ones.

Not all services provided to patients enrolled in hospice care are covered by insurance or the Medicare Hospice benefit. In fact, only about 85 percent of patient and family needs are covered. The remaining percentage can either be absorbed by the hospice provider, or can be billed back to the patient or family. The insurance benefit will not pay for:

— Any prescription drugs to cure the patient's illness or that are unrelated to that illness. While many prescriptions are no longer needed by the patient, others can be still utilized for comfort and quality of life.

— Room and board in a nursing home or hospice residential facility.

— Care in an emergency room, inpatient facility care or ambulance transportation, unless it is either arranged by the hospice team or is unrelated to the terminal illness.

— Any curative treatments related to the terminal illness.

Regardless of the services provided, it's essential to choose a hospice that is equipped to serve your needs, and those of your loved ones. Just remember that choosing hospice means pursuing the best possible quality of life — for yourself, or for a loved one facing terminal illness.

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

The first big business in the settlement called Pine River, officially known as Charlevoix in 1879, was fishing. Lake Michigan teemed with millions of tons of fish in the 19th century. It began with itinerant fishermen and their families arriving after the lake ice melted in late spring, and continued far into the year before the water froze again. They set up shacks and cabins on the shores of all three of our lakes, and rebuilt them as needed. Fishing grew into such importance here that by 1908 Charlevoix became the largest fish exporting "point" on the Great Lakes, having by that time amassed a freezing capacity for one million pounds of the "finny gold." A report made by the United States Commission of Fish and Fisheries, Report of the Commissioner for 1887, Washington, D. C., said: "... As early as 1866 three gangs of gill-net fishermen with 75 nets to a boat, began operations at Charlevoix. In 1885 there were 2,826 nets in the water, having a total length of 606,900 feet, the average length being about 35 fathoms (210 feet). [They] cost about $6.50 each. ... The steamers have no regular fishing grounds, but set their nets wherever the fish happen to be." In the winter of 1902, fisherman John O'Neil of Charlevoix alone set out 125 miles of nets in Lake Michigan. Warning signs of overfishing became evident around that time, but were not heeded. The fish tug J. W. Parmaiee is shown here bringing in a typical catch, packed to the gunwales. Loads of four tons were not unusual. As a result, fishing as it had long been known pretty much crashed in the 1920s.

Hours for May and June are noon-4 p.m. Tuesday through Friday; for July through Labor Day weekend hours will be Monday through Friday, noon-4 p.m. For more information, call (231) 547-0373.

Youth section at library: 'A surprise' around every corner

ADAM KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — If you are a parent, grandparent, friend of a child, a child, or just a child at heart you have probably visited the youth department at the Charlevoix Public Library. It is a special place where children play and learn surrounded by all forms of literacy.

"As you enter the youth department," said Audrey Shapiro, youth services supervisor, "every corner is a surprise. It makes people happy; it is a user-friendly, happy space and literacy is the impetus for all the fun."

This unique space is located in the north wing of the library. Here you will find an entire discovery center and children's library dedicated to visitors that range in age of birth to their teens. Babies and their parents as well as preschoolers will find a delightful play and discovery area complete with a boat, puppet theater, a magnetic refrigerator door and stuffed animals.

There are shelves of picture books, age appropriate puzzles, a kitchen, shopping cart and cubbies holding parent/child interactive games and activities with an early literacy focus. There is even a story phone tree for reading and listening.

Older children find a special section designated just for them: computers with touch screens, an elementary school grades library, activity tables, a Lego table and trees to snuggle in with age appropriate books.

The Oculus room is located at the farthest end of the youth wing. This room provides an area great for organized story hours, dance activities and craft centers. Outside this room there is a garden equipped with interactive musical instruments and a kaleidoscope.

Across the hall from the elementary school-aged library there is a 'tween' corner with books, games and a CD music collection. Teens gather after school in a room outfitted with computers and group work stations. Just inside the front lobby. Of course, there also are books and magazines everywhere children of all ages.

"We like to think that the youth area is run by adults who think like kids," Shapiro said.

Library director, Linda Adams, is understandably proud of the youth department.

"Our goal is to provide materials and a space that invites children to explore, interact and learn," Adams said. "Literacy development begins at birth and is closely linked to a child's earliest experiences with books, stories and play."

"Children learn language through social literacy experiences: hearing stories, playing with toys, interacting with others in a multitude of ways," Adams added. "We are always striving to provide a variety of materials and activities that enrich a child's literacy skills."

The mission statement of the Charlevoix Public Library is "to provide inspiration, information and education for the community." The youth area provides a joyful mix of books, activities and play. "By providing a fun and joyful environment, we hope children read much and play often," Adams said.

Annual benefit aids fund for local recipients

The 22nd Annual Bryan Roloff Memorial Benefit will begin at 1 p.m. on Sunday, May 15, at the Flight Deck, 6966 U.S. 31 South, Charlevoix.

There will be seven different bands playing to listeners who gather to remember the impact of the life of the music lover who performed in local bands. Some of the bands performing include: 3 Hearted; Loud Mouth Soup; Skarscasm; Sleeping Gypsies; Derailed; Jon Archambault Band; and Whiskey Creek. Many of these bands contain Bryan Roloff's compatriots and fellow musicians who along with friends and family members gather each year to remember Roloff, using the occasion to raise money for local families in need.

"Even now, after all this time, someone brings him up during a conversation nearly every day," said Bryan's mother, Shirley Roloff. "The community was so good to us when he passed, that we just wanted to give something back."

The Roloff family feels that this memorial concert is just the type of event he would have enjoyed and it is a way for them to keep his music and his spirit alive while helping others. Proceeds from the benefit go to the The Bryan Roloff Memorial Fund at Charlevoix State Bank that is funded annually for Northern Michigan recipients with a demonstrated need.

There will be a silent auction available on Facebook. There will be a $10 cover charge to cover food and venue costs for the event.

New workshop improves lives, lifestyles of seniors with diabetes

EAST JORDAN — There will be a diabetes Personal Action Toward Health workshop scheduled from 1-3 p.m. on Wednesdays, May 18 through June 22 at the East Jordan Senior Center, 951 Mill St., East Jordan.

Personal Action Toward Health is an evidence-based program created by Stanford University. The informative and interactive workshops are designed to help adults with type 2 diabetes develop healthy lifestyle skills. Organizers believe that people who attend Personal Action Toward Health improve their quality of life by being better able to face the daily challenges of living with diabetes. Through weekly goal-setting activities participants become more active, eat better and are more confident that they can manage their health. The workshop is taught by trained and certified leaders who understand chronic illness and have a personal connection to diabetes.

National statistics from the Center for Disease Control and the American Diabetes Association indicate that 25 percent of adults aged 65 and older have diabetes. And, due to the aging population, the number of seniors living with diabetes is projected to double in the next 20 years, even if the incidence rates level off. Additionally, seniors living with diabetes have greater risks than the younger-aged diabetes population. There are more acute chronic circulation problems and chronic circulation complications, including cardiovascular problems, reduction in functional status and increased risk of institutionalization and higher mortality rates.

In Michigan, and more specifically, northwest Michigan, current statistics suggest that 19,000 of the 76,000 seniors are living with the effects of diabetes. According to the CDC, lifestyle interventions, such as healthy eating, weight control and increased activity levels are significantly (22 percent) more effective for older adults.

The Area Agency on Aging of Northwest Michigan is offering more than a dozen six-week Diabetes Personal Action Toward Health workshops throughout northwest Michigan.

To achieve the full benefit of Personal Action Toward Health, participants are urged to attend all six workshops. Space is limited and pre-registration is required.

May is Community Mental Health Month

PETOSKEY — North Country Community Mental Health organizes events for Mental Health Month in May. "Life with a Mental Illness: Share Your Story" is this year's theme for North Country's May is Mental Health Month activities to recognize the fact that it is important for people to talk about how it feels to live with a mental illness.

"So often, clinical terms don't do justice to what life with a mental illness feels like," said Alexis Kaczynski, director of North Country Community Mental Health. "We know that two people with the same diagnosis can experience the same symptom and describe it in very different ways. Understanding the signs of a mental illness and identifying how it can feel can be confusing—and sometimes can contribute to ongoing silence or hesitation to get help."

"This Mental Health Month, we aim to increase the community conversation about the fact that mental illnesses are common and treatable, and help is available," Kaczynski added.

North Country Community Mental Health has planned the following activities during the month of May:

— 19th annual 5K Color Run and 1 Mile Walk — 2016 Splash of Color at Festival Park in Petoskey on May 14.

This event celebrates mental health and increases awareness of mental health issues during the month of May. Participants may pre-register at ncccmh.org. Race day registration and packet pick up will be from 9-9:30 a.m. the day of the event behind Petoskey City Hall. The color run begins at 10 a.m. The walk begins at 10:15 a.m. Walkers are invited to participate in the one mile walk. There is no charge for the walk. There also will be live music, post race/walk refreshments, door prizes, consumer and community recognition awards, and more. Proceeds benefit the North Country Consumer Council Special Needs Fund.

— Creative Minds, Changing Minds Traveling Art Show — A new statewide traveling art show will make its debut with North Country Community Mental Health. The show is comprised of about 25 pieces of art created by people who use community mental health services statewide, beautifully matted and framed. The show includes the work of local artist Scott Bergmann of Boyne City. Bergmann's piece is titled, "Fire House," and is in folk art style, painted on glass.

"Art helps you concentrate on what you are doing," Bergmann said. "Art makes me happy. People will like my art and that makes me feel good."

The show is sponsored by the Michigan Association of Community Mental Health Boards. There is no cost to attend and art is available to purchase at the show.

The show will travel to three venues during the month:

— May 5-11 at the Antrim County Building, 203 E. Cayuga, Bellaire

— May 12-19 at the Petoskey District Library, 500 E. Mitchell St., Petoskey

— May 20-31 at the Cheboygan Area District Library, 100 S. Bailey St., Cheboygan

North Country Community Mental Health provides services to residents of Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, Kalkaska and Otsego counties experiencing a serious mental illness, severe emotional problem, or intellectual/developmental disability, including individuals with a co-occurring substance use disorder. Persons wishing to know more about the organization are encouraged to visit ncccmh.org.

Outdoor chickens stronger, healthier, small farmers say

BY FRANKENHUYZEN
Local News Service

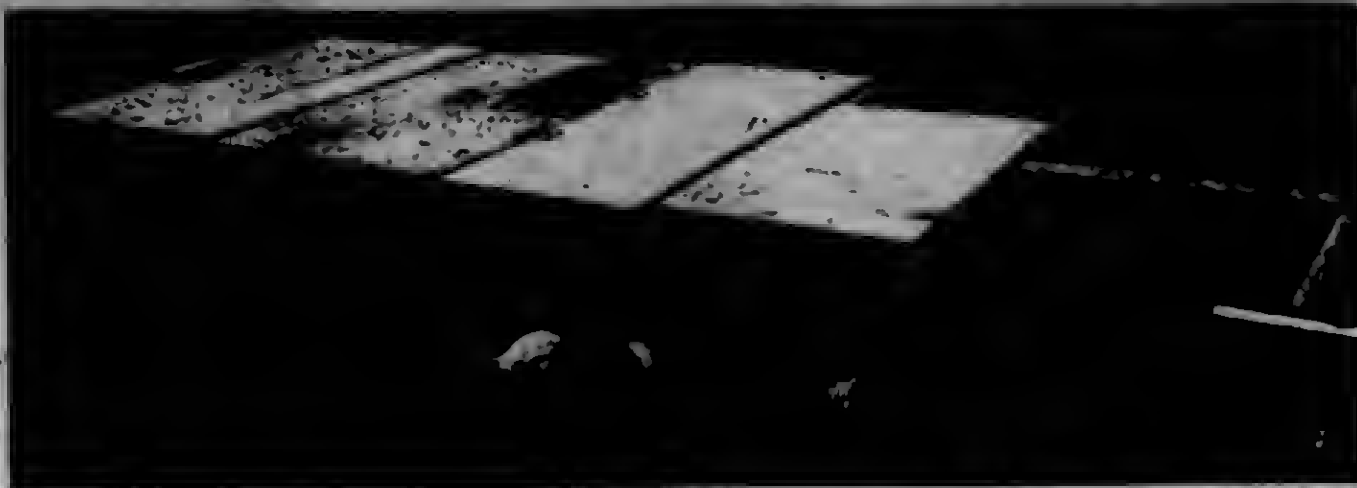

LANSING — Poultry farmers increasingly raise chickens, turkeys, ducks and geese in environmentally greener and healthier habitats, according to the American Pastured Poultry Producers Association.

"The concept is to produce good pastured poultry," said Roy Ballard, a Purdue University Extension educator. Pastured poultry is raised in open fields rather than indoors.

"As birds are raised outdoors, they are stronger and less need to be medicated than birds indoors, which can be overcrowded and stressed," said Corinne Carpenter, a small poultry farmer in Webberville.

Carpenter, owner of Break They Farm, raises both pastured and free range poultry. With pastured poultry, hens roam without fences, she said. Free range chickens roam in a fenced-in enclosure but have a coop to go into at night.

Her meat birds are raised with a portable shelter known as a Salatin-style chicken tractor. The shelter can move around the pasture so the birds are always on fresh grass, a key aspect of pastured poultry.

Smaller scale Salatin tractor is used for meat birds.

"I put meat birds in the shelters because meat birds are stupid," Carpenter said.

The shelter protects the birds from predators. Her laying chickens are smarter and can fly into trees when predators approach. Top poultry-producing counties in Michigan include Allegan, Oceana, St. Joseph, Montcalm and Mecosta.

Consumers increasingly demand local and healthier birds, according to Mike Badger, executive director of the poultry association. As evidence of the growing interest, his group has 1,100 members, up from 500 in 2013, Badger said. The organization focuses on farmers who want to make pastured poultry a profitable business.

"There are untold numbers of people raising family flocks in a pastured way," Badger said. "And while we support those folks in whatever way we can, our focus is on the economic viability of pastured poultry, and that includes everything from husbandry to marketing to processing to continuing education to cooking."

Purdue University's Extension service is developing a marketing initiative for pastured poultry to boost interest. Advocates regard it as more sustainable and humane for the birds.

"Our goal is to educate farmers about best practices for the birds and consumer," Ballard said.

Pastured poultry farming has been around for centuries. Large confinement facilities were created in the 1950s and most poultry in the United States are still raised in these factories, according to the poultry association.

Joel Salatin, owner of Polyface Farm in Virginia, is credited with promoting the practice. He invented the Salatin tractor from tinkering with an unused portable rabbit run. It's used to move chickens onto fresh grass while protecting them from predators.

"Salatin basically started promoting pasture poultry," said Kenneth Koelkebeck, a poultry specialist at the University of Illinois Extension.

The Salatin system requires no specialized or expensive machinery, according to a Michigan State University report that refers to Salatin's book, "You Can Farm." Seed, fertilizers and fuel are also reduced when grass instead of grain is grown. Vet bills are lower and the birds are healthier, according to the report.

A growing number of farmers have no interest in operating factory farms, according to the poultry association. Pastured poultry farms produce higher quality and farm-fresh products.

"I choose pastured poultry for product quality, a good quality of life for the birds and land utilization," said Andrew Larson, an Extension educator in local food systems and small farms at the University of Illinois.

Larson's programs teach farmers about business and marketing planning, backyard and small commercial poultry production, market strategy and sales and alternative crop and livestock production for small farms.

Larson also runs a small free range farm with 600 hens in the summer and 300 in the winter. He practices both types of poultry production with a crossbred strain that are great egg layers, hardy and docile, he said. These characteristics make them good for free range production. Larson sells his eggs to local restaurants, retail stores and farmers markets.

Larger pastured poultry farms often raise meat birds instead of eggs. With a large number of birds to be raised and processed, farmers have to find processing plants that will handle thousands of birds.

For example, Paul Ehrhardt, owner of JenEhr Farms in Wisconsin, raises about 8,500 meat birds a year. He processes them in Minnesota because it has the closest processing facility that can handle that many.

Home building makes comeback

Drawbridge Ventures owner Tim Fore, (left) and Matt Stuck, of Stuck Family Construction, pose in front of "The Macintosh," a new three-bedroom, two-bath home priced under $180,000 is being constructed in Applewood Estates off from Garfield Avenue. According to Fore it has been nearly 10 years since homes had been constructed in the development. "The main thing I hear in my conversations throughout Charlevoix is... there is no affordable homes in the area," Fore said. "My plan is to build affordable family homes on these remaining lots for people to purchase."

Foundation OKs $242,500 in community grant awards

The Board of Trustees of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently approved $242,520 in grants during the March grant cycle.

"Highlights include spring construction and capital campaign projects, summer camp programs, and community improvement projects. In addition, there will be a generous supply of food going to pantries and medical assistance for our neighbors in need because of these recent grant awards," said Maureen Radke, program officer with the foundation.

The awards include more than $27,000 in grants supporting projects that enhance the beautiful natural resources of Charlevoix County, an amount that includes a grant supporting the Little Traverse Conservancy's BioBlitz program, which will celebrate and explore the biodiversity of the Susan Creek Nature Preserve, and a grant to Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council in support of its Stover Creek Restoration and Protection project.

The grant awards also included $26,760 in funding for nine projects that will impact Charlevoix County youth in a positive way. The grants were recommended by the foundation's Youth Advisory Committee.

In addition to benefiting youth, the recent grants support programs in the arts, education, community development, the environment, human services, health and wellness, recreation and more.

"Area nonprofit agencies provide us with information on local issues and needs and we're able to connect them with donors that want to give back. That's the beauty of the community foundation grant making process at work," Radke added.

A charitable organization dedicated to improving and enriching life in the area, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation accepts gifts from individuals, families, businesses and civic groups and manages them as permanent endowments. While a portion of the funds are utilized to support grant making, the principal of the endowment continues to grow, providing perpetual charitable capital to benefit Charlevoix County's residents—now and in the future.

Since it was founded

In 1992, the community foundation's net assets have grown to $29.6 million. The foundation has also awarded more than $19.7 million in grants and scholarships, enhancing and enriching the quality of life in Charlevoix County.

The foundation welcomes inquiries and grant requests. The next deadline for grant requests is Monday, Oct. 3. For a complete list of the recent grant awards, visit c3f.org.

Customer service program offered at the Charlevoix Public Library

CHARLEVOIX — All front line customer service staff in the area are invited to attend "Give Them More Than They Expect!" from 8:30 a.m. on June 8, or from 6-8 p.m. June 14, in the Charlevoix Public Library Community Room, at 220 W. Clinton St., in Charlevoix. The program is designed for employees of retail, restaurant and other local businesses and organizations.

The workshop will help employees establish the initial customer relationship that involves greeting customers, eye contact, timing and informal conversation. This free program will walk participants through what it means to be a community and business ambassador.

"Customer service is one of the most important aspects of a successful business," said Alison Hubbard, president of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. "As a Chamber of Commerce, the greatest experience is essential to supporting our mission of a thriving business community."

Presenter B.J. Shawn, owner of Bearcat Outdoors in Petoskey has been successful in the Northern Michigan business community for 16 years. She has a Bachelor of Science degree in education from Michigan State University. She taught in Berkley Public Schools for 15 years before moving north. She has served as president of the Gaslight Association, board member of Northern Community Mediation, the Petoskey Rotary Club and the Petoskey Harbor Spring Community Foundation. Her current work involves working as a SCORE counselor and mentor with Leadership Little Traverse. She is the 2016 Athena Award recipient.

Customer service staff are also encouraged to become Charlevoix Certified. This online open book quiz will help increase staff knowledge about Charlevoix to help better serve the guest. The quiz questions were updated this year and coincides well with the Customer Service Training program.

"Creating a positive visitor experience is imperative to the success of the whole community," said Amanda Wilkin of the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau. "Our front line people need an awareness of Charlevoix to be able to direct our visitors to all of the amazing amenities available in our community."

To access the Charlevoix Certified quiz, go to charlevoixcertified.com.

The Charlevoix Public Library, Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, Charlevoix Main Street and the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau are partnering on these two programs.

"We looked for a way to help businesses train their employees, and also a way for employees to feel more comfortable in their role of representing their business and this community. Charlevoix is a welcoming community and a training like this will help all of us work together to greet our guests and patrons," said Linda Adams, library director.

Both training and Charlevoix Certified quiz are free, and are underwritten by the four planning organizations. Light refreshments will be served. To register for the training, call (231) 237-7349 or visit the calendar registration at charlevoixlibrary.org.

The Walloon Lake Winery is located at 3149 Intertown Road south of Petoskey.

"This is the first year the market is offering wine tasting. To enhance that section of the market, artisan chocolates, breads, dips and olives were added to pair with the wines.

"We have a lot to offer in this section of the market," Dennis said. "We are looking forward to a great season in Charlevoix."

Laura Case came to sell artisan chocolate from her business Beijo de Chocolat in Boyne City. She offered passersby sample bags of her Brazilian and Portuguese style chocolate for $1.

Case moved back to Michigan from Chicago. She is an International Chocolate Salon Grand Master Chocolatier. Case is one of 12 in the United States with that title from International Chocolate Salon.

"I'm thrilled to be home and thrilled to be part of this market," Case said. "This is a perfect pairing for the wines and other vendors."

Market manager Chris Leese said she is working closely with local farmers and businesses to make Charlevoix's farm-to-market a must-stop destination on Thursdays

"We are in a beautiful location and there are great offerings for our shoppers," Leese said.

Leese also works closely with the schools and other business to provide them days and bring local children to the market to learn more about locally grown and produced foods.

"We have so many school kids coming on field trips to the market," Leese said. "It is a such an opportunity of education and fun."

Leese is seeking volunteers for the next big market promotion day — Dog Days of Spring — on Thursday, May 26.

"It is a new event we are hosting," Leese said. "We are looking for dog-loving volunteers that morning to lend a hand."

There will be doggie games, picture with a pooch, silly prizes, and if there are enough participants wiener dog races will start at 11 a.m., Leese said.

"Bring your dog, if he does a trick, he gets a treat," she said. "It's a benefit for the Charlevoix Area Humane Society and the director Scott MacKenzie will MC."

"This is a new avenue for us and gives us the opportunity to remain open year-round," Kline said. "Pigs Eat'n Ribs new location will be a fast-casual concept that will ensure the same high quality food and customer service, with indoor seating, drive through, call ahead and carry out service."

Kline and his wife, Jill, are Charlevoix natives and each is a graduate of Charlevoix High School. After school they married and left the area for a short time in North Carolina in the food industry before they returned to Northern Michigan bringing their passion of good barbecue with them.

"We have a vested interest in Charlevoix and its growth," Kline said. "The new operation will create full time, year-round jobs."

Kline said the hardest part of being a seasonal business was staff layoffs each year.

"It is tough on your employees to do that after the season comes to an end," Kline said. "We definitely

Charlevoix Historical Society. "The exhibit takes a close look at the achievements Charlevoix's businesses and industry had here and throughout our nation."

Charlevoix Historical Society member Catherine Francis said the exhibit is impressive and an excellent display of the history of business and industry in and around Charlevoix throughout the years.

"It is a comprehensive exhibit," Francis said. "I encourage people to come and see it and learn about the how some of the products made in Charlevoix were used in key events in our nation's history."

As visitors maneuver through and around the exhibit, they are transported back to earlier days with photographs, signs, ephemera and other collectibles.

"We have 200 photographs and other images on display," said David Miles, museum curator. "Our goal for this exhibit is to emphasize what our economic base has done not only for ourselves, but how it has made such an impact elsewhere. Charlevoix is so far off the beaten path and so small that our importance in relation to our size and location is amazingly impressive."

From the early years of fishing and lumber to the days of ice-cutting and passenger lines bringing tourists to the area, visitors to the exhibit will see the impact these businesses had on the Charlevoix economy.

"Charlevoix has become most noted as a resort and tourist destination, but even before the first settlers put down permanent roots in 1854, the commercial lure of what was called 'lumber gold' attracted itinerant lumbermen to our shores during the temperate seasons," Miles said. "In 1908, Charlevoix became the biggest exporter of fish on the Great Lakes, helping to feed a nation. In 1871, the 2-year-old lumber company by the bridge sent out boatloads of lumber to help rebuild Chicago after the Great Fire, and later to build the Midwest."

One of the most notable portions of the exhibit revolves around the maritime industry and its impact on Charlevoix once the two channels were cut from Round Lake to Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix in 1869.

"Charlevoix's connections to the outside world spread like wildfire," Miles said. "With passenger steamers now able to come in, the resort industry began to blossom in the late 1870s. In 1897, it was reported that more maritime tonnage was passing through the waters of Charlevoix than any other port on the east side of Lake Michigan outside of Chicago. In 1898, the second largest hotel in Michigan after the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island was constructed in Charlevoix."

Portions of the exhibit point out Charlevoix's role to help bring about the end of World War II by building small lightweight boats that ferried tens of thousands of Allied troops across the rivers of Central Europe in the final push to Berlin — one of only two places in the country that did so, Miles added.

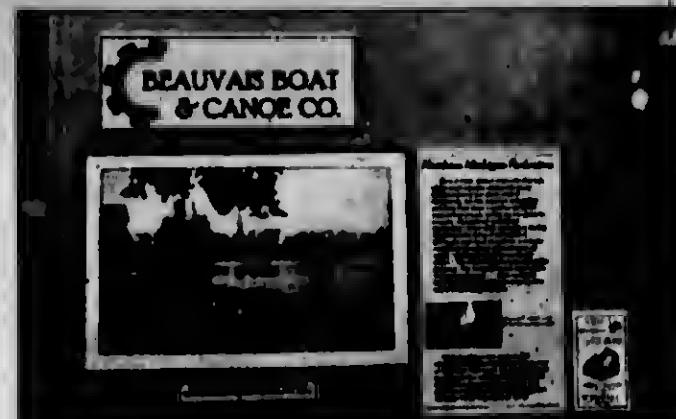

The exhibit also highlights the cement industry, the Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant, along with a brief description about how a Charlevoix manufacturing plant played an important role in the Apollo space program.

"The plant specialized in wire products," Miles said. "The company made the ultra-fine, ultra-strong, ultra-light wire fiber that was used to create a metal fabric that went into the Apollo program space suits."

Maritime business is one of the industries explored in exhibit, The Working World: Business and Industry in Charlevoix, at the Charlevoix Historical Society Museum. This piece recognizes the contributions made by the Beauvais Boat and Canoe Company to the area. The boat company was capable of building anything from large commercial steam vessels and private sailing yachts down to canoes. The Charlevoix Sentinel reported at the time that the "Beauvais boats have made themselves famous... (Beauvais) has reached the highest degree of perfection found in Northern Michigan."

It was the only company in the world that did this. When Neil Armstrong stepped onto the moon in 1969, that giant leap for mankind, Charlevoix was there with him in his boots and gloves."

The Charlevoix Historical Museum is open from noon to 4 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday.

Rayders win LMC Jamboree, avenge close loss to Rams

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

BOYNE FALLS — Harbor Springs got the better of Charlevoix in the season's first LMC Jamboree last Wednesday. On Thursday, the Rayders got to return the favor, outshooting the Rams 358-364 on the Alpine Course at Boyne Mountain to take a jamboree title of their own and even up the standings at one apiece.

Both Harbor Springs and Charlevoix put three golfers in the top 10, but the Rayders' second and third golfers finished higher than their Rams counterparts, and Charlevoix also had the edge in their fourth golfer's score as well to take the crown.

Tyler Fuchs led the way with a fourth place finish for Charlevoix, shooting an 87 and tying with Harbor Springs' Cole Letterer, who led his squad with an 87 as well.

The Rayders' Matt Good and Collin Turkleson each carded an 89 to finish tied for seventh as well for Charlevoix, while Harbor Springs' Keith Fitzpatrick CHARLEVOIX — Good hitting can solve a lot of problems in softball, as the Rayders found out in a doubleheader sweep of visiting Elk Rapids on Monday.

The Rayders finished with 35 hits to overcome an error-plagued outing defensively in 17-7 and 13-8 victories, led by Hannah Solomon, who went 9 for 10 at the plate on the night.

Emoneayh Ford finished with five hits as well for Charlevoix, and Skylar Herriman finished with four hits, including two doubles and also won both games on the mound, striking out 11 in 10 innings of work.

Emily Shrift hit a single and a double for the Rayders, and Haley Coss, Kara Simpson, McKenna Ebert, Shelby Wurst and Madison Olach all added two hits as well.

Charlevoix (9-11, 2-6 LMC) picked up their first conference wins of the season with the sweep, and will travel to Suttons Bay for a doubleheader on Thursday for its next outing.

East Jordan 8-7

EAST JORDAN — The Red Devils broke ties in each game in their final at-bats to sweep visiting Charlevoix 8-7 and 7-5 on Thursday.

After the Rayders scored five runs in the top of the fifth to take a 6-4 lead in Game 1, the Red Devils scored twice in the bottom of the inning to tie the game, then won in walk-off fashion in the sixth.

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

TRAVERSE CITY — It's no easy task to finish high at Traverse City's Ken Bell meet.

With the pedigree of local schools Traverse City Central and West, as well as the presence of Division 1 power East Kentwood, reaching the top of the podium takes a truly great performance.

Several Charlevoix athletes were up to the task however, starting with the Rayder boys, who scored 22 points to finish eighth overall.

Jared McLean took fourth in the 400 dash (51.86) for the Rayders, Luke Buday took seventh in the 800 run (2:03.90) and Justin Bond took eighth in the discus (115-7).

The Charlevoix boys also placed all four relays, led by the 3,200 team of Buday, Noah Carson, Jon Pischner and David Ritter, which took third (8:20.07).

The Rayders' 1,600 relay team of Danny Nesburg, Buday, Carson and McLean finished fifth (3:38.00), the 400 relay team of Hudson Elowsky, McLean, Nesburg and Malcom Williams took sixth (45.92) and the 800 team of Elowsky, Nick Bradley, Tyvin Whitaker and Williams took eighth (1:35.80).

On the girls side, Charlevoix finished in 13th place with 15 points, led by freshman Izzy Witthoef, who took sixth in the 200 dash (27.92), seventh in the 100 dash (13.57) and teamed with Bree Farmer, Isabel Hess and Kenzy O'Leary to take sixth in the 800 relay (1:55.93).

Charlevoix falls in conference title showdown with Elk Rapids, 4-0

jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

ELK RAPIDS — Charlevoix went into Tuesday's road match with Elk Rapids looking to settle the score with the Lake Michigan Conference leading Elks after falling at home in overtime earlier in the year.

But in the end Elk Rapids was too much to handle, jumping on the Rayders early and cementing their status as the conference's best team with a 4-0 victory.

The Elks scored twice in the first 10 minutes off of corner kicks, both headers by Claire Klein and Carly Patterson, and Patterson added a third off a corner kick later in the first half to make it 3-0 at the half.

Elk Rapids would put the game away in the second half with a breakaway goal by Friede Hickling, assisted by Patterson.

Freshman Emily Hinkley did her best to keep the Rayders in the game in net, making 15 saves on the night.

"Elk played a fast game and beat us to the ball in the air," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "Their finishing on their corners was very impressive."

"We need to improve on winning the ball in the air in order to be more competitive with them."

Now 7-4-1 overall and 8-2 in the LMC, Charlevoix will look to bounce back on Thursday when it hosts conference foe Kalkaska at 5 p.m.

Charlevoix 2,
Boyer City 1

BOYNE CITY — Charlevoix got the win it needed in advance of a big conference showdown, but host Boyne City didn't make it easy in a 2-1 result on Thursday.

Having won the previous meeting with the Ramblers 8-0, Charlevoix got off to a good start with a goal by senior Kelsey Engstrom on a header from a cross by Abbey Scholten to give the Rayders a 1-0 lead 10 minutes in.

Boyer City answered two minutes later, however, as Veronica Sosa scythed through the Rayder defense for an equalizing goal, and for the next 69 minutes the game became a stalemate between the two squads.

Finally, with a minute remaining, Charlevoix got the game-winner from Rachel Nesburg, who received a pass from Engstrom and put it away for the 2-1 final in an exciting finish.

Boyer City coach Ed Fantozzi singled out Hannah and Emily Sterling, and Abby Gardner as key contributors to the Ramblers' effort on the night.

EAST JORDAN — Lake Michigan Conference doubleheaders in baseball this season have been fun to watch, even if they haven't cleared up the title race any.

Thursday's action in East Jordan was no different, as Charlevoix won Game 1 8-4 and lost the nightcap 8-0 for their third straight split in conference action, and the Red Devils' second in a row.

With the score tied 4-4 in the top of the fifth inning in Game 1, Charlevoix got two runs, including a RBI single CHARLEVOIX — On Monday, a vital transportation service in Charlevoix County was recognized for its long history of carrying people across the waters of Lake Charlevoix.

State and local officials along with friends, neighbors and descendants of the well-known former Ironton Ferry Captain Sam Alexander were on hand to rededicate vessel Charlevoix (aka the Ironton Ferry) on her 90th year of operation in the Ironton Narrows.

"We are honored to have several of Sam Alexander's descendants with us to rededicate this piece of Charlevoix history," said Capt. Bob Goodenough.

The ferry service, which has been in operation for more than 130 years, has made the 600-foot trip across the Ironton Narrows, carrying vehicles, cyclists and walkers across the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix from Ironton to Boyne City. The shortcut saves travelers a 20-mile trip by road around the lake.

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix City Council wants to study the impacts disc golf is having at the Mount McSaubia Recreation area on Monday.

Mayor Gabe Campbell requested a disc golf course discussion be added to Monday's agenda for the Charlevoix City Council meeting. Campbell wanted council to have an opportunity to ask questions about what is going on with the current outdoor recreation facility.

"I want the city to address the questions residents have about activity going on at Mount McSaubia," Campbell said. "People have questions about what disc golf is permitted to do to keep their course operational and we should have a point person from the city to explain that."

Some residents spoke about the various concerns that include erosion along the disc golf course, the removal of trees and conflicting uses between disc golfers, hikers and dog walkers.

Terri Staley said she worries about the desecration of the area with the cutting of trees and the build-up of trash along the trails.

"It used to be a really pretty place," Staley said. "When I used to go out there the trails were always cleaned up and everything was always taken care of. That is not the case when I visited the area in April."

Councilwoman Shirley Gibson said disc golf is a recreation activity

Beaver Island pilot honored with 2 prestigious FAA awards

CHARLEVOIX — A Beaver Island pilot was honored with the most prestigious award given by the Federal Aviation Administration — recognizing half a century of flight during a ceremony at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport on May 11.

Paul Welke, of Island Airways, was presented with the Wright Brothers Master Pilot Award and the Charles Taylor Master Mechanic Award in front of family, friends, city officials and fellow pilots in the airport's hangar last Tuesday.

"Just in awe," Welke said. "This is more overwhelming than I could have imagined. I didn't even know these awards existed."

The award recognizes professionalism, skill and expertise in aviation and 50 years of flight. These awards are the highest aviation awards given to civilians and recognize pilots for maintaining safe operations.

"It is certainly very humbling," Welke said.

Welke was presented with a lapel pin, a Blue Ribbon award documenting his flight history and a plaque for his aviation service. Welke also reassured those in attendance that this celebration was no retirement party.

"I'm not going anywhere," Welke said. "I still will be flying because there is no other place I'd rather be. I enjoy what I'm doing."

Island Airways uses the same airstrip Welke grew up using to land the family plane. He soloed his first flight at 16 years old in 1965. He became a private pilot as a cadet in 1967 in a L16 and Welke got his commercial rating in 1972.

For his first flying job in 1972 he was paid $3 per flight, said wife, Angel Welke. "Anyone who has known Paul for a long time would know that aviation is his life."

In the last eight years, Welke has flown nearly 5,000 hours and been on duty more than 14,000 hours. He has done 13,246 landings and takeoffs and in his total career flown more than 32,000 hours and an estimated 100,000 career landings and takeoffs, Angel said.

The nonprofit Mid-Michigan Honor Flight that sends veterans, combat or otherwise, to Washington on a one-day trip to tour war memorials and other attractions is seeking donations to continue its mission.

Michigan is one of 40 states involved in the national Honor Flight Network, committed to getting aging veterans to the nation's capital to see memorials built in their honor. Private funding, donations and corporate sponsors covered the cost of the trip.

"This is a wonderful organization that needs our support to make sure they can continue their mission," said Barb Clagett, of Charlevoix, whose husband, Tim, was on a 2015 flight. "I cannot express the amount gratitude we have for Honor Flight and what they do."

It costs $500 per veteran to send them on a flight. Mid-Michigan Honor Flight is asking grateful people, organizations and businesses to "take flight" with them and lend their financial support.

"A Tour of Honor, the way we execute it, runs $104,000 to $110,000 per trip," said Tricia Donegan, hub director. "We are

Editors Note: The year is 1936 and the name of the newspaper is the Charlevoix Courier. "That was then" is a weekly feature by the Charlevoix Courier that will take news headlines from the front page of a past Charlevoix Courier to share with today's readers. On this day in 1936 the Charlevoix Courier featured an article announcing Memorial Day services for May 24 and May 30, with the headline Memorial Day Program Ready. The services scheduled on May 24, took place at the Charlevoix Methodist Church along with churches across the nation reported the Courier. Also on this day in 1936 another front-page headline announced the opening of frog season on June 1.

In Charlevoix, members of the American Legion of the Spanish-American War Veterans' Association, Leslie T. Shapton Post, American Legion Auxiliary and Women's Relief Corps have been invited to attend services at the Methodist Church at 10:30 a.m. Mem-

C.A. Stewart; "Gettysburg Address" by Maurice Foster; and then memorial address by Floyd A. Supp, reported the Courier.

On June 1, bullfrogs and any other native frogs having food value become legal game on June 1, reported the Courier. The laws governing the taking of frogs permit use of artificial light in any case where the spear is not used. Artificial light is forbidden when the spear is used to take frogs. The frog season in Michigan is open from June 1 to Oct. 1 inclusive. A fishing license is not required for taking frogs nor for the sale of frogs. There is no legal limit on the number of frogs to be taken.

LC Brewers closer to licensing approval

CHARLEVOIX — A local brewery may soon have its products available in other establishments once state approval is certified for a new beer distribution company in Charlevoix.

"We have to wait on the state," said Evan Keller, head brewer of Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company and director of operations for LC Brewers LLC.

LC Brewers LLC, a spinoff company from the Round Lake Group LLC, is located at 109 Bridge Park Drive. The spinoff company received approval from city council to apply for a microbrew and small wine making license from the Michigan Liquor Control Commission on Monday.

Nancy Bergmann, wife of Round Lake Group owner Rich Bergmann, which operates Bridge Street Tap Room and Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company, will be the managing partner. Keller will end his association with Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company to be the director of operations at LC Brewers. The plan is to move all brewing productions at the Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company under the new company, according to documents submitted to the city.

A glass pane wall will be built in the current space of the Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company to create a code compliant separation of operations. It appears the wall will close off the brewing equipment at the brewery to move those operations under LC Brewers as proposed in its plan for beer distribution. There also are plans to give tours of the brewing operation, according to the same documents.

To help LC Brewers maneuver through the licensing process for its new operation, the company has retained licensing consultant Rick Perkins and attorney Michael J. Brown from the firm Carlin Edwards Brown — Hospitality Law, in Lansing.

Keller would not comment on the progress the company is making toward its production and distribution goals.

"All questions should be directed to our attorneys in Lansing," Keller said.

LETTER to the editor

Generosity of Elks provides flags for the fallen

Editor:
For clarification, the V-Twins for Vets poker run is in no way tied to any millage for veterans. Instead, we raise funds through the Charlevoix Elks Lodge No. 2856 for veteran charities. Last year, this annual event did honor two veterans from Central Lake (as the May 13 Letter to the Editor noted) and last year's funds were distributed to the Hospice of Northwest Michigan's We Honor Vets program and the Northwest Michigan Honor Flight. Additional funds were reserved for veterans in need, requests or situations like this one.

When the Charlevoix Elks Lodge members and V-Twins for Vets committees became aware of the situation that no flags would be available for Charlevoix cemeteries, we readily purchased the flags and will be distributing them on May 21. If people would like to participate, meet at the Walgreen's parking lot at noon. It is Armed Forces day so it will be a great way to show support for our veterans.

Additionally, due to the amazing support of our community and multiple requests to donate for the Memorial Day cemetery flags, the Charlevoix Elks No. 2856 V-Twins for Vets Poker Run Committee has established a fund through the Charlevoix Elks to assist our local veteran agencies in supplying flags this year and beyond. The poker run fundraising committee also will also donate to the fund each year. Donations can be made to the Charlevoix Elks Memorial Day Flag Fund and be sent or dropped off after 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday to 104 Mason Street, Charlevoix.

Nothing ordinary about the "OHWM"

If you live on or around Lake Charlevoix or Lake Michigan, you may have heard the term "Ordinary High Water Mark," or "All Time High Water Mark," in connection with measuring water levels or shorelines. These measurements can be important in the local, state and federal regulation of our lake, its watershed and shoreline.

The Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River system, of which Lake Charlevoix, (unlike most other Michigan lakes) is a part, is shared by Canada and the U.S., requiring regulatory coordination of the entire system. In order to set base lines to monitor changes in water levels, and to support regulations controlling the water system, the International Great Lakes Datum was adopted in 1955, and revised in 1985.

The International Great Lakes Datum establishes base "ordinary" high water levels for all of the Great Lakes from a "sea level" base. The main point for the "mean sea level was set at zero of the International Great Lakes Datum at Rimouski, Quebec, in the western end of the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

From this point, water levels throughout the Great Lake system are measured and compared to their "ordinary" high levels, as established by the International Great Lakes Datum. In 1985, the ordinary high water mark for Lake Superior was set at 183.2 meters above mean sea level, Lake Michigan-Huron is at 176.0 meters and Lake Ontario — below Niagara Falls — is at 74.2 meters. For Lake Michigan, and therefore Lake Charlevoix, this mark translates to 581.5 feet above the sea level base.

As part of the Lake Michigan regulatory system, our lake is subject to regulation by the Army Corps of Engineers and the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, as well as the eight townships and three cities around the lake.

These governmental entities have expressed the areas of their jurisdiction by using the ordinary high water mark, or a version of it. The Michigan DEQ defines its regulatory jurisdiction as that area extending below the ordinary high water mark, but defines it at 580.5 feet. The Army Corps uses the International Great Lakes Datum level of 581.5.

The actual amount of exposed beach or water surface subject to DEQ regulation will change from time to time, depending on the actual water level. So knowing where the ordinary high water mark is on your property will help you determine whether activities below the mark, whether on shore or in the lake, such as beach sanding, dredging, filling, etc., will be subject to state or federal regulation.

Local jurisdictions use slightly different baselines in their zoning ordinances, particularly in defining protected "greenbelt" areas. It is important for shore land homeowners and landscapers to be aware of these definitions when "improving" lakefront properties.

For example, Eveline Township defines its greenbelt area as 50 feet from the "shoreline" defined as the "all-time high water level" as established by IGLD-1985. This level is currently .8 feet above the International Great Lakes Datum ordinary high water mark. Evangeline Township requires a greenbelt of 50 feet from the international Great Lakes Datum ordinary high water mark, plus one-foot. Hayes, South Arm and Bay townships all use the 581.5 feet level, while Charlevoix Township uses 579.8.

With the exception of ordinances relating to docks, most townships have not updated their ordinances to address the area of shore land and lake bottom lying below the ordinary high water mark. Establishing reasonable regulations concerning this area, as they have in greenbelt areas, would go along way toward completing regulatory protection of our lake. Adopting a consistent definition of the ordinary high water mark would aid homeowners and contractors in identifying when regulatory provisions may apply. The lake Charlevoix Association is reaching out to townships around the lake to encourage adding zoning protection below the ordinary high water mark to avoid harmful development in this critical area.

The base levels in the international Great Lakes Datum and the ordinary high water mark for each of the Great Lakes are subject to revision every 30 years or so, and will shortly be revised based on surveys conducted over the last several years. In 1985, the adjustment was an increase of 0.2 meters for Lake Michigan.

You should be seeing media discussions of this process in the coming months, and remember, the ordinary high water mark is an important benchmark for the regulation and protection of Great Lakes, and Lake Charlevoix. Now you can explain why to your neighbors at the next cocktail party.

Joe Kimmell is the director of the Lake Charlevoix Association and each month a member of the association will submit a Lake Charlevoix Association column that is intended to educate and inform residents about the watershed. For more information, visit lakecharlevoix.org.

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

In 1883, it was announced in the local paper that Joseph Hyland of Manistee would be "removing" his ironwork's business to a new building being constructed on the south shore of Round Lake. He had been in business to the south since 1867, but decided the boat building and repair business in Charlevoix had taken off to the point he could afford to make the move north. The building was on Belvedere Avenue near the foot of Alice Street. Hyland classified himself as a "Boiler Maker and Sheet Iron Worker," with "Special Attention Given to MARINE WORK." His advertisement in the paper said he was the "Manufacturer of Hylands' (sic) Patent Fireman," probably a reference to one of his boilers. He also advertised "First-Class Dockage and 15 Feet of Water." Plus "Having the best lot of tools in this region, I am prepared to do all kinds of work in my line in a first-class manner, and at reasonable rates. Will send experienced workmen to attend to Job Work in any part of the country" from "The ONLY BOILER SHOP between MANISTEE AND CHEBOYGAN." It is not yet known when the Hyland business closed. A cast iron door from a boiler similar to the one under the word "SHOP" with the words "Charlevoix Iron Works" on it, is in the possession of the Charlevoix Historical Society. This photo is part of a new exhibit, "The Working World—

COMMUNITY Highlights

Celebrate spring with petunias, hot-dogs

CHARLEVOIX — It's that time of year again: Petunia planting time.

Not only does next week's annual celebration of spring, flowers and Charlevoix the Beautiful mark the end of old man winter, but it means summer isn't too far off and with it the resurgence of the local economy.

Members of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful are looking forward to all the familiar faces out there planting Charlevoix's favorite flower, but they urge anyone who has never participated to come on out and plant a flat or two.

This year's festivities begin at 5 p.m. on Thursday, May 26.

Participants are asked to show up anywhere along the five-mile strip of U.S. 31/Bridge Street from Mercer Boulevard on the north side to Harbor Industries on the south side and plant.

There will be more than 1,000 flats of rainbow colored flowers located along the edge of each side of the roadway for helpful volunteers to plant.

Volunteers are asked to bring a trowel or spoon to speed up the planting process.

While there are thousands of flowers to be planted, the whole process happens rather quickly, so be sure to get there at 4 p.m. to secure a spot.

Following the community-wide planting, be sure to get a ticket good for a hot-dog, chips, cookies and something to drink down at East Park.

Community garden plots available for city residents

The city of Charlevoix Community Gardens is seeking individuals who are not afraid to get their hands dirty.

The Community Garden program has been available to residents since the 1960s. Residents who do not have the space, lighting or a yard, are able to reap the benefits of a garden. The garden area is located off State Street, just north of Harbor Industries.

Each garden area is 24-feet by 24-feet with water available on site. Each spring the garden area is tilled. Annual vegetables and flowers can be grown. The city also has compost that can be added to the soil. This year the plots have already been tilled and are ready for planting.

"It's not always easy work," said Linda Weller, executive assistant at city of Charlevoix. "But it's worth it. All of those fresh vegetables are just wonderful."

Garden plots are available for $35 each. This is a bargain, as after a bit of research, the combined costs for a family of four can easily reach $31 for evening meals alone. This price is for vegetables only and applies to current local prices at two different grocers.

Gardeners also have the rights of first refusal for their plot the following year.

Application forms are available at cityofcharlevoix.org/faq.html#gardenplots.

Author to speak

Charles Cleland will be at Round Lake Books, 216 Bridge St., Charlevoix, MI 49720 to do a book signing on his new release "Beyond the Far Horizon" at 4 p.m. on Saturday, May 21. The book is a fictionalized account of Alexander Henry's life as a fur trader in the Great Lakes region between the years 1760 and 1765. Henry survived many incredible hardships during this life as a fur merchant in large part because he came to rely upon the support of his adopted Indian family and particularly his Indian father, Wawatam. Unlike many Anglo-Americans of the frontier of his day, he embraced native cultures, which not only helped him prosper as a trader, but also saved his life on several occasions. "Beyond the Far Horizon" brings to life Alexander Henry's tolerance, courage and self-reliance and leaves a first-hand account of native life which has no equal for its time and place of the Great Lakes' history.

Zonta awards scholarships

Mary Anderson, a senior at Boyne City High School, was named the winner of this year's Charlevoix Area Zonta Memorial Scholarship.

Anderson plans on pursuing an engineering degree at Grand Valley State University and afterward, obtaining a career in mechanical engineering. She is a student council advisor, student class president, a National Honor Society member, is active in the drama program and on the varsity ski team as well as cross country and soccer. The Memorial Scholarship is awarded to a female high school senior who plans to pursue a math or science-related major in college. The scholarship recipient will be chosen based on financial need and her involvement and interest in the math and/or science fields, excluding the medical field.

Zahrah Koch, also a senior at Boyne City High School, was named the winner of the new Rita G. Gay Literary Memorial Scholarship offered by the Charlevoix Area Zonta this year. This scholarship is awarded to a female high school senior who plans to pursue a college degree related to a field of study which concentrates on the written word, excluding education. Koch plans to attend a four-year university and would like to publish novels and edit professionally. She participated in St. Joseph's Institute for the Deaf, the Horton Bay Parade Committee, high school drama program and National Novel Writing Month.

Both recipients were chosen as the scholarship winners because they best exemplified the spirit of and requisites for the scholarships.

Zonta International is a global service organization of executives and professionals working together to advance the status of women worldwide through service and advocacy.

Memorial Day Parade, program, barbecue set for Charlevoix

CHARLEVOIX — Come honor local fallen soldiers by joining the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library in this year's Memorial Day Parade, on Monday, May 30, in Charlevoix. The library friends invite friends, families, kids, pets, decorated bikes or scooters, red, white and blue balloons, flags ... all are invited to create a patriotic group behind banners which bear the names of Charlevoix soldiers who have given their lives for our country from World War I to the present day.

Any veterans who unable march and would like to participate in the Memorial Day Parade will have rides available to them provided by the Street Legends Classic Car club of Charlevoix. Parade participants will meet at 9:30 a.m. in the parking lot of the old American Legion Hall. The parade begins at 10 a.m. in the parking lot of the old American Legion Hall — Dr. Brian Kwapiak's dental office — on East Garfield Avenue and continues down Bridge Street to Clinton Street at the light. The parade will then turn right into East Park. Parade participants will meet at 9:30 a.m. in the parking lot of the old American Legion Hall.

East Jordan Rotary to host annual variety show

EAST JORDAN — The East Jordan Rotary Club members are again putting their creative heads together to plan the 10th Annual Rotary Variety Show, which will be at 7 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, June 10-11, at the community auditorium at East Jordan High School.

Rotarian Chip Hansen will be the show's master of ceremonies again this year.

"This will be a really cool show, and we're billing it, for the 10th anniversary, as our greatest hits show," Hansen said, "we used our Facebook page to get audience input on several acts from previous shows that we will bring back this year, so the show will feature some blasts from the past and a lot of new material, too."

The show features the fabulous Rotary Chorus, as well as a live pit band.

"The chorus and the band headline the show," Hansen said. "Our musicians come in from all over the country, and together they form a powerhouse swing band!"

The Rotary Variety Show is a team effort, too. Rotarians Mike Aenis and Mark Penzien coordinate the show's production team, which selects the chorus medleys, writes the skits and crossover acts, manages the rehearsal and, in general, plans the entire show.

"We've got a great team of ultra-creative people that develop the show," Aenis said, "the planning meetings are lively and the show always reflects the fun and enthusiasm of the group."

Penzien agreed with Aenis on planning the production.

"The show really brings out the best in our club members," Penzien said. "We enjoy working together and creating a great show for the community to enjoy."

The pre-show begins at 6 p.m., so guests are encouraged to come early to enjoy music provided by Bad Bechtold, Bob Bryan and the rest of the Rotary Swing Band. Tickets are priced at $10 each, and are available in East Jordan at Charlevoix State Bank and from any member of the Rotary Club. Tickets also may also be available at the door, but in very limited quantities.

According to Chip Hansen, the show always sells out.

"Last year, the show was sold out before the end of May," he said. "So it's important to get your tickets early."

Proceeds from the show will be utilized in support of all the work the East Jordan Rotary Club does throughout the year including scholarship support for local students, youth leadership training programs, community improvement projects and more.

Business profile:

Time to get rolling with Revolution Bike

By KIM KELLY
Staff Writer for the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — May is National Bike Month and Chet Morris, owner of Revolution Bike on Mason Street in Charlevoix, is ready to kick off the 11th summer season. Morris has been tuning up bikes and doing business since spring began to warm up the roads and bike paths around town.

Morris moved to Charlevoix from Battle Creek in 2001 and opened Revolution Bike here in the spring of 2006. Like other retailers in Charlevoix, he is anxious to capitalize on the summer season.

"I was told by other business people downtown that I should plan on a six to eight week window for sales. That advice was pretty accurate," he said.

Morris has a long history with bikes, having grown up riding and racing both road and mountain bikes and participating in triathlons and adventure racing. He served as the chief mechanic for the U.S. Triathlon Team World Championship for two years and as chief mechanic and crew leader for Race across America for two years. Morris is a graduate of the New England Cycling Academy and Barnett's Bicycle Institute and has worked at multiple bike shops and managing several over the years.

Revolution Bike is the go-to place in Charlevoix for bike and skateboard sales, rentals, service and for information on special biking events initiated there. Morris carries mid-high range products concentrating on quality of performance and durability. Familiar bike brands include Surly, Scott, Dahon, Marin, Orbea, KHS.

Besides bikes, the store offers MBS mountain boards and more than 150 brands of skate boards, long boards and penny boards. Innova and Dynamic disk golf equipment, sports clothing, helmets, bike racks and other accessories are in stock or can be ordered by request.

Service from tune-ups to parts, tires and bike accessories are part of what makes shopping at Revolution Bike an attractive option. Morris is always able to order bikes, parts and accessories from his mid-west based suppliers if a customer cannot find what he is looking for in-house.

"We can usually match any website prices and are on Amazon and e-Bay," Morris said. "There is a fairly quick two or three day turn-around for orders, so customers can feel confident that they are getting comparable product and pricing in a timely manner should they want to place an order. The thing to remember is that you can't buy service on-line. That's where we come in."

Chet Morris, owner of Revolution Bike on Mason Street in Charlevoix, carries mid-high range bikes and bike products. He also offers a large selection skate boards, long boards and penny boards.

The bike rental business is a tourist-driven and important component of Morris' seasonal business. Revolution Bike rents out multi-speed hybrid comfort bikes, road bikes, cruisers, kid's bikes, tag-a-longs and trailers. "We do a pretty decent rental business," he said.

Beyond sales, service and rentals, another aspect of Revolution Bike is its emphasis on community initiatives to attract people to create opportunities for family fun during the summer and off season in Northern Michigan.

Several years ago, Morris and a few fellow bike enthusiasts started a partnership operation with the Keweenaw Star excursion boat that, until this year, docked in the harbor during the summer months. Bikers pedaled to Petoskey on the bike trail, then loaded up their bikes and took a "party cruise" back home in time for sunset. The event was called the "Huff and Puff," and continued for three years.

In 2008, Morris joined forces with United Way, reconditioning donated bicycles to offer to that organization for needy kids. The "Wheels for Kids" program continues today and Revolution Bike has donated more than 200 bikes to United Way to date. In 2015 alone, according to Morris, 43 bikes were reconditioned and sent to the organization.

"Every kid deserves a bike growing up," Morris said.

Currently, Morris is accepting bikes, both kids' and adults', that people would like to donate for the cause. Last year, for the fourth year, Revolution Bike sponsored a "Fat Tire" race to create an event in the shoulder season called the Dogman Challenge.

"My business is weather dependent," he said. "The first time it hits 60 degrees in the spring, people start thinking about biking again. So anywhere from April through Applefest, at the end of the tourist season, we are ready and open for business 6-7 days a week. I tell people to bring in their bikes for tune-ups early in the season, the sooner the better. By June we get really busy. The typical turn around for service is 2-3 days."

Morris doesn't close down the store, except for certain periods during the off-season when the hours are tapered down considerably.

In case of sales or service requests in the off-season Morris can be reached through his web site revbike.net or by calling (231) 237-0900. Revolution Bike also is on Facebook.

Charlevoix business changes name to include tour offerings

Charlevoix resident Edith Pair has had a long love affair with Charlevoix and is inspired to share her dedication to the area in a new venture: Tour Michigan, Inc. Formerly named ellair and company signature tours, the new company will offer new tour options for 2016.

Pair has been offering specialized tours of the Earl Young mushroom houses in Charlevoix for more than seven years. Pair enjoys that she was the originator of the longest running tour company in Charlevoix with a track record of happy customers who return each year wanting to share her enthusiasm with others.

"The Chamber of Commerce of Charlevoix describes that an estimate of 90 percent of the tourists who walk through their doors ask about the mushroom houses," Pair said. "We wanted to be a liaison to the wonderful people who are new to our community or residents interested in learning more, and help guide them through the rich history that surrounds us."

Pair will be offering along with their signature walking tours, horse drawn carriage and GEM Car tours. The GEM Car tours are offered in partnership with Grey Gables Restaurant and Catering. Along with specialty-guided tours, Pair has created a new mobile app, TourMI featuring self-guided tours focusing on the mushroom houses.

Pair is no stranger to the world of art and design, with a degree from the School of the Art Institute of Chicago; she guides patrons through the history, beauty and craft of the Earl Young Houses and includes historically significant passages of Charlevoix.

The Mushroom House Tours begin and end at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts, located at 109 Clinton St., one block off of Bridge Street.

Charlevoix Waterfront, Jordan River Arts Council Art Fair scholarships awarded

In 1972 the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair became the first art fair in the state to commit funds for art scholarships for young people. Since then, for 45 years, more than $50,000 in scholarship and grant money has been awarded to deserving, talented applicants. This money is applied towards tuition at Blue Lake Music Camp, Interlochen, or the college of the applicant's choice. It encourages and allows students to choose art as a career path.

This year the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair is proud to award five arts scholarships to three Charlevoix High School Students. The girls were honored at a recent awards ceremony at the Charlevoix Middle/High School Auditorium on May 11. They are: Irah Dhaseleer who has been accepted at and will be attending Kendall College of Art and Design ($2,000); Kayla Hamill, Northern Michigan University ($1,000) and Rachel Thompson, Olivet Nazarene University ($1,000). The three Charlevoix seniors had their work exhibited at the recent K-5 Art Show held at Charlevoix Elementary School and at the Jordan River Arts Center Scholarship Exhibit.

Awarded on Sunday, May 15, at the Jordan River Arts Center were the following scholarships:

— John R. Alberts Scholarship $1,000 was awarded to Rachel Thompson — Betty Osborne Scholarship $1,000 was awarded to Kayla Hamill — Honorable mention $100 was awarded to Irah Dhaseleer

This year 27 students from 7 school districts entered the Jordan River Arts Center competition. The judges were Susan Glass and Dawn Swaim. Both are instructors of art at North Central Michigan College.

Handbags offer hope for survivors

Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan received more than 125 fully-stocked purses from Handbags of Hope, a Southeast Michigan nonprofit organization. The donation coincided with Mother's Day and will benefit survivors of domestic abuse and sexual assault at the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan's Safe Home and in the counseling program.

The purses are helpful to survivors, especially those who have been in highly controlled relationships and may not have a purse, as well as for those who arrive at the safe home without personal possessions. Many volunteers helped Handbags of Hope fill the donated purses with items such as a wallet, brush, hand lotion and lip balm. Some bags may even contain pajamas, slippers, gloves or a scarf.

"The handbags, totes and purses help battered women feel empowered, independent and provide the daily necessities some of us take for granted," said Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan executive director Gail Kloss. "Some of the purses may even contain a note of encouragement to let survivors know they are not alone. The purses essentially become a handbag of hope to survivors."

Last year the resource center provided counseling, support and advocacy to 516 survivors of domestic abuse and 211 survivors of sexual assault. The organization also provided 2,502 total nights of refuge to survivors and their children at the safe home, the domestic abuse shelter serving those in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego counties.

Handbags of Hope founder, Jackie Bobcean said of the donation, "If the handbags we donate make a woman stand a little taller and walk a little prouder, we've done our job."

Veteran of the Month: William John Taylor III

Veteran of the Month for May 2016 is William John Taylor III who was born on April 18, 1942, in East Jordan. Taylor grew up in East Jordan and graduated from East Jordan High School in 1960.

He attended Ferris State University and Meat Cutters School before returning home working at the family owned business Taylor's Westside IGA Grocery store until his induction into the Armed Forces on June 2, 1964. Taylor completed basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., and was assigned to Fort Hood, Texas where he received his medical corpsman training.

He was then reassigned to Headquarters, Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion, 28th Infantry of the 1st Infantry Division, (The Big Red One), at Fort Riley, Kan.

Shortly before deployment overseas, on Sept. 3, 1965, Taylor married Louise Hebben of Central Lake. On Oct. 10, 1965, Taylor's unit arrived in Vietnam and while serving as a company medic, they were returning from a clearing mission, on Nov. 20, 1965, north of Saigon in Zone D near Ben Cat, a portion of his convoy was ambushed by automatic weapons and mortar fire that was focused on the medical transport vehicles. During the ambush Taylor and his fellow medic were killed in the action.

Although in Vietnam less than two months, his Commanding Officer stated that "Taylor had performed his duties to the highest standards and was an exemplary and faithful soldier."

While in Vietnam, Taylor had the opportunity to meet and shake hands with Michigan Gov.

George Romney, who had made a surprise visit, and asked Taylor "How's it going?"

Taylor responded in his positive manner, "Not too bad, but I don't like the food."

Being the first soldier from Northern Michigan to be killed in the Vietnam conflict, there was an outpouring of support from family and friends extended to the Taylor family. On Nov. 20, 1965 Specialist 4th Class William John Taylor III answered the final call and was posthumously awarded the following decorations and awards: The National Defense Service Medal; The Vietnam Service Medal; The Vietnam Campaign Medal; The Purple Heart Medal; The Good Conduct Medal.

Taylor is being honored by his widow Louise (Taylor) Bergmann, son William John Taylor IV, sister Judy (Taylor) Vivian and extended family.

To honor a veteran, call the program chairman at (231) 588-6067 or on Tuesdays between 3:30-8:30 p.m. call (231) 582-7811. The ceremony may be witnessed at 6:15 p.m. on the first Thursday of each month at The American Legion Post located on the corner of South Lake and Main streets in Boyne City.

County clerk seeking re-election

JORDAN SPENCE

CHARLEVOIX — A long-time Charlevoix County employee, clerk Cheryl "Cherie" Browe said after nearly 30 years on staff there is still more she'd like to accomplish.

For that reason, Browe plans to run for re-election to the clerk's position as a Republican on this year's ballot.

"I have projects not finished I want to see through," Browe said. "I want to see that all the records have been scanned, like vital and court records. I'm not finished with those projects. My goal is to see it through until the end."

Browe has been the Charlevoix County Clerk for eight years. Prior to that, Browe was the chief deputy clerk for 20 years and has been with the county for 29 years in all.

"I'm actually quite passionate about the county. I care about the county a lot," Browe said. "I have a lot of family history in the county."

Browe was born and raised in Charlevoix and even has memories of helping with her mother's campaign when she ran for treasurer. She lives in the community with her husband and has three children and seven grandchildren.

There are many aspects of the job she enjoys, she said. Among recent advancements, Browe said the county is in the middle of implementing a new website.

"We're trying to update it to make genealogy things simpler," she said. "We are working on the new process for concealed weapons. We're working on having live scan in my office so we can do fingerprinting. There's a lot of projects we are in the middle of — if I start a project I like to finish it."

Browe had one challenger for the clerk seat, John Taylor.

But, he suspended his campaign around Wednesday, May 11.

Taylor cited "personal reasons" for his decision and declined to comment further.

The move leaves Browe as the lone candidate in the race with the deadline to file for the primary election already passed.

"We do have some work to do between the city and the golf players to help disc golf be compatible with the multiple uses of this area," Gibson said. "It is my hope that city staff and the recreation director can work to alleviate questions about erosion and the possible tree cutting taking place out there that is upsetting the players and walkers in the park."

Ric Evans of Atwood, designer of the course, also spoke at the council meeting. He said they are currently installing steps unique in offering a housing package for all fliers, to arrive comfortably and safely to our staging site. All donations are from private individuals, grants, companies, groups and organizations. There is no government assistance."

On June 8, approximately 62 veterans from Michigan will fly to Washington with the Mid-Michigan Honor Flight Hub. Honorees will be offered housing accommodations at Michigan State University, and fly out of Lansing on an American Airlines private charter. This trip is free for veterans.

"Flying from our state's capitol, to our nation's capitol is such a meaningful beginning and end to this flight," said Elayne McColium, board secretary. "Our board thought it was an appropriate way to honor our fliers."

The housing accommodations package invites fliers to arrive the day before the flight, check into their rooms and have a meet and greet time to connect with other veterans, guardians and the Mid-Michigan Honor Flight board.

Mid-Michigan Honor Flight Hub has honored veterans from Emmet, Cheboygan, Presque Isle, Charlevoix, Leelanau, Antrim, Otsego, Montmorency, Benzie, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Crawford, Oscoda, Alcona, Manistee, Wexford, Missaukee, Roscommon, Ogemaw, Iosco, Mason, Lake, Osceola, Clare, Gladwin, Arenac, Oceana, Newaygo, Mecosta, Isabella, Midland, Bay, Huron, Tuscola, Sanilac, Muskegon, Ottawa, Kent, Montcalm, Ionia, Gratiot, Clinton, Saginaw, Shiawassee, Genesee, Lapeer, Oakland, Macomb, Livingston, Washtenaw, St. Clair and Wayne counties, since 2013.

"Because we cover such a large geographical area in the state of Michigan, this is the only way it makes sense to us," said Diane Diehm, board vice president. "It's all about the veterans. Their comfort and safety is of utmost importance. This way, they are rested prior to the flight, and get more time to connect with each other."

Time is ticking away for our World War II veterans. The WW II Memorial was finished in 2004, almost 60 years after the war. It is now 2016, another 12 years added to their wait, said Todd Purcell, board member.

"These guys are in their 90s and we need to get them flying," Purcell said. "In three or four years there won't be any World War II Veterans left, that's why we have to do this now, that's why we want to do this."

Mid-Michigan Honor Flight is accepting applications for World War II veterans, Korean veterans and any terminally ill veteran. Their concentration is on getting World War II Veterans flying as soon as they can. They will then transition to Korea and other war eras.

For more information on how you can help, or apply, visit their website at midmichiganhonorflight.com. They also have a Facebook page. Donations may be made payable to, and mailed to: Mid-Michigan Honor Flight, P.O. Box 385, Mecosta, MI, 49332.

"It's never too late to thank a veteran," Donegan said. "Any financial help is appreciated."

"All the captains take pride in continuing the Sam's tradition of service to travelers," Goodenough said.

During the service, ferry Captain Helen Dillon was recognized by Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider for her work in getting passengers to safety when a vehicle traveling on the ferry caught fire in October.

"This was a bad event that could have been tragically worse had Helen not taken care of the situation," Schneider said.

The fire burned so hot that it melted the glass to the operations cabin and warped the decking. The concern was that because the fire was burning hot the other vehicles might catch fire along with losing the ferry to the fire, Schneider said to the people in attendance.

"The bottom line was Helen got the ferry docked and was able to save the other vehicles and get everyone off safely," Schneider said. "Had those vehicles stayed on the ferry we might not have a ferry today if not for one strong woman who took charge and saved the day."

Dillon was presented with a meritorious commendation for her heroic actions during a vehicle fire on the Ironton Ferry that saved passengers from certain injury or death.

"This is a complete surprise," Dillon said. "It was quite the experience that day on the ferry. It was very scary because we thought the flame was so horrendous that the ferry might blow up. I am glad we are all safe and the ferry is back in operation."

Jason Allen, a Traverse City Republican running for Congress, along with state Rep. Triston Cole, R-Mancelona, and state Sen. Wayne Schmidt, R-Traverse City, also were in attendance at the celebration.

"Preserving local history means a lot to this community," Cole said. "Preserving the past like this vital transportation service between these communities is something we can all take pride in."

Schmidt reflected on the Ironton Ferry service as an asset for travel with his family while visiting areas of Northern Michigan.

"It is such a great service to use when traveling around this area of Northern Michigan," Schmidt said. "It's a great honor to take part in the celebration of Charlevoix County history."

land has fostered some deep relationships with island year-round and summer residents.

"Nearly everyone on the island has a Paul story," Angel said. "I think practically everyone can say he flew this plane either off or themselves for one reason or another. That's just Paul. The phone goes off at 2 a.m. and he is flying."

One family that attended the ceremony recalled how Welke risked his own safety to search for family who was on a charter plane that went down on the island in the winter of 2001.

"He saved myself and our three kids and asked for nothing in return," said Mirth Gault, who was on board the flight that stormy February day. "He is a very special person to our family."

Not knowing if anyone was looking for them was beginning to take its toll on Mirth, she added.

"I was just about to give up," she said. "It was 15 hours since we crashed and then Paul's plane flew over us."

Before Welke began the search, the storm had grounded the U.S. Coast Guard, said Robert Gault.

"The weather was so bad they would not go up," Gault said. "But Paul stood next to his plane on the runway and waited for a break the clouds break and he went up."

Gault describes the situation as desperate and time was not on their side. The weather was drastically getting worse. Temperatures at the time of the crash were around 36 degrees. By the time Welke was able to get in the air 15 hours later it was snowing far worse than before and the temperatures had plummeted to 17 degrees and were still declining, Gault said.

"God was on our side," he said. "If Paul didn't find them when he did, they would have died in the plane, that night. The next day, after the rescue the snow covered the plane. Without Paul, I would have been without my family. To think about how desperate that situation was and for him to go up in that weather is just selfless."

The Gault family said Paul's honor and recognition from the FAA is well deserved.

"He is the most humble guy you will meet," Gault said. "If anyone deserves these two awards, it is Paul Welke."

Welke now joins the ranks of Chuck Yeager and Neil Armstrong, who are also recipients of the award.

Charlevoix's Putman blasts three home runs in single game

CHARLEVOIX — Senior Austin Putman has accomplished a lot in his career with the Rayders, but his performance in Game 1 of a road doubleheader Thursday against Suttons Bay puts him on a short list in MHSAA history.

Putman hit three home runs in a 7-4 victory, becoming one of 61 players in MHSAA history to accomplish the feat, and just the third from this area after Andy Douglas of Boyne City in 1999 and Nick McIntosh of Petoskey in 2002.

Putman hit his home runs in the first, third and fifth innings, finishing the game 3-for-3 with four RBIs.

Hunter Cox added two hits and an RBI and also picked up the win on the mound. Jordan Adkins chipped in a double, and Jake Cox added a RBI.

HARBOR SPRINGS — Riding a nine game win streak heading into their second meeting with heated rival Harbor Springs on Monday, Charlevoix couldn't stretch it to 10 in a 2-1 loss.

The Rayders got the first win between the two this season in a 4-1 victory in late April, but a third matchup could be coming with a possible district final showdown down the road.

Charlevoix falls to 8-6-1 on the season.

"Hats off to Harbor," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "I thought they played really, really KALKASKA — It's been a good past seven days for the Charlevoix golf team.

Coming off an LMC Jamboree win and their lowest round of the year on back-to-back days last week, the Rayders kept rolling on Tuesday with their second straight conference jamboree win and their third of four at Grandview Golf Club in Kalkaska.

Charlevoix shot a 356 to beat runner-up T.C. St. Francis by six strokes, led by Matt Good, who carded a 79 to finish third overall.

Tanner Drost shot an 89 to finish tied for ninth as well, Collin Turkleson carded a 93 and Montana Thompson a 95 for the Rayders.

Camden Musilek shot a 102 and Tyler Fuchs a 105 as well for Charlevoix.

Charlevoix is slated to host Jim Glynn Classic this Friday at the Charlevoix Country Club, starting at 9 a.m., with the LMC Championship Meet scheduled for Monday at Antrim Delis.

Charlevoix, having won 3 of 4 jamborees, is the favorite to take the LMC crown after coming in second to St. Francis a year ago, but will have to be wary of the Gladiators and Harbor Springs at the final.

Cheboygan Invite CHEBOYGAN — A day after putting together a solid round to win a LMC meet, the Charlevoix golf team took an even bigger step forward.

Led by career best rounds from Collin Turkleson and Tanner Drost, the Rayders shot a 329, their lowest round of the year, to take second at a 10-team invitational hosted by Cheboygan on Thursday.

The host Chiefs beat the Rayders by two strokes, shooting a 327 to claim the title.

Turkleson carded a 79 to finish in a four-way tie for second overall behind medalist Carter Tallaire of St. Ignace, and Drost shot an 80 to finish sixth as the two golfers who normally occupy the Rayders' fourth and fifth BOYNE CITY — With Division 3 and 4 regionals coming this weekend, Monday's Boyne City Invitational represented the last chance for the Charlevoix boys and girls track teams to make last-minute adjustments and finish rounding into form.

And while no team could stop the Sault Ste. Marie Blue Devils from winning both the boys and girls titles, in other areas it was mission accomplished.

Relay dominance helped the Rayders take third, with 97 points, as Charlevoix won the 200 relay with a team of Luke Hinkley, Jon Pischner, David Ritter and Noah Carson (8:26.66), the 400 relay with a team of Danny Neaburg, Jared McLean, Hudson Nowak and Malcolm Williams (1:35.85) and the 400 relay with the same squad (45.96), and finished runner-up in the 1,600 relay (3:39.55).

Oliver DeYoung took second in both the 110 hurdles (16.85) and the 300 hurdles (44.10) for Charlevoix. Buday took second in the 400 dash (53.71), Carson took second in the 800 run (2:10.20) and Neaburg took second in the 200 dash (24.13).

Nick Bradley finished third in the long jump (17-1) and fifth in the 400 dash (57.16) as well for the Rayders. Ben Boas took fourth in the 800 run (2:11.95) and Ryan Erskine fifth in the 3,200 run (11:41.18).

Caleb Hart took fourth in the shot put (40-0) and Addison Bemis sixth in the pole vault (8-6) as well for Charlevoix.

On the girls side, Charlevoix took sixth, with 30 points, led by Izzy Witthoef, who took second in the 100 dash (13.01), third in the 200 dash (28.23), and ran legs on the second place 1,600 relay (4:32.22) and third place 800 relay (1:57.59).

Lukla Witthoef took sixth in the 800 run (2:43.43) and Sydney Whitley took sixth in the long jump (12-3) as well for Charlevoix.

The Rayders travel to Mason County Central this Friday for a Division 3 regional, starting at noon.

East Jordan Invite

Several notable performances highlighted Thursday's East Jordan Invitational, led by the Charlevoix boys, who scored 129 to finish 2.5 points behind champion Lake City in the runner-up position.

Jared McLean won both the 400 dash (51.25) and the 200 dash (23.52) to lead the Rayders, and Charlevoix also got 1-2 finishes from Noah Carson (4:42.39) and Jon Pischner (4:43.42) in the 1,600 run and Pischner (2:04.57) and SUTTONS BAY — Last season, the Rayders were the team getting knocked out in three innings against opponents.

This year, Charlevoix is on the winning end of most of those blowouts, as it was on the road on Thursday in 17-2 and 18-0 wins over Suttons Bay.

Improved pitching has played a big part, as winning pitchers Skylar Herriman and Shelby Wurst combined to give up just five hits and strike out seven in the two victories.

But the Rayders also have taken a big step forward at the plate, finishing with 30 hits in the doubleheader.

Herriman hit six singles to lead Charlevoix, and Emoneayh Ford added four hits, including a double.

Hannah Solomon chipped in two singles and an inside the park home run, Kara Simpson added a single, a double and a triple, and Nichole Hart finished with three hits.

HARBOR SPRINGS — One run was all that separated the Rayders and host Rams in both games of a tightly contested doubleheader on Thursday.

Haley Coss scored the winning run in the top of the sixth for Charlevoix on a sacrifice grounder from Madison Olach to give the Rayders a 5-4 win in Game 1.

Coss finished with two singles and a double, Olach added a double and McKenna Ebert chipped in a double as well for Charlevoix, while Skylar Herriman struck out six to earn the win on the mound.

Stephane Kruskie went 2 for 3 and Libby Garver and Ashley Burdick each hit a RBI single for the Rams, with Burdick striking out eight and taking the loss on the mound.

In Game 2, Harmony Lang hit a single in the bottom of the fifth to drive in the winning run for Harbor Springs in a 15-14 shootout.

Libby Garver went 4 for 4 with three RBIs for the Rams, Stephanie Kruskie went 3 for 4 with two RBIs and earned the win on the mound, and Burdick chipped in a single, a double and four RBIs.

Kara Simpson and Emily Shrift each led Charlevoix with a single and a double, and Hannah Solomon, Oach and Herriman each chipped in two singles.

Charlevoix, now 12-12 and 3-7 in the LMC, travels to Kalkaska on Thursday for its next outing, and Harbor Springs (9-11, 4-8) hosts T.C. St. Francis on the same night.

spots stepped up to propel Charlevoix to its best round to date.

Matt Good carded an 83 to tie for ninth, Montana Thompson shot an 87 and Tyler Fuchs added an 88 as well for the Rayders, while Hunter Jensen finished with a round of 113.

LMC Jamboree

at The Moor Golf Course HARBOR SPRINGS — The Moor Golf Course at Boyne Highlands lived up to its Scottish name on Wednesday, as blustery winds made for tough rounds at an LMC Jamboree hosted by Harbor Springs.

But that didn't stop Boyne City's Griffin Powers and Logan Smith from putting up impressive rounds, or keep Charlevoix from taking first as a team with a strong top-to-bottom performance.

Powers and Smith each shot four-over 77s, close to their best round of the year, to tie for medalist honors and finish two strokes ahead of the next closest competitor, Joe Coates of T.C. St. Francis.

Charlevoix meanwhile, put two golfers in the top 10 and finished with a team score of 353, beating runner-up Elk Rapids by nine to win their second straight LMC jamboree.

Matt Good carded an 83 to take fifth overall and lead the Rayders, and Montana Thompson shot an 87 to finish tied for seventh as well for Charlevoix.

Collin Turkleson shot an 89 as well for the Rayders to just miss the top 10, and Tanner Drost carded a 94 to beat every other team's fourth golfer by at least five strokes and clinch the victory.

Tyler Fuchs shot a 96 and Hunter Jensen a 101 as well for Charlevoix.

well. Aaron does a great job with them and they're a quality team.

"Two quality programs. They're always really fun matches, unfortunately you can't win them all."

Harbor won many of the possession battles of the first half, putting the pressure on the Rayders early, which resulted in a the game's first goal 10 minutes into the contest.

Harbor Junior Elena Esposito dribbled through Charlevoix traffic, turned and unloaded a shot into the bottom right corner of the Rayder net, just out of reach of Charlevoix keeper Emily Hinkley for a 1-0 lead.

Another 10 minutes later, Harbor's Hannah Wagner stole an outside pass from the Rayders and sent a shot past Hinkley for a 2-0 lead, giving the Rams the momentum boost early.

The momentum would come short lived though, as less than 30 seconds later, Charlevoix tightened the game up with their first goal when Payton Novotny drew Harbor keeper Izzy Gracy out on a shot, played the rebound on Gracy's feet and scored another shot to an empty net.

The game stood at 2-1 at the half.

Just as Harbor Spring won much of the first half battles to the ball, Charlevoix began to take over in the second half, wearing down a thin Rams lineup.

The Rayders came away with a number of second half chances, including a couple close calls for Gracy and the Rams, but none that would show up on the scoreboard.

"We've been struggling with our finishing all year," said Scholten. "We've got to improve when we get those opportunities, we've got to bury it. If we're not going to finish, we're not going to win. That's just an area that we've struggled."

Split even in wins between them this season for the first time in a long time, a matchup in their Division 4 district final could be the overall decider for them this season.

"There's a good chance districts finals are here and it's us versus Harbor, we'll just have to see."

Charlevoix is off until Friday, when they host Grayling.

Leland 4, Charlevoix 2
CHARLEVOIX — With each game, the Charlevoix girls soccer team is getting closer to where it wants to be.

Even if the results on the scoreboard don't always show that yet.

Such was the case this Thursday and Friday, as the Rayders lost home games with Kalkaska and Leland, the eighth ranked team in the state in Division 4.

The loss to Leland on Friday was a tough one, coming in a close 4-2 match despite the Rayders outshooting and outpossessing the Comets, especially in the second half.

In the end, Charlevoix couldn't keep pace with Leland's Libby Munoz, the most prolific goal-scorer in MHSAA history, who scored twice, directly assisted on another goal and created the space by drawing defenders away for the fourth and final score by the Comets.

Charlevoix got two first half goals from sophomore Rachel Nesburg, one on a nice cross into the box and the second on a breakaway, to stay in the game, trailing just 3-2 at the half.

The Rayders were even better in the second half, dominating possession and creating a stream of multiple good scoring chances, but Leland's goalie was up to the task, and an unfortunately-timed collision defensively at the other end set up a counterattack goal for Leland that put the game out of reach.

The loss to Leland came on the heels of a 3-0 win over Kalkaska the previous day that also showed the Rayders' growth offensively.

Against the Blazers, Charlevoix dominated possession and connected on several good passing combinations to create all three of their goals.

Mikayla Dixon and Kylee Scholten each scored a goal against the Blazers for Charlevoix, and also assisted on the other's goal, while Rachel Nesburg also scored to give her three in a two day span, assisted by Kelsey Engstrom.

Emily Hinkley earned the shutout win in net against Kalkaska, and took the loss in net against the Comets as well.

Malcom Williams won the long jump (19-1.5) and took eighth in the 100 dash (12.18) for the Rayders, and Carson took sixth in the 400 dash (56.35) also teamed with Ben Boss, Luke Buday and Nick Bradley to win the 1,600 relay (3:34.80).

Justin Bond took second in the discus (117-0) and sixth in the shot put (40-10.5), Oliver DeYoung took third in the 300 hurdles (44.49) and fifth in the 110 hurdles (17.47) and the Rayders took second in the 3,200 relay (9:06.61) as well.

Dan Nesburg took fourth in the 200 dash (24.45) and sixth in the 100 dash (12.10), Bradley finished eighth in the long jump (16-7.25) and eighth in the 400 dash (57.04), and Ryan Erskine took seventh in the 3,200 run (11:15.15).

On the girls side, Charlevoix finished fifth, with 66 points, led by Izzy Witthoef, who won the 100 (13.65) and 200 dashes (27.85) and ran legs on the winning 800 relay (1:54.20) with Madison O'Leary, Isabel Hess and Bree Farmer, and the runner-up 1,600 relay (4:21.98).

Kenzy O'Leary won the 800 run (2:28.95) for the Rayders, and Michelle Bollini took second in the 1,600 run (5:29.47) and fourth in the 800 run (2:31.70).

Sydney Whitley took fourth in the 300 hurdles (55.09), and Lukila Witthoef took fifth in the 400 dash (1:08.29).

gave up just three hits to earn the win on the mound.

Jordan Adkins hit a solo home run in the second inning that proved to be the game winner for Charlevoix, and Garrett Seese added two hits as well.

Kyle Hebner, Erich Hibbler and Dillon Schwark each singled for Harbor Springs, while Chris Endebeen was the hard-luck loser, striking out three and giving up five hits in a solid outing.

In Game 2, the Rams used a six-run second inning to pull away for a 6-1 win, led by a two-run single from Hebner.

Caesy Cosens and Hibbler each added two hits, and Bobby Keller chipped in a double as well, while Brody Kreanak pitched a three-hitter to earn the win for Harbor Springs.

Adkins finished 2 for 2 with a RBI for the Rayders, and Austin Putman added a single and took the loss on the mound.

Colin Smith pitched three innings of relief as well for Charlevoix, striking out three and holding the Rams scoreless.

Charlevoix, now 11-10-1 overall and 5-5 in the LMC, travels to Kalkaska on Thursday for its next doubleheader, while Harbor Springs (7-13, 4-6) hosts T.C. St. Francis on the same night.

single.

Colin Smith earned the save for the Rayders, pitching a scoreless inning in relief.

Charlevoix also won Game 2 9-1, taking a 4-1 lead in the third and sealing the game with four runs in the sixth.

Garrett Seese went 3 for 3 with three RBIs to lead the Rayders, Jake Cox chipped in two hits and two RBIs, and Alex Kleiber and Brad Klinger each added a RBI single as well.

Seese earned the win on the mound, striking out three in five innings of work, and Smith pitched another inning of relief to finish off the win.

HARBOR SPRINGS — In another tightly contested LMC series, Harbor Springs found some life offensively in Game 2 to knock off visiting Charlevoix and avoid a sweep at the Rayders' hands on Monday.

BOYNE FALLS — There haven't been many surprises within Lake Michigan Conference girls' tennis this season.

Traverse City St. Francis and Harbor Springs have been equally dominant and Charlevoix's Emily Zabawa and East Jordan's Keegan Malpass have proved capable of playing with anyone.

In the Lake Michigan Conference finals on Monday in Boyne City, all of the above again turned out true.

The Gladiators turned in a sweeping performance en route to a conference title, while the Rams finished as runner-ups with six second place finishes.

Zabawa and Malpass each earned runner-up performances of their own in singles.

St. Francis finished with 24 points for the win, followed by Harbor Springs with 18; East Jordan, five; Elk Rapids, five; Charlevoix, four; Boyne City, three; and Grayling, one.

At No. 1 singles, Harbor's Lilly Chamberlin opened with a 6-0, 6-1 win over Charlevoix's Becca Moon, while Malpass defeated Elk Rapids, 6-2, 6-0.

Malpass then turned around for a 6-4, 0-6, 7-6 (7-3) win over Chamberlin, just days after falling to Chamberlin, 6-1, 6-1.

Malpass then fell in the championship, 6-3, 6-1.

At No. 2 singles, East Jordan's Haley Pod earned a 6-1, 6-1 win over Grayling, but then fell to St. Francis, 6-0, 6-0.

Zabawa earned a 7-5, 6-2 win over Boyne City, while Lucy Chamberlin earned a 6-0, 6-1 win over Elk Rapids.

In the semis, Zabawa defeated Chamberlin in a three-set tiebreak, 6-2, 6-7, (5-7), 6-3, but fell in the finals to TCSF, 6-1, 6-2.

"Emily Zabawa at No. 2 singles really did a fantastic job out there on the courts," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "She played Harbor Springs with intent and really put her best effort forward."

Harbor Springs' Annie Leaky of No. 3 singles earned a runner up finish to TCSF, defeating East Jordan's Adriana Dixon to reach the finals, where she then fell to St. Francis, 6-0, 6-0.

At No. 4 singles, Harbor's Serena Luplow opened with a 6-2, 6-2 win over Charlevoix, while East Jordan's Malena Odgaard defeated Boyne City, 6-3, 6-4. Luplow then defeated Odgaard, 6-0, 6-3, but fell in the final, 6-0, 6-3.

Harbor Springs earned second place finishes throughout the doubles lineups, beginning with Mikayla Dickinson and Skylar Smith of No. 1 doubles. Smith and Dickson opened with a win over Murphy Holt and Brielle Healey, 6-0, 6-2, but then fell in the finals, 7-5, 6-4.

Also at No. 1 doubles, Boyne City earned a win over Grayling, while Charlevoix took a loss from Elk Rapids.

At No. 2 doubles, Elk Rapids opened with a win over Charlevoix, 6-2, 6-2. East Jordan then took a 6-0, 60 loss to Mia and Demi Trabucchi of Harbor, who then fell to TCSF, 6-4, 6-3.

The No. 3 Harbor Springs team of Kaleigh Jacobs and Lauren Gietzen earned a runner-up finish with an opening win over Elk Rapids, 6-1, 6-2, then they turned in a win over Grace Freds and Abby Noirot of Charlevoix to get them to the finals.

"Our No. 3 doubles of Grace Freds and Abby Noirot played well," added Randall. "Most of the girls had good play and continue to learn and grow as a team."

In the title match with St. Francis, Jacobs and Gietzen fell, 6-2, 6-2.

The final match of No. 4 doubles opened with an Elk Rapids win over East Jordan's Haley Hoffman and Alley Durmebeck, 6-4, 6-2. Charlevoix's Lily Smith and Justice Landries defeated Grayling, 6-4, 6-3 and Harbor Springs' Grace Burns and Kati Gurnell turned in a win over Boyne City.

Gurnell and Burns then earned a 6-0, 6-0 win over Smith and Landries, setting up the final, where Harbor's duo fell to St. Francis, 6-0, 6-2.

Vessel Charlevoix celebrates 90 years on the water

On Monday, a vital transportation service in Charlevoix County was recognized for its long history of carrying people across the waters of Lake Charlevoix.

State and local officials along with friends, neighbors and descendants of the well-known former Ironton Ferry Captain Sam Alexander were on hand to rededicate vessel Charlevoix (aka the Ironton Ferry) on her 90th year of operation in the Ironton Narrows.

The ferry service, which has been in operation for more than 130 years, has made the 600-foot trip across the Ironton Narrows, carrying vehicles, cyclists and walkers across the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix from Ironton to Boyne City. The shortcut saves travelers a 20-mile trip by road around the lake.

TOP: People in attendance of the 90th year anniversary of the vessel Charlevoix — aka the Ironton Ferry — applaud as vehicles depart from making the trip across the Ironton Narrows from Boyne City to Charlevoix. The ferry crossing saves travelers 20 miles by road. ABOVE: Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider gives Ironton Ferry Captain Helen Dillon a hug before presenting her with a plaque of meritorious commendation for her work getting vehicles and people to safety when a car caught fire on ferry in October 2015.

LEFT: For many years the Ironton Ferry was home to Capt. Sam Alexander the most notable captain of the ferry. On the 90th anniversary of the vessel Charlevoix Alexander's great grandchildren Gretchen Barnum Grenell, (from left) Suzanne VanAlstyne, Deb Faculak, and David Friend, stand with Rep. CHARLEVOIX — Don't be that driver. — that's the message from Charlevoix city officials and project engineers for the infrastructure reconstruction happening on St. Mary's Drive, as well as Wood and Green streets.

They are reminding drivers to slow down and move over when approaching the construction zones. More than a dozen men and women could be on site working between the three streets each day, which is why officials also would like motorists who do not reside on the streets under reconstruction to use the appropriate detours.

"Ideally we would like to see only those who live here travel beyond the CHARLEVOIX — When Dick Joseph was elected to the Charlevoix Board of Education, one of his goals was to create a Hall of Fame to honor alumni who have used their education to make the world a better place.

That goal was realized on Sunday as the inaugural class of inductees was welcomed to the new Alumni Hall of Fame in a ceremony at Charlevoix Middle/High School.

Ten distinguished alumni were honored at the induction ceremony, with superintendent Mike Ritter, Middle/High School principal Suzanne Klinger and Charlevoix Elementary School principal Lisa Meyer introducing each inductee.

Joseph said the goal is to create a wall of fame in the Middle/High School so that students and visitors to the building can be inspired by the alumni.

"Our intention is to show our students what they can do with their experience here," Joseph said. "That they can come from a small town in Northern Michigan and accomplish big things and make the community they live in, be it Charlevoix or New York, a better place."

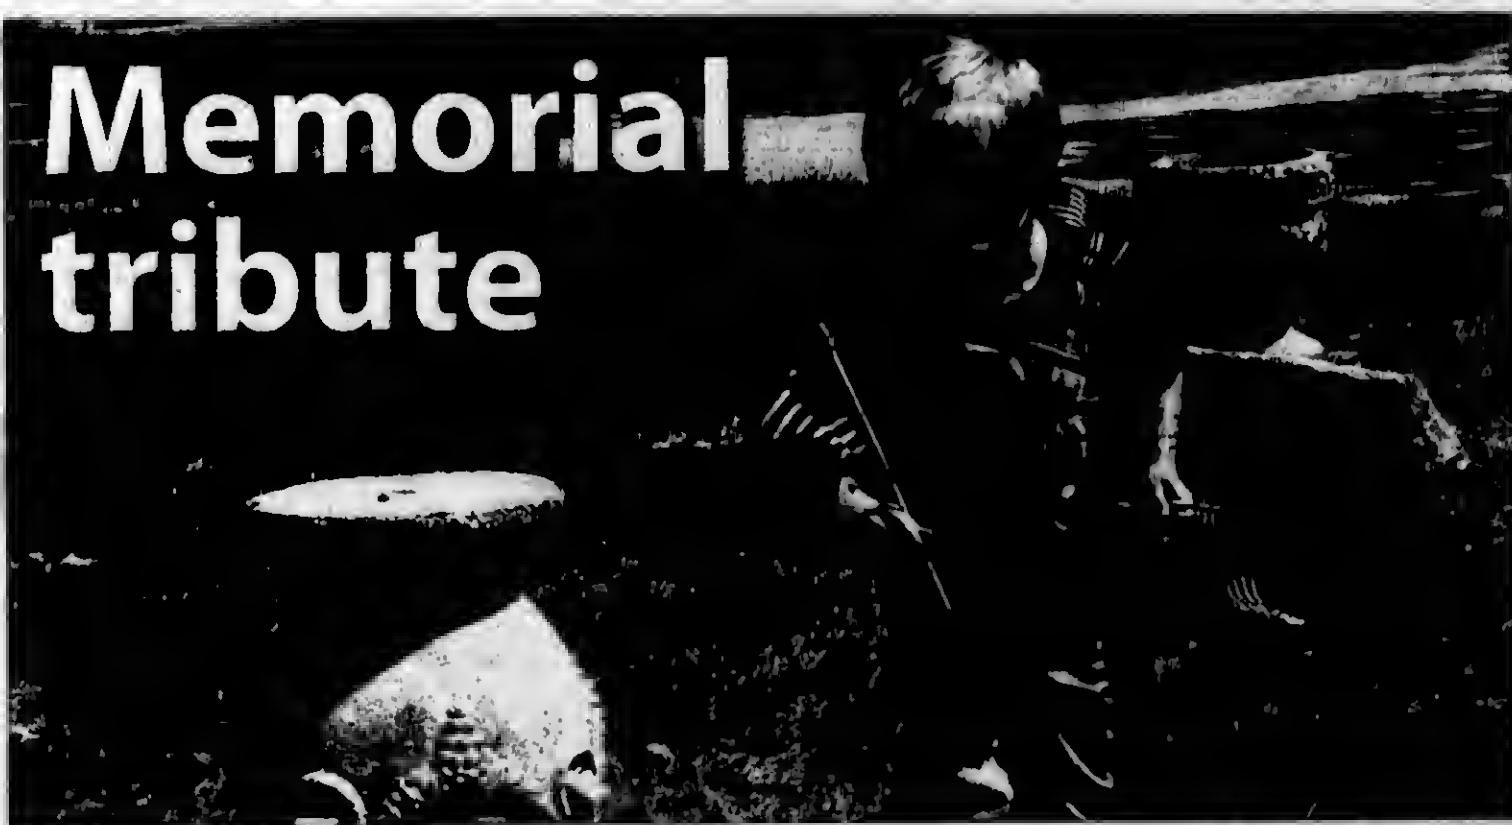

Hon. Roy C. Hayes, III

Hayes graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1986. Following a 20-year career as a private attorney, Hayes was elected to serve Charlevoix County as judge of the 33rd Circuit Court in 2014.

"I sincerely appreciate being nominated and selected for this honor," Hayes said. "It is an immense honor to be included among this very special group of people."

CHARLEVOIX — On May 18, a group of Charlevoix Middle School students took small utensils to dig around in mud on board the Beaver Islander.

The group just retrieved the sample from the bottom of Lake Charlevoix and was looking for organisms that belong to the Benthic Community — the insects and other organisms living in the mud at the bottom of the lake.

"You can see some worms, May fly nymphs and some of the zebra mussels," said Dave Clapp, of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, who was explaining the different organisms living on the bottom of the lake.

Clapp was volunteering for the day aboard the Beaver Islander with the Lake Charlevoix Association. The association, along with Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, sponsors a tour of Lake Charlevoix for the schools in the county. Students visit stations that teach about different aspects of Lake Charlevoix, including a station with a plastic model of a watershed — the area of land that drains into a river or lake — and a station about water safety, taught by the Coast Guard.

The tour has been taking place for 23 years. About 400 students take the tour each year, said volunteer Michael Buttigieg, which means more than 7,000 students have cycled through the stations since the program's beginning.

"This is a good way kids this age can learn about the lake, this hands-on kind of learning makes what they learn about it in books

Charlevoix Main Street/ DDA director resigns

ALLIE
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Just 14 months after Charlevoix's Annie Doyle became the Main Street/Downtown Development Authority director, she is leaving her post.

Her last day will be June 1.

Doyle issued her resignation on Tuesday, May 17, citing she has taken another position that will give her more time to spend with her young children.

"It was a difficult decision to make, but I have several free-lancing opportunities in the area that I am going to take advantage of that gives me the opportunity to be at home more with my family," Doyle said. "I truly appreciate all of the community support and will miss the amazing volunteers that I have been blessed to be able to work with."

Doyle was picked to lead the program in February 2015, and was instrumental in helping Charlevoix implement the Main Street Program. Within her first few weeks she met with business leaders and stakeholders in the downtown district. She worked with Main Street officials in Lansing that met with people from a combined 55 organizations and institutions in Charlevoix, including financial, commercial, retail, restaurants, property owners, civic service, community health, arts and education. These meetings brought together multiple volunteers that formed the four sub-committees of the Main Street/Downtown Development Board.

"I am excited to have been a part of getting the Charlevoix Main Street Program up and going this past year and a half," Doyle said.

She leaves in the midst of the program's second year that plans to build on the foundation she laid out in year one, she said.

"We have been working on a lot of great projects and the upcoming second year of the program will bring many great events and community activities," Doyle said. "I will help after I'm done with the transition of some of the projects on a need basis."

City Manager Mark Heydlauff praised Doyle for her contributions to the city as Main Street director.

"Annie filled some big shoes getting Main Street started for Charlevoix," Heydlauff said. "She really helped the city get moving in Main Street."

"I enjoyed working with her and I wish her all the best," he added.

Charlevoix Main Street/Downtown Development Authority board members congratulated Doyle on her new venture and board chairman Dan Barron said Doyle should be congratulated for her work with the Main Street program.

"I would like to thank her for her efforts, on behalf of the board and the city, to help implement the Main Street program in Charlevoix," Barron said. "We wish her well on her new position."

Event raises addiction awareness

LOUNNE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Raising awareness about addiction and recovery, Bay Area Substance Education Services saw a need and filled it by bringing the community together for Recovery Day.

Last Saturday, the local substance abuse prevention and treatment provider partnered with other organizations in the region for a day of education, socialization and action with an event it dubbed "5/21 Recovery Day" — the second of its kind this year. The first was hosted in January.

"Our first event had 88 people attend the different activities throughout the day," said Scott Kelly, executive director and co-founder of Bay Area Substance Education Services. "The day is designed to bring the recovering community together to reduce stigma, generate awareness and address issues that cause people with addiction disorders to avoid seeking help."

About 100 people attended the various programs offered throughout the day. The event began at 10:45 a.m. at the Charlevoix Cinema III with the movie "Memo to Self: Protecting Sobriety with the Science of Safety," followed by lunch and presentations in the community rooms of the Charlevoix Public Library.

The presentations were designed to hear from the audience on different ways to address recovery in a more public forum.

Recovery is made up of many components with a wide menu of continuing care, Kelly said, referring to recovery programs, counseling and other groups that address addiction.

"We know what works," Kelly said. "It's just getting people in step with understanding the many components. The beauty of our community is we have so many of those components in place."

Tom McHale, of Northern Michigan Substance Abuse Services in Gaylord, spoke about organizing and mobilizing the many networks of the recovery community to help bring more awareness to the funding needs at the national and state levels for addiction treatment centers.

"Treatment and recovery services are severely underfunded," McHale said. "How do we go about galvanizing the recovery community to make these issues known? I believe anybody in recovery is part of the solution."

There are many resources that offer services to community members that educate them about substance abuse that can help them better understand the struggles those close to them face. But instead of seeking information there is a negative stigma surrounding recovery and addiction, McHale said.

"It's easy to judge people with addiction or those who relapse back into their old behaviors," McHale said. "But if people who don't understand would look at the root of the problem, I believe recovery would be wider spread in the community."

Kelly

Mike Westenbroek and Evelyn Wujcik are members of Bugles Across America and are available to play taps at military funerals on request.

Nonprofit provides buglers for veteran's funerals

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

There are 400,000 or so funerals each year in the United States for military veterans and active-duty military men and women. They are entitled to a live bugler to play taps, but there are simply not enough buglers in the military to cover these services.

Filling the void is Bugles Across America, a nonprofit organization with nearly 7,000 horn-playing members nationwide who have stepped up on a volunteer basis to cover the shortage.

Bugles Across America was founded in 2000 by Tom Day, in response to federal legislation that stated "every honorably discharged veteran has a right to at least one uniformed military personnel to lead and present the flag and to sound taps for funeral honors."

Although the law specified that a CD recording could be used if a bugler was not available, Day felt that a recording was not enough to properly pay tribute to the service and sacrifice these veterans had given to their country. He took it upon himself to create and maintain a database of the names of possible buglers.

Assignments or missions are usually by request. The volunteer establishes direct communication with the requester and at that point is committed to fulfill the mission. Volunteer buglers usually publicize their availability in their home area and compensation for services rendered is not encouraged.

In Charlevoix, the bugles have sounded, honoring veterans who have passed away on many occasions. For families and friends who attend the ceremony which follows the church service, there is a moment of reverence, a feeling of just dues, for a life well lived, in part because that life included a sacrifice made in serving our country.

Mike Westenbroek, a bugler with the Bugles Across America organization for more than 12 years, explained the procedure.

"I am contacted by either Ron Winchester at Winchester Funeral home, or Joe Sidell who is dedicated to the cause of local veterans," Westenbroek, who played trumpet in the high school band many years ago, picked up his trumpet after about 25 years of not playing. "I became aware of the Bugles Across America about that time. My wife Denise's father was a World War II vet so my first engagement was playing at his funeral."

"I always felt that the trumpet player should be there in person at these events," he added. "It seems wrong somehow to have electronic music which is actually allowed but not desirable in my opinion. I don't wear a military uniform when I play, I wear a sport coat and tie. Sometimes military officers are sent wearing the uniform of the person's service and they will form a firing party for the gun salute along with the playing of taps, then present a folded flag to the family of the deceased."

Another Charlevoix member of Bugles Across America, Evelyn Wujcik, former band director with Charlevoix Public Middle School and member of the Charlevoix city band, is also available to honor requests. She joined the organization five years ago.

"Most of my communications have been out of Traverse City," Wujcik said. "I haven't been able to play at the requested locations because they have been far away. The e-mail communications from the Traverse City branch always tell who played and where. I am definitely available upon request to play for any local family. I would be contacted through Joe Sidell or Ron Winchester to set up the time and place."

When the Bugles Across America is contacted for an engagement, a bugler will be assigned and will arrive early to the funeral site. If a particular branch of the service has been engaged, two military representatives will arrive with an electronic bugle just in case a musician doesn't show up.

"Taps is the last thing you hear at a military funeral," said Westenbroek. "It's a respectful and memorable occasion that I am proud to be a part of."

Commemorating Memorial Day

The countdown to summer break has begun and Boyne City is commemorating this holiday weekend with a bang. Memorial Day weekend is the kickoff to summer season by remembering loved ones who passed away, defending our freedom. Here is a few of the exciting things happening in Boyne City this weekend.

Starting at 8 a.m. on Saturday, May 28, head to Sunset Park to attend the annual DARE 5k Fun Run. The run is to benefit the DARE program in Boyne City and East Jordan's schools.

Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) is an international substance abuse prevention education program that seeks to prevent use of controlled drugs, membership in gangs, and violent behavior. I was a student of DARE in fifth grade under the teaching of officer Dan Mercer, of the Boyne City Police Department and I enjoyed it. The DARE program led me to believe in a sober and healthy lifestyle.

At 11:45 a.m. on Monday, May 30, people will gather in downtown to watch the annual parade. It begins at the American Legion Post on Lake Street and will travel to Veterans Memorial Park. Memorial services at Veterans Park will begin at noon. The Boyne City High School Band will perform at the Memorial Day services and in the parade, so don't miss it.

Memorial Day is a day Americans take to honor and remember all the loved ones who lost their lives in the wars that the United States has been involved in. If your town is celebrating Memorial Day, be sure to find out what events are going on and attend an event to commemorate those who gave there lives for our freedom. I hope you all have an amazing Memorial Day Weekend in the Boyne City area.

Test your knowledge with Charlevoix Certified

Living in Charlevoix, we often forget what a first time visit would be like for a guest to our community. Tidbits of knowledge we use on a daily basis are often the questions that a visitor is likely to ask: where the Post Office is, what times the bridge goes up, where the public restrooms are, why Charlevoix is named Charlevoix, (the list could go on). Tourism strength in Charlevoix depends on community ambassadors. But what exactly does it mean to be an ambassador of Charlevoix? We are not talking foreign diplomats here, though being diplomatic is often a quality seen in community ambassadors.

Since I am a huge thesaurus geek, synonyms for this type of ambassador are campaigner, representative, promoter, champion, supporter, backer, and booster. Many people in our community encompass each of these terms every day and directly impact Charlevoix. If you find yourself thinking you are not the best Charlevoix champion, promoter or booster you could be, please consider joining the many community members who are Charlevoix Certified.

A few years ago the Charlevoix Convention & Visitors Bureau started the Charlevoix Certified program to increase the awareness of Charlevoix's amenities for front line staff who are interacting with the visitors to our community. We were pleasantly surprised at the number of participants and diversity of professions. Charlevoix Certified is open to anyone who wants to test their Charlevoix knowledge.

For the 2016 summer season, we have revamped the questions to reflect all of the new and exciting things happening in Charlevoix. By becoming Charlevoix Certified, you'll gain the knowledge to become a great ambassador, and will be able to show visitors just how great the Charlevoix community truly is.

Certification for the Charlevoix Certified program can be achieved by successfully completing six short online quizzes about our community. Each "open book" quiz features a different theme, and can be taken at your own pace. If you get stuck on a question, simply visit the Charlevoix Convention & Visitors Bureau's website to look for the answer. Once each quiz is completed with a passing score, you will receive your own certificate of completion.

J. L. CRANE
Charlevoix, Mich. Telephone No. 61.

Crane's Dry Goods store was a classy mainstay of Bridge Street for many years in the first decades of the 20th century. It occupied the majority of the ground floor of the Charlevoix County Bank building on the corner of Bridge and Clinton streets, wrapping around the bank with entrances on both streets. The strong southern light coming through the rear door illuminates the background. Crane's specialized not in clothing but in very high quality fabrics, many of which can be seen swagged from the ceiling and walls. Its clientele arrived from all over the region. Even a dog greeted Crane's customers, seen here in a partial blur perched on the left counter. The business came to a fiery end on the early morning of Feb. 8, 1924 when a faulty flue ignited and the whole building went up in flames to complete gutted destruction in temperatures that reached to beyond 20 below. The bank was back on site by June, and is currently the North Seas Gallery. But Crane's decided to call it a day. What is shown here, in the store's heyday, is now Kilwin's Chocolates.

Poster contest winner's art judged at national level

This year fourth grader, Kylee Rice, daughter of Chris and Gretchen Rice, entered a poster contest offered by the Youth Education Committee of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club. She and several other winners from Charlevoix Elementary School and St. Mary School advanced to the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan (state level) for the National Garden Club's Woodsy Owl and Smokey Bear-poster contests.

After the posters were judged at the state level, they proceeded to regionals for consideration. Rice's poster won first place at regional competition and proceeded to the national competition.

The themes for the poster contests were selected by the National Garden Club, Inc. and the U.S. Forest Service. This year's themes were Smokey Bear "Only You Can Prevent Wildfires" and Woodsy Owl, "Lend a Hand Care for the Land."

There was also a local poster competition "My Garden of Many Colors" whose grand prize winner was fifth grader, Mikayla Sharrow. The emphasis on all of the poster contests are conservation, ecology and the use of plants na-

"No one could remember any Charlevoix student ever being considered in the national competition before Kylee Rice," said Kirsten Jones, Charlevoix Garden Club member. "The posters makes our Garden Club buttons pop with pride."

Local winners were honored at the May 9, spring recognition tea where family members and friends were also invited. Posters were mounted and displayed on the walls and cookies and punch were served.

All first, second, third place and honorable mention winners in each contest were individually recognized by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club and presented with a certificate.

The overall winners in the garden-themed contest and Smokey/Woodsy contest received a framed copy of their artwork.

Michigan Garden Club state winners receive an engraved wooden plaque.

Memorial Day: Parade, barbecue set for Charlevoix

CHARLEVOIX — Come honor local fallen soldiers by joining the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library in this year's Memorial Day Parade, on Monday, May 30, in Charlevoix. The library friends invite friends, families, kids, pets, decorated bikes or scooters, red, white and blue balloons, flags ... all are invited to create a patriotic group behind banners which bear the names of Charlevoix soldiers who have given their lives for our country from World War I to the present day.

Any veterans who unable march and would like to participate in the Memorial Day Parade will have rides available to them provided by the Street Legends Classic Car club of Charlevoix. Parade participants will meet at 9:30 a.m. in the parking lot of the old American Legion Hall. The parade will then turn right into East Park. Parade participants will meet at 9:30 a.m. in the parking lot of the old American Legion Hall.

There will be a moment of remembrance, patriotic music, and a gun salute over the harbor at that time. The short program will begin once all participants are gathered. Lunch will be held at the Charlevoix Elks Lodge at 104 Mason St., immediately following the program in the park. Veterans and their families along with parade participants are invited to come. Lunch is sponsored jointly by the Charlevoix Elks and the City of Charlevoix Fire Department.

Hospice of Northwest Michigan recognizes Vietnam veterans

Hospice of Northwest Michigan is one of the newest registered partners in the commemorative effort to acknowledge Vietnam veterans during the Vietnam War 50th Anniversary Commemoration.

Over the next three years they will be hosting events open to Vietnam veterans, veterans of all lines of the military and their families including Merchant Marines and Department of Defense, State Department and other government civilians in an effort to afford all veterans the appreciation and recognition they deserve for their service and sacrifice.

These new events are in addition to the already occurring We Honor Veterans Pinning Ceremonies being done to recognize, thank and honor each and every veteran in their care on behalf of a grateful nation. Amy Wieland, executive director of Hospice of Northwest Michigan, will collaborate and coordinate these activities with other area organizations, veterans and Veteran's Affairs offices. As a We Honor Veterans hospice provider, Hospice of Northwest Michigan is providing specialized care to veterans who are facing a life-limiting illness. The National Hospice and Palliative Care Organization in collaboration with the Department of Veterans Affairs created We Honor Veterans to empower Hospice and other healthcare providers across America to meet the unique needs of seriously ill veterans and their families.

The Vietnam 50th Anniversary programs are organized around a series of national, regional and local events that are designed to recognize Vietnam veterans, their families and their contribution to the war effort and community. Hospice of Northwest Michigan is planning two community events for 2016 in addition to the individual Hospice pinning ceremonies. These all inclusive veterans appreciation events will be in coordination with the Charlevoix Elks Poker Run for Veterans and the local Veteran's Day events, parades and activities in the area and include a recognition pinning ceremony.

Hospice of Northwest Michigan is interested in hearing from veterans in the area who are not listed with the local Veteran's Affairs offices. The names of those interested would be added to the list of vets receiving recognition, information about the program and will provide them an opportunity to participate in upcoming community events.

Hospice of Northwest Michigan is a proud Commemorative Partner of the Vietnam War Commemoration.

East Jordan grad flies high in the Navy

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — A East Jordan native and 2008 East Jordan High School graduate is serving in the U.S. Navy aboard Naval Air Station Jacksonville, the largest base in the Southeast Region and third largest in the nation.

Lt. j.g. Sarah Kupovits is a pilot serving with Commander, Patrol and Reconnaissance Wing 11. As a pilot, Kupovits is responsible for managing and supervising sailors and flying aircraft tactically for anti-submarine warfare missions, reconnaissance operations and maritime patrols.

"I enjoy working with the people in the Navy, even with diverse backgrounds there is a bond for the missions at hand," Kupovits said. "I also love how everyday is different, from the actual place that you are going, to the mission and the people that you are flying with."

Lt. j.g. Sarah Kupovits is a pilot serving with Commander, Patrol and Reconnaissance Wing 11.

Officials, Wing 11's history and reputation remain unparalleled since being commissioned on Aug. 15, 1942. Throughout the decades, Wing 11 has continued to fly combat missions in direct support of the troops on the ground and delivered traditional maritime capabilities, real-time intelligence, surveillance and reconnaissance.

"The U.S. Navy sometimes asks the impossible of our people. It is sailors that make the impossible possible," said Capt. Anthony Corapi, Commodore, Patrol and Reconnaissance Wing 11. "Lt. j.g. Kupovits is one example of a selfless servant of our nation. These heroes ask for very little recognition and perform their daily job with pride and professionalism defending freedom and our way of life around the world. Each member of the Navy's combat team is crucial to our success. I am very proud to have Lt. j.g. Kupovits on our team."

Kupovits is part of a crew that began a transition, in 2014, to the P-8A Poseidon, a long-range anti-submarine warfare, anti-surface warfare, designed for intelligence, surveillance and reconnaissance missions, from the earlier P-3C Orion land-based, long-range anti-submarine warfare patrol aircraft. Earlier this year, squadron VP-45 entered the Inter-Deployment Readiness Cycle in preparation for their first deployment as a P-8A squadron.

"I love the fact that we are one of the first commands to fly the P-8As and at the forefront of maritime patrol and reconnaissance," Kupovits said.

According to Navy officials, the Navy continues to meet milestone after milestone on this world-class mission and is providing an aircraft with superior capabilities to the men and women in uniform that will have a lasting legacy promoting a global maritime strategy.

"Serving in the Navy I've learned that sacrifices are well worth it when others depend on you for support," Kupovits said. "I've also learned to value respect for all and I get a sense of pride knowing that I am doing my job for a greater cause."

The meaning of Memorial Day

Editors note: The following is a guest commentary from John Hess, director of the Charlevoix County Veterans Affairs Office.

As a child I remember the Memorial Day Parade in my hometown of Harbor Springs. The America Legion would lead the procession followed by the fire truck, boy scouts, girl scouts, cub scouts and brownies. Local merchants and farmers would add to the event.

My grandfather, Bill Perry, from time to time, would add a team of horses and a dray to the parade. The whole procession would end up at Lakeview cemetery for the solemn 21-gun volley and the playing of Taps. All the veterans' graves were decorated with American flags. After the ceremonies the crowd would disperse and quietly go home or to family gatherings.

So why do we have this day of remembrance? In order to answer questions lets look into history of this day.

On May 5, 1868, General John A. Logan, national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, issued general order No. 11 that: The 30th of May, is designated for the purpose of strewing, with flowers, or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country.

The original name

"Decoration Day" has been changed, over the years, to "Memorial Day" thus remembering and honoring the dead from any war. Memorial Day is now celebrated in almost every state on the last Monday in May. The national Holiday Act of 1971 (P.L. 90-363) was passed to formalize the date.

Several towns in the U.S. have claimed to be the birthplace of Decoration Day: including Columbus, Miss;

Macon, Ga.; Richmond Va.; Boalsburg, Pa.; and Carbonale, Ill.

In 1915, Moira Michael conceived of the idea of wearing red poppies for Memorial day in honor of those who died serving the nation during war. She was the first to wear the flower and sold poppies to her friends and co-workers. The proceeds of the sales were donated to organizations to benefit servicemen in need.

To help re-educate and remind Americans of the true meaning of Memorial Day, the "National Moment of Remembrance" resolution was passed in December 2000, which asks that at 3 p.m. local time, for all Americans "to voluntarily and informally observe in their own way a moment of remembrance and respect, pausing from whatever they are doing for a moment of silence or listening to "Taps."

Memorial Garden

The Charlevoix Garden Club maintains the Memorial Garden, which is one of the oldest gardens in Charlevoix — established in 1977. It is located in an island on Mercer Avenue at the corner of East Dixon Avenue. The garden is open to the public 24/7 for contemplation or to rest during a long walk.

Anyone is welcome to make a contribution to the Memorial Garden as a tribute to a friend or a loved one who has passed away. The garden now memorializes more than 200 people.

Contributions may be sent to the "Charlevoix Area Garden Club" in care of Nancy Fowler, 409 East Dixon Ave., Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Beacon Dental Center completes annual 'Dentistry from the Heart' event

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

Though it was a cold Saturday morning in Charlevoix, Dr. Michael Sullivan and a handful of other dentists proved that the impact of kindness can go a long way.

The group of dentists assisted dozens of people in the community by offering free dental care at Beacon Dental Center in Charlevoix. Beacon Dental Centers of Charlevoix and Gaylord have been providing "Dentistry from the Heart," an annual free dental clinic to area residents since 2011. Beacon Dental Center of Charlevoix, on M-66, hosted this year's event for the Charlevoix area residents on Saturday, May 14, from 7 a.m.-4 p.m.

Since then, more than $500,000 in free dental services for patients in need including cleaning, filling and extractions have been provided. The day brought approximately 100 patients, many who camped out early in a heated tent provided on the premises, on a first-come, first-served basis. Attending to the dental needs of attendees were Sullivan, owner of Beacon Dental Center and his associate, Dr. Mildred Tinker, who serves in both Charlevoix and Gaylord. On hand were more than 25 volunteers including Sullivan's staff, the center's dental hygienists, executive assistant Teresa Seese, chief operations officer, Justin Micheau, community volunteers and Sullivan's young son, Jack. "Everyone is in the spirit of helping patients and making a difference," Seese said. "For some it will be a first visit, others have attended in years past. Most don't have any dental insurance and haven't been to a dentist in several years."

Another clinic will be held at Beacon Dental Center in Gaylord in November.

For those who were unable to attend the event Beacon Dental Center offers a dental assistance plan called "Smile Club." This is an affordable option for dental care for individuals and families struggling to make ends meet. The plan offers benefits including: no deductibles, no claim forms, no pre-authorization, no pre-existing condition limitation, immediate eligibility and no yearly maximum.

For more information, call Beacon Dental Center at (231) 237-5098.

The Dhaseler family recently celebrated with the Charlevoix Area of Chamber of Commerce with a ribbon cutting and unveiling of the updates to the Dhaseler Event Barn.

Local event barn adds new features

LONGIE ALLEN

A thoughtful remodel and adaptive reuse of a family barn South of Charlevoix has provided space for proms, events, weddings and even a farm to table dinner in recent years. But the family was not done with their vision.

The Dhaseler Farm Events Barn has added a few more features to make a wedding or other event more special. A recent remodel has extended the main floor to accommodate more seating tables and dancing space depending on the event.

The recent ribbon cutting held by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce unveiled the space to attendees.

"We have a new bar area and the added floor space will work well for weddings," said Cornelia Dhaseler.

So far this spring the barn has been the venue for two proms and the summer wedding schedule is filling up.

The rustic feel and birdcage chandelier style lighting along with the added wooden bar provides a unique setting for a wedding or other party type event.

"The right lighting added to the old wood feel makes the atmosphere is just incredible for those events," said Carl Dhaseler.

The events barn is still home to July music events, but since the popularity of the farm as a wedding venue those music events are limited, Carl said.

"Weddings are our most popular request for the space," Carl said.

more real," Buttigieg said.

The Lake Charlevoix Association hopes by teaching students about Lake Charlevoix's water systems in this hands-on way, they will better learn to care for the lake and its surroundings.

"It's an important program that the Lake Charlevoix Association and Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council has implemented for the students in middle school," said Dan Meyers, water resource specialist at Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council. "They will carry this experience with them for the rest of their lives."

Students are able to take classroom education and correlate what they have learned to the hands on workshops they experience on the Beaver Islander, said Charlevoix Middle/High School teacher Tom Schultz.

"This program has been going on a long time and is science related to the students current study," he said. "The students get real life science exposure and gain a better respect for the area and want to take care of it. It is important students understand what this local resource means to our community."

ted and equipped in a way that would satisfy researchers project needs.

"When we were approached by CMU to be part of the project and immediately we were interested in learning more. As a tourism company based on the Great Lakes and this being our home, lake stewardship is something we take very seriously," McQueer said.

The monitoring system the groups came up with is the only one of its kind operating in the state. With the Great Lakes containing nearly 20 percent of the world's surface fresh water, studies such as those being done by Central Michigan University will help researchers understand environmental issues affecting the Great Lakes basin.

Dr. Donald Uzarski, Director of Central Michigan University Institute for Great Lakes Research and the Central Michigan University Biological Station located on Beaver Island, noted the importance of the work.

"The bottom line is that we have to be monitoring these changes in real time so that we can alter management practices and be adaptive before it is too late to respond," Uzarski said.

While the research will be conducted indefinitely, recent studies has shown that the northern lakes are warming faster than the southern lakes with climate change so the need to be proactive is great. Currently while the Environmental Protection Agency, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, and a handful of universities monitor much of the state, there is very little work being done in northern Michigan.

With research being conducted on a daily basis, the university and its team are very grateful to the helping hand in facilitating these studies by Beaver Island Boat Company.

"I especially want to thank BIBCO (Beaver Island Boat Company) for being a partner in this important work," Uzarski said. "This is a great example of how academic, government, and private partners can come together to tackle issues that impact our economy."

The Central Michigan University Biological Station is located on Beaver Island, 32 miles from Charlevoix, Michigan in northern Lake Michigan. The unique setting of the station provides a wealth of opportunity for scientific research for faculty, students, teachers, and visiting researchers.

For more information about this project, visit cmich.edu/colleges/cslr/.

HALL OF FAME

Hayes recounted how, in his junior year at Charlevoix High School, his father was selected by President Ronald Reagan to serve as the United States Attorney in Detroit and that it nearly derailed his plans to graduate from Charlevoix High School.

"As happy as I was for him, I was devastated by the thought of moving to Detroit and not getting to complete my senior year at Charlevoix High School," Hayes said.

Hayes thanked his parents for making the sacrifice of "maintaining two households at opposite ends of the state for a year" so he could graduate from Charlevoix High School.

"I'm very appreciative of the fact that I got to grow up here and go to Charlevoix schools," Hayes said. "That's why I'm back here and I plan to have both my daughters graduate from Charlevoix High School as well."

Dr. April North
— Class of 1987

April North graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1987. She earned her MD degree at Michigan State University through an Air Force scholarship. Following her residency, she returned to active duty in the Air Force. She was deployed overseas twice and achieved the rank of Major.

April also runs a nonprofit animal sanctuary called Second Chance Ranch in Jackson, Wyo.

"Currently, about 30 domestic farm animals share April's home with her," said Klinger. "She actively advocates for animal welfare, is engaged in promoting responsible pet ownership and is often seen walking in the countryside with five or six dogs."

Her mother, Ruth North, accepted the award on April's behalf.

Ruth read from a letter that April sent, saying it was "a pleasure to be inducted in the first class of Fame class" and thanking teachers and coaches for supporting her during her school career.

Growing up in Charlevoix attending our public schools was a fabulous start," she said.

Jan Weller
— Class of 2007

Jan Weller graduated from Charlevoix High School in 2007. She is on the autism spectrum with a high functioning form of Asperger's Syndrome who has become an autism advocate, poet and public speaker.

Meyer, reading an introduction by Jan, said "When I was diagnosed in the '90s, no one thought I would graduate high school, let alone college and accomplish all I have... I owe everything to this point to the Charlevoix school system. They were committed to helping me succeed."

Jan has published two poetry collections and has spoken to students about what it is like to be on the spectrum and about bullying.

Weller said he wants to serve as an example of what

In 2004, Drenth began coaching at Michigan State University and is currently the director of cross-country and track and field.

Drenth said it was "quite an honor" to be among the first class of inductees to the Alumni Hall of Fame.

"I'm still not sure they got the right guy but I appreciate the nomination," he said.

Drenth thanked many teachers and coaches for their support during his school career.

"The influences here and who we become as people, I think, can really be traced back to this community and the people in it," he said. "I feel really, really blessed to be here."

James Bowman
— Class of 1951

James Bowman graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1951. He was very active in athletics in his high school career, lettering nine times. He continued to play football as center for the University of Michigan.

"While playing football, he also was in the Air Force ROTC program. He completed pilot training in 1957," Klinger said. "In 1958, Lt. Bowman started his 49 years of dedication to the Air Force Academy and the Falcons athletics."

During his long career at the Air Force Academy, Bowman coached for 18 seasons, helped the program to 17 post-season bowl games and saw 38,797 cadets graduate.

Bowman retired in 2007 as associate athletic director for the Air Force Academy.

Klinger said, "Coach Bowman described his service to the academy as a privilege and an honor."

Stroud's grandson, Greg Bryan, accepted the award on his behalf.

"Oscar was always proud of Charlevoix High School and the education that he got here," Bryan said, showing Stroud's 1930 diploma to the audience.

Bryan added that Stroud was "totally dedicated to this community."

"He was a dynamo," he said. "When he wanted to do something he would get it done."

Scott Davis
— Class of 1981

Scott Davis graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1981. He studied mechanical and industrial engineering and was deployed overseas with the U.S. Army Reserve. He served in the U.S. Army Reserve for 30 years, and retired with the rank of colonel in 2015.

Davis currently serves as the U.S. Army's program executive officer for Combat Support and Combat Service Support.

Davis said he was surprised when he heard he had been selected to the Alumni Hall of Fame and said "It's amazing" to be amongst such accomplished alumni.

Davis said his career, both in uniform and as a civilian, has been extremely rewarding.

"Almost from the beginning of my adult life, I found myself drawn to the military and a career of service," he said. "For those who have been there, you understand the camaraderie, sense of family and the value of service in the military. I directly attribute my longing for these to growing up in the small town of Charlevoix."

Dean Davenport
— Class of 1933

Dean Davenport graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1933. After attending Central Michigan University, Davenport began his teaching and coaching career at schools in Mount Pleasant, Petoskey and Traverse City. Davenport is also very active in the Charlevoix community, where he is the director of recreation programs, is an organizer of the Venetian Festival and founder of the Charlevoix County Junior Golf program.

Davenport's daughter, Chris Way, accepted the award on his behalf. Way showed a video of Davenport thanking the district for the honor.

"Graduates here have always been motivated to be the very best they can be in all endeavors," he said. "Proof of this is in the distinguished alumni being inducted today."

George Haggard Jr.
— Class of 1988

Ritter said Sloan was a son, a scholar, an athlete, a soldier, a husband and father, "but most all he was our friend."

His parents Wendy and Emory Sloan accepted the award on their son's behalf. Hayes spoke for the family at the ceremony.

"It's been almost 10 years since we lost Doug," Hayes said. "Major Douglas Sloan was not only one of my best friends, he was an American hero. He was a courageous soldier and a fearless leader of men on the battlefield."

Hayes said Sloan was proud to be from Charlevoix and to have graduated from Charlevoix High School.

"He took as much as I did from the teachers and coaches who impacted him during his formative years," he said. "Everyone who knew Doug was touched by him. He was generous to a fault. It's cliché, but he was that guy who would give you the shirt off his back."

road closure signs," said Pat Elliott, Department of Public Works superintendent. "Unnecessary travel slows down the work and puts work crews in danger."
There will be another lane shift scheduled for U.S. 31 after Memorial Day to complete the infrastructure upgrades, Elliott said.
"We expect the lane shift to begin mid-week," Elliott said. "It will last approximately four to five days while crews finish project work connected to U.S. 31."
The nearly $3.5 million infrastructure project in Charlevoix is progressing as well as can be expected," according to the project inspector Brad Muma.
"We are making progress and we're pleasantly surprised about the lack of surprises that we're finding underneath everything," Muma said, as MDC crews work tearing up the roadway to replace old and patchwork water and sewer lines.
Wood Street is in the final phase of construction, while Green Street is nearing completion of the second phase should and St. Mary's Drive is in the first phases of installing sanitary sewer, Elliott said.
St. Mary's Drive, and Wood and Green streets are the first part of the project and should be completed by June 30, officials said.
City Manager Mark Heyd-lauff said the project is "going very well."

"Most people are pleased that they will have a more reliable water system and new sidewalks," Heydlauff said.
As crews make their way down a street, they cover holes in the road to allow residents to gain access to their homes, Muma said.

"Crews are trying to be as least intrusive as possible to the residents," he said.
Curbs, gutters and sidewalks along the path of the roadwork are expected to be completed after all of the underground work is done, according to officials.

The improvements, funded by a $6 million bond, include the new water and sewer lines, storm water and new curbs and gutters. The entire project is scheduled to be completed by mid-

October.
The next project will begin in July and August and that will entail the 200 block of East Upright Street and Alice Street from Belvedere to Garfield avenues.
In late August, work crews are expected to begin work on Burns Street from East Dixon to Petoskey avenues and Nichols Street from East Dixon to Petoskey avenues.

From the ground up

An update on bees

Bees have been in the news a lot in recent years, not only because of the ominous decline in their numbers but also because of their important role in maintaining plant biodiversity. Nevertheless, they are still not a protected species.

Until recently, bees were the only domesticated species that did not have a gene conservation bank or a sperm bank. However, the U.S. Department of Agriculture is trying to correct the situation and has just opened the first bee gene bank.

Thanks to the technique of cryogenics, embryos and bee sperm are now being stored in Colorado. First cooled to 157°C (-250°F) in the vitrification stage, the bee embryos are then stored in liquid nitrogen at -195°C (-320°F). In the future, an embryo can be taken from this bank to make a queen who is inseminated with sperm that was also preserved by cryogenics. The preservation of genetics is also being studied.

IS HUMAN ACTIVITY THE CAUSE?

Many bees are affected by the deformed wing virus, which is native to Europe and transmitted by the Varroa mite. European bees of the Apis mellifera species are the source of all the cases, and it is the transportation of hives for the pollination of crops that causes widespread transmission.

This threat adds to all the concern for the future of bees, which the colony collapse disorder has been stirring over the past ten years. Although the precise cause of this disorder has never been fully understood, some other causes may be involved, such as insecticides and monoculture.

Non-bee insects play a significant role in pollination

Other bees and non-bee insects on 17 different crops. Led by Dr. Romina Rader of the University of New England in Australia, researchers looked at how often flowers were visited and how much pollen was deposited per visit.

The survey ascertained that the contribution of non-bee insects was similar to that of other types of bees, including bumblebees, leafcutter bees, mining bees, plasterer bees and sweat bees. While non-bee insects were less effective pollinators, they visited flowers more often.

Studies found that fruit production in crops increased with the frequency of visits by non-bee pollinators. It was also determined that non-bee insects were able to pollinate at times of day and in weather conditions when bees are unable to do so. They were also "more efficient in transferring pollen for some crops under certain conditions" and were able "to carry pollen further distances than some bees."

Rayders end season with sixth place at D4 Regional

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

TRAVERSE CITY — Charlevoix played well but saw its girls tennis season draw to a close with sixth place finish at the Division 4 regional hosted by T.C. St. Francis on Thursday. Charlevoix finished with five points, led as it had been all season long by No. 1 singles player Becca Moon and No. 2 singles player Emily Zabawa. Moon won her opening match 6-1, 6-1 against an opponent from Manistee before falling to the tournament's top seed from St. Francis, Amand Bandrowski in the quarterfinals, 6-0, 6-1. "(Bandrowski) is a very tough opponent to run into," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "Becca really played well against such an experienced player."

At No. 2 singles, Emily Zabawa beat a player from Grayling 6-1, 6-1 in the quarterfinals, and fell to Harbor Springs' Lucy Chamberlain in an epic three set match, 6-2, 6-7, 0-6 in the semifinals to end her day. No. 3 singles player Margaret Purvis and No. 4 singles player Lydia Balyo lost tough opening draws to players from Harbor Springs, and all four doubles teams of Nicole Swadling and Maggie Potter, Elyssa Seger and Rilyn Wagner, Grace Freds and Abby Noirot and Justice Landries and Lily Smith all lost their opening round matches as well. "Even though we are graduating three seniors we were a very young team this year in regards to experience," Randall said. "Despite the short time in the sport they did not lack passion for being on the court. "We will have a good returning team next year with two juniors returning in Moon, Balyo, our sophomores Purvis, Freds, Noirot, Batdorf, and Batten all are gaining awesome experience and now understand what it takes to play at the varsity level, and our three freshmen Wagner, Seger and Smith have a great future with tennis all earning starting spots as freshman."

Charlevoix sends two individuals, four relays to state final in Comstock Park SCOTTVILLE — Making the Division 3 track and field state finals is difficult, and the task isn't made easier by a regional field as tough as the one at Mason County Central on Friday. Despite the challenges, Charlevoix persevered and will send representatives on both the boys and girls side to the championship meet in Comstock Park on June 4.

The Rayder boys scored 69 points to finish fourth overall, with Jared McLean earning his spot at the state finals with a runner-up finish in the 400 dash (51.66) to advance as Charlevoix's lone individual qualifier on the boys side.

Charlevoix will send two strong relays as well, as the team of Ben Boss, Luke Buday, Noah Carson and McLean won the regional title in the 1,600 relay in 3:31.70, and the team of Buday, Carson, Jon Pischner and David Ritter also qualified in the 3,200 relay with a runner-

ATWOOD — A successful conference season ended in a solid finish for the Charlevoix boys golf team at the Lake Michigan Conference Championship meet on Monday, as the Rayders took runner-up honors at the Antrim Dells Golf Club.

Charlevoix shot a 350, 14 strokes behind champion Traverse City St. Francis, who got rounds of 79 from Ryan Navin and Joe Coates to take the title after coming in second or worse in every previous conference event.

Matt Good shot an 80 to finish fifth on the day and lead the Rayders, and Tanner Drost carded an 87 to finish 10th.

Montana Thompson shot a 91 as well for Charlevoix, and Tyler Fuchs carded a 92, including a hole in one on the fifth hole at Antrim Dells.

The key performance for Charlevoix came from Camden Musilek, whose round of 94 beat out Elk Rapids' fifth golfer and gave the Rayders the edge in a tie-break with the Elks, who also shot a 350 to tie for second.

Collin Turkleson shot a 103 to round out the Rayders' scorers.

Slow starts haunt Rayders in doubleheader losses

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix fell behind early and couldn't dig its way out in both games of a doubleheader loss to visiting T.C. St. Francis on Monday, as the Gladiators clinched the LMC title with 11-5 and 4-2 wins.

In Game 1, the Rayders gave up six runs in the top of the first and trailed 8-0 after the top of the second.

Charlevoix rallied to score five in the bottom of the second to get back in the game, but couldn't close the gap any further, and the Gladiators took advantage of 11 Rayder errors to extend their lead in the third, fifth and sixth innings.

Christian Matye went 2 for 4 with a bases-clearing triple to lead Charlevoix, and Austin

Putman went 2 for 4 with a RBI and took the loss on the mound as well.

Garrett Seese struck out three in two innings of relief and went 2 for 4 at the plate as well for Charlevoix.

In the nightcap, Hunter Cox pitched well to give the Rayders a chance and Colin Smith came in in relief to keep them alive, but Charlevoix mustered just three hits offensively in a 4-2 loss.

Putman, Alex Kleiber and Cox each hit a single, while Cox struck out three and took the loss for Charlevoix as St. Francis took a 1-0 lead in the second inning and added two more runs in the fourth to pull away.

The Rayders (13-14-1, 5-9 LMC) will look to regroup against Pellston on Friday for their next outing.

Marathoner Jacob Bradosky takes first-place in the Marine Corps Marathon in 2010.

World-class runner to participate in Top of Michigan marathon

CHARLEVOIX—The upcoming Top of Michigan Community Marathon (Charlevoix to Harbor Springs) which will be held on Saturday, May 28 has drawn some experienced marathoners.

One participant has been training with lofty goals for several years.

Jacob Bradosky, who hails from Ohio, made national running news in 2010 when he won the Marine Corps Marathon with a time of 2:23:30.

Bradosky, who at the time was serving in the Air Force, always found time in his schedule to train for distance running.

Bradosky now serves at Hill Air Force base in Utah. He is still working to improve his time, but finds marathon training a bit more challenging given his time commitment to work and school.

Add to that his responsibilities as a husband and father of a nine-month-old daughter, and he reported, "I find my mileage lower than it was in the past, but training is still going well over all."

"I am excited to participate in this inaugural Community Marathon. I was drawn to Northern Michigan by the course, which is in a very scenic area along the shores of Little Traverse Bay. The fact that it is a fairly flat course, and will primarily be run off-road on the Little Traverse Wheelway, were definitely factors in my decision to run. I'm planning on running fast on May 28."

Bradosky was asked to speak to marathoners at the pre-race dinner on Friday, May 27, at Lake Charlevoix Brewing in Charlevoix.

His stories of training and competing will be encouraging to runners old and young (the public is invited to attend the dinner).

"I have been running ever since elementary school, but I began to compete in middle school. I like the mental and physical challenge of marathons. I'm driven to test how far I am able to push my mind and my body."

Stafford's Hospitality is the title sponsor for this year's Community Marathon, which will benefit Top of Michigan Trails Council, as well as the Petoskey High School Track and Cross-Country teams. Jim Harrington is the race director. For more information, visit www.trailscouncil.org.

Winning smiles

The Charlevoix middle school track team, coached by Todd Klinger and Karrie Gaffney, ended their season on May 13 at the LMC Conference meet, with the girls winning the conference championship and the boys coming in second. "There were 54 middle school students involved in track this season and their enthusiasm and energy were amazing," Gaffney said. "The future for track and field continues to look bright."

Charlevoix falls to Kalkaska in doubleheader action

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

KALKASKA — The Rayders had a tough night on the road against LMC title contender and host Kalkaska on Thursday, as the Blazers jumped out to big leads in both games to take a 11-1, 13-1 sweep.

Skylar Herriman took the loss in both games, striking out three and walking four on the night while adding a triple at the plate in Game 2.

Hannah Solomon, Nichole Hart and McKenna Ebert each chipped in a single for the Rayders, who finished with two hits in each game and four total on the night.

"Kalkaska just pounds the ball all over the place when they get up to bat," Charlevoix coach Tom Mielke said. "They're a great hitting team and you can't get pitches by them without them getting the bat on the ball. "We're getting better and making less errors, but we still showed our youth at points tonight. We just need to keep improving."

up finish (8:19.57).

"Looking at how our times compare with other regions, we believe both our relays have a shot to medal at the state final," Charlevoix coach Doug Drenth said. "They ran well on Friday and we believe both can go even faster with a little more fine-tuning."

On the girls side, Michelle Bollini finished ninth in a stacked 1,600 run race but qualified for the state final with an additional qualifying time of 5:28.37 as the Rayder girls team's only individual qualifier.

Charlevoix's girls squad will be sending its 1,600 relay team of Bollini, Isabel Hess, Kenzy O'Leary and Izzy Witthoef that finished fifth (4:18.04) and its 3,200 relay team of Bollini, Katie Mousseau, O'Leary and Lukla Witthoef that took fifth (10:21.70) as well, as both ran under additional qualifying standards.

It was a bittersweet day for the Rayders, who saw several more individuals just miss out on qualifying for the final by less than a second in some cases.

"It's always tough, but when you look at our times our kids had their best performances of the year across the board," Drenth said. "They gave it their best shot and we couldn't ask any more of them."

On the boys side, Buday took third (2:03.64) and Pischner fourth (2:03.94) in the 800 run, just a second shy of the runner-up spot that would have made the final.

Pischner also took sixth in the 1,600 run (4:38.31), and Ryan Erskine took sixth in the 3,200 run (10:47.78), while Oliver DeYoung came in fourth in the 300 hurdles (43.14) and fifth in the 110 hurdles (17.26).

Justin Bond took third in the discus (123-2) for Charlevoix, and Malcom Williams took sixth (19-5.5) and Nick Bradley seventh (18-11) in the long jump.

The Rayders' team of Danny Nesburg, Hudson Elowsky, McLean and Williams also took third in the 400 relay (48.16).

On the girls side, Izzy Witthoef took fifth in the 200 dash (27.80) and sixth in the 100 dash (13.66), while O'Leary came in fifth in the 800 run (2:29.18), all close to the additional qualifying mark for the state final.

Charlevoix's 800 relay team of Bree Farmer, Hess, O'Leary and Izzy Witthoef also took fourth (1:54.22).

GOLF

On top of crowning the team champion, the LMC also honored the top golfers throughout the season in conference play.

Logan Smith of East Jordan was the top performer, shooting a 76.8 average to beat runner-up Nick Brewer of Kalkaska by roughly three strokes.

Matt Good of Charlevoix was fourth with an 80.8 average, and Griffin Powers of Boyne City (84.5) and Cole Ketterer of Harbor Springs (85.8) also made the top seven honorees.

Next up is districts for Charlevoix on Wednesday. The Rayders will host Boyne City, Elk Rapids, Grayling, Kalkaska and others in a Division 3 district at Charlevoix Country Club beginning at 9 a.m.

The top six teams and top six individuals not on qualifying teams will advance to regionals next Wednesday and Thursday, where they will play for a shot at the state finals on June 10-11.

Jim Glynn Classic

CHARLEVOIX — There's nothing like tough competition to prepare teams for postseason challenges to come.

The Charlevoix boys golf team got that competition in spades on Friday at the annual Jim Glynn Classic hosted by the Rayders and Charlevoix Country Club, facing off against squads from Class A Traverse City West and Class B Cheboygan, as well as U.P. golf power St. Ignace.

The Saints shot a 344 to bring home the team title, led by medalist Carter Talbair, who shot a 76, with T.C. West shooting a 352 to take second and Cheboygan a 354 to finish third.

Host Charlevoix shot a 355 to finish fourth, just a stroke out of third and three strokes out of second, though also just a stroke ahead of fifth-place Leland in a tight team race.

Charlevoix's Matt Good shot an 85 to finish tied for sixth overall, and Tanner Drost carded an 88 as well.

Montana Thompson shot an 89 for the Rayders, Tyler Fuchs a 93, Colin Turkeson a 96 and Camden Muelick a 97.

Charlevoix 8-17
TC Christian 0-0

TRAVERSE CITY — Charlevoix cranked out 23 hits and gave up no runs in a dominant road sweep of Traverse City Christian on Friday, 8-0 and 17-0.

Austin Putman led the way at the plate for the Rayders, going 6 for 9 with two triples and eight RBIs on the night, and Christian Matye went 4 for 7 with a double and two RBIs as well.

Mason Louiselle and Jake Seger each finished with two hits and two RBIs for Charlevoix, Jordan Adkins added two hits and three RBIs, and Garret Seese hit a two-run single as well.

On the mound, Matye struck out 13 and threw a complete game one-hitter to win Game 1 for the Rayders, while Putman struck out five and gave up one hit in four innings in Game 2 to earn the victory.

Charlevoix 4-9
Kalkaska 8-10

KALKASKA — The Rayders had leads in both games but couldn't finish off the host Blazers, currently in second in the Lake Michigan Conference, in 8-4 and 10-9 defeats on Thursday.

In Game 1, Kalkaska scored six runs in the bottom of the fourth inning to overcome a 4-2 Charlevoix lead.

Jake Cox led the Rayders at the plate with a two-run double, and Hunter Cox and Jake Seger each chipped in a RBI hit, with Cox's coming on a double. Colin Smith took the loss for Charlevoix, while Austin Putman striking out two in an inning of relief.

In Game 2, Charlevoix scored four runs in the top of the sixth to take a 9-6 lead, but gave up four in the bottom of the inning as Kalkaska completed a walk-off win.

Christian Matye went 3 for 4 with a RBI to lead Charlevoix, and Putman chipped in two hits, including a bases-clearing double, and five RBIs.

Smith and Alex Kleiber each added two hits, and Kleiber, Jake Cox and Garrett Seese each chipped in a RBI hit for the Rayders.

Smith took the loss in relief of Putman, who himself relieved Seese early in the game and pitched four innings.

BE A WISE SHOPPER
It's always wise to remember that if an offer sounds too good to be true, it probably is. If you are offered merchandise at an unbelievably low price, check it out thoroughly. A call to the Better Business Bureau (serving Eastern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula) will tell you whether other consumers have had problems with the firm that has offered the merchandise. (248)223-9400. But call the Bureau BEFORE you make a purchase. You'll be glad you did.

'Mr. Petunia'

Dale Boss remembered for his 'Charlevoix passion'

LONNIE ALLEN

(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

Charlevoix has lost one of its most beloved citizens. Dale Boss, 84, who passed away recently, is being remembered as a local icon.

Community leader, builder, business owner, mentor, friend and father, Boss wore many hats. But he is most remembered as "Mr. Petunia."

A favorite family story involves Boss talking his way out of a speeding ticket by pulling out his "Mr. Petunia" card and telling the downstate officer about Charlevoix's miles of flowers. By the time Boss finished his story, the officer was laughing. He gave Boss a warning, and a promise to visit Charlevoix, said Diane Preiss, Boss' daughter.

It was in 1982 that Boss saw his dream of planting flowers along the 5-mile stretch of U.S. 31 in Charlevoix come to fruition. As a result of his efforts, Charlevoix is well known for its petunias.

Boss also volunteered his time to water the flowers for the past 34 years. His watering truck, which was hand-painted by his wife, Marilyn, featured lettering and colorful petunias along the sides and back. Charlevoix residents Steve and Sandra Bennett first got to know Boss when he would fill his watering truck near their former business, the MacDougall House Bed and Breakfast on Petoskey Avenue.

"Dale always had time to talk to us and our guests," Steve Bennett said. "He was so cordial and nice to people. He was a great guy and he loved to tell people about the petunias."

Bennett and his wife also are on the board of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful — the organization responsible for the petunias.

Economic development study suggests Charlevoix must change

LONNIE ALLEN

(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Change must come to Charlevoix if the city is to see a resurgence of economic vitality and retention of young professionals, according to a presentation by Howard Kohn, president of the Chesapeake Group to members of the city council last week.

"We are losing the younger end of the population and we have to do everything we can to make Charlevoix a place for them to want to live here, work here and open businesses here," Kohn said.

Councilmember Shirley Gibson asked what was wrong with young adults who move away and return when they are older to settle down in Charlevoix.

"Charlevoix is unique with that," Gibson said. "I was one of those left who after high school and came back and opened a business in my 30s. I did pretty well with that route."

Kohn answered Gibson that older adults in Charlevoix are not the future.

"We can't afford to lose them — 20-something men and women," Kohn said. "We've got to bring more of them in because none of us are the future of Charlevoix."

Some of his suggestions were changing the zoning ordinances that would make property owners lose money if they did not rent empty spaces, change other zoning that might allow larger, taller buildings in the downtown and encourage business growth.

"The current system is designed for property owners to leave these buildings vacant," Kohn said. "Think about what you need to tweak in the codes to stimulate investment in that vacant space. How can we get building owners to give that space to somebody at a very reduced rate? You want to have building owners look at that long-term investment."

Kohn was in town on May 26, where he hosted three presentations throughout the day. The morning began at the Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company, where Kohn and members of the Downtown Development Authority board, The Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau and Charlevoix Area Chamber CHARLEVOIX — Northern Michigan, along with the rest of the country, commemorated Memorial Day on Monday, May 30. The day is set aside to honor those who gave their lives for the freedom that Americans enjoy today.

In Charlevoix, the day began with a graveside ceremony at Brookside Cemetery, where Charlevoix color guard of the American Legion Leslie T. Sharpton Post No. 226 and Charlevoix VFW Post 1153 fired a gun salute.

Couple starts sunglasses program for babies at hospital

JORDAN SPENCE

(231) 439-9397 - jspence@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Julie Voci doesn't think there are many things cuter than babies in sunglasses.

A special program that involves sunglasses was started by Julie and her husband, Dr. Steven Voci, an optometrist in Charlevoix and East Jordan. The program started this March and gives babies born at Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital a pair of free sunglasses and a free eye exam for the baby (at Voci's practice).

The program is something

Julie wanted to start for a long time as a way to give back to the community.

"It's something I've been playing at for many years," she said. "I had the thought eight or 10 years ago."

At this time the couple had a bunch of friends and relatives ask about sunglasses for babies.

"I thought well it would be fun to donate them to the hospital," she said.

The process took awhile in order for them to find affordable and good quality glasses.

The hospital is now stocked with four different colors of glasses; black, blue, pink and red. Parents also are given a certificate with educational and contact information for eye exams on the back.

"A lot of eye damage is done early. (Glasses) protects their eyes," she said. "When we do have sun, it's intense up here. Winter sun too, with that glare off the snow. (The program) seemed like a good fit and helps kids, it protects them."

Dr. Voci said the reason they provide the free eye exam for infants is a preventative measure. The first eye exam takes place between six months and a year, he said. From there, if their

Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix annual Vandenberg Essay Awards

SUBMITTED BY DIPLO GIBNETT

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club recently hosted its annual essay award ceremony recognizing fifth-graders for writing about a nonprofit of their choosing.

The recipients of the awards hailed from Charlevoix Elementary School and St. Mary School in Charlevoix. Students shared their personal insights on the value of nonprofits and the winners presented their monetary awards to the organization they wrote about.

This contest just completed its eighth year of fruition after the inspiration of the Eddie Contest, which has its roots in the Boyne City Kiwanis Club. The mission of Kiwanis is to help one child, one community at a time and this contest reflects that philosophy.

The winners of this year's contest are: John Paul Culver from Charlevoix Elementary School who wrote his essay about the World Toilet Organization. This program provides funds needed to build public and private bathroom facilities in countries that financially are not able to.

Aiden Parish, a fifth-grader from St. Mary School wrote his essay about the Charlevoix Area Humane Society. He highlighted many of the resources the society offers from lost animals to fostering neglected ones.

Kately Pawlak, also from St. Mary School wrote her essay about the Humane Society. Kately focused on the many volunteer opportunities to help as well as donating toys for the animals to play with. As an added surprise the St. Mary School Builders Club represented by River Pease, donated chew toys the club had previously made and presented them to Carole Brisson, a long time Humane Society volunteer.

Grand Prize was awarded to Jillian Romano for her very touching and personal essay on Pancreatic Cancer and the need to give to Pan/Can.

A synopsis of the winning essays follows:

"World Toilets" by John Paul Culver

Over 64 percent of the world's population is without proper sanitation. World Toilets provides clean and safe toilets to kids around the world. We use them every day at home, at school, work, restaurants and shopping malls yet we seldom talk about them. The silence around the issue of sanitation has deadly consequences. School drop outs and diseases are direct consequences of poor sanitation killing more children every year than AIDS and malaria and measles combined.

John Paul Culver received a $100 donation and presented it to Kiwanis member Terry Edger who has been directly involved in mission work and will forward it on this organization.

"Charlevoix Area Humane Society" by Aiden Parish

The Humane Society does a lot of hard work to keep all of the animals in our area safe and healthy. They also provide needed veterinarian care along with warm shelter, food, water and a loving environment. They also provide lots of resources for new pet owners who want to adopt a pet and for people having a hard time taking care of their pets.

Aiden Parish received a $100 donation and presented it to Carole Brisson from the Charlevoix Area Humane Society.

"Humane Society" by Kately Pawlak

If you ever go to the Humane Society you can volunteer to help take care of the animals. However, you do have to be eighteen-years-old or older to volunteer. You can bring safe toys you made at home for the cats and dogs. In Builder Club we're trying make little chewable toys for them. I know every time I see a happy animal I'm probably really seeing an animal that once came from the Humane Society.

Kately Pawlak received a $100 donation and presented it to Carole Brisson from the Charlevoix Area Humane Society

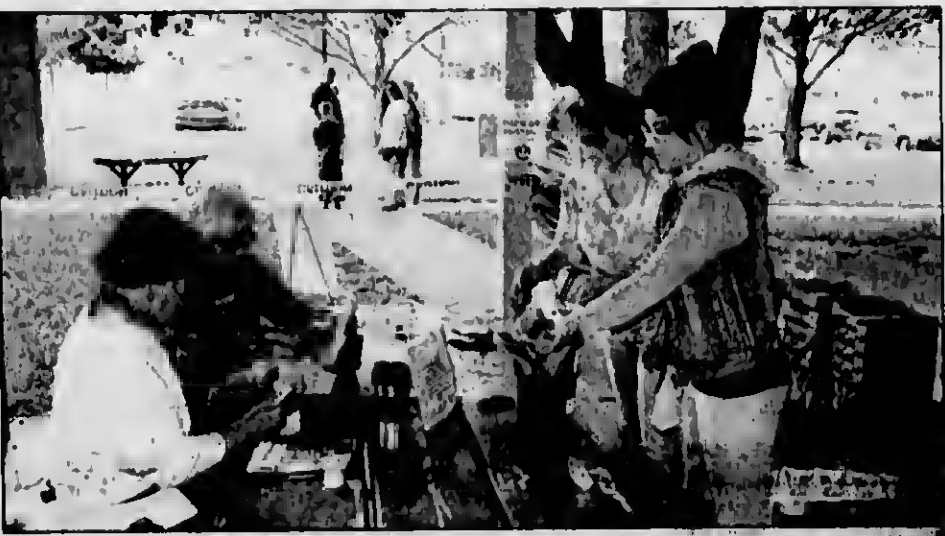

Grand Prize Winner was

"Pan/Can Organization" written by Jillian Romano

Pan/Can is a nonprofit organization that helps and treats the cancer called Pancreatic Cancer. My grandpa died because of this before I grew up. He was one of the first people to hold me when I was born. He was an active member of the Sanibel-Captiva Kiwanis Club and organized many events to help others. They still do his spaghetti dinner every year on the island. Even though my grandpa didn't make it there are others in this world that can. If I get this award my grandpa would be so proud of me. It will encourage me and hopefully encourage others to get out of their comfort zone and give back to the community.

Jillian Romano received $200 and presented it to Kiwanis member Sue Goss whose own brother died from the same disease. She will forward it on to Pan/Can on Jillian's behalf.

This contest was possible due to sponsors: Charlevoix State Bank, Round Lake Bookstore, First Congregational UCC, Roger and Cynthia Postmus, David and Cynthia Garland, Carolyn Navarre, Chemical Bank, Bob and Nancy Rajewski, Emmaline Weldman and the Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix.

Annual plant sale a huge success

CHARLEVOIX — Plant sales are popular fundraisers every spring, and the one at Ferry Beach is always a favorite among Charlevoix residents.

Once again a long line of garden lovers awaited the opening of the 2016 Charlevoix Area Garden Club annual spring plant sale, on the morning of May 28.

Garden club members dug nearly 85 percent of the plants from their gardens or from people who requested garden club members take their plants out of their gardens.

The club's successful plant sale helped raise money for its scholarships, maintaining gardens throughout the community and other ventures the club supports throughout Charlevoix.

The sale had a wide variety of plants — more than 1,000 — quickly purchased by patrons once it opened at 8:30 a.m. for business.

"As in past years, we're offering a large variety of perennials, herbs and native plants," said club member Mary Watson-Chavez.

More than 200 patrons purchased plants between 8:30 a.m. and noon, Watson-Chavez said.

"About 300 plants that were leftover were donated by club members to the Bergmann Center Resale Shop," Watson-Chavez said.

Rajewski receives Lifetime Membership Status

At the annual Kiwanis meeting on May 17, the club surprised and honored Bob Rajewski with a Lifetime Membership status. Individuals receiving this honor perpetuate the objectives of Kiwanis International. Bob has been exemplary in his actions and duties since he joined the club on Dec. 4, 1979.

Rajewski was always available to install 9-1-1 signs well before there was GPS. He has assisted with Boy Scout Troop

No. 11 his entire time with the club. Eager to help with the club's major fund raiser, the maple syrup project, Rajewski would purchase supplies, tap trees and bottle the syrup.

The signature Kiwanis Booth continues to be present at Venetian, Apple Fest and Trout Tournament because of his endeavors. He has served as club president, Lt. Governor (twice) and as club secretary. He was the recipient of the Zellar Award, the Hixon Fellowship and the Distinguished Kiwanian Award. He can proudly add Lifetime Membership to his accomplishments. Rajewski was joined by fellow Kiwanis members, his wife and family when he received this honor.

Awareness key to suicide prevention

Suicide, a word that when uttered is scary for some, sad for others and for many a perceived "way out" of their current life situation.

Suicide is the third leading cause of death among persons aged 10-14, the second among persons aged 15-34 years, according to the Center for Disease Control.

There's a myth in our culture that talking about suicide will somehow cause any individual to attempt or follow through with it. When in fact, bringing it out in the open, talking about what triggers thoughts of suicide, and what can be done to prevent it actually reduces occurrences, according to Office of Suicide Prevention, NV.gov.

Suicide is an ongoing problem in our community; each year we see adults and adolescents end their life in this way. As a community, we should encourage and promote prevention through awareness, especially within our local schools.

The Char-Em Suicide Prevention Workgroup consists of community professionals and volunteers who are working together to prevent suicide from occurring in Northern Michigan.

The Yellow Ribbon Program (youth suicide prevention) has been supported and headed by this work group. It consists of bringing in a local speaker to discuss this sensitive topic through a discussion of risk factors and how to access assistance from friends, family and community providers.

This program normalizes that, "It's OK to Ask 4 Help!" and provides the National Suicide Prevention Hotline (800) 273-TALK or text line 741 741 for support 24-hours a day.

If you know someone who may be thinking of suicide; take it seriously and do not minimize it, stay with the person, listen to them and get them to someone or call someone who can help.

Warning signs of potential risk of suicide include: feelings of depression, substance use, giving away of possessions, changes in sleep patterns, withdrawal from friends or family, dropping out of activities, personality changes or mood swings, lack of interest in the future, being a victim of physical or sexual abuse, family violence, a recent suicide or death of a friend or relative and previous suicide attempts.

As a community, we can help support continued efforts that foster suicide prevention education and awareness so in the future acts may be prevented. Recently community members sponsored the second annual Breanna's Ride, an ATV/off road ride and dinner which occurred in honor of Breanna McPhail.

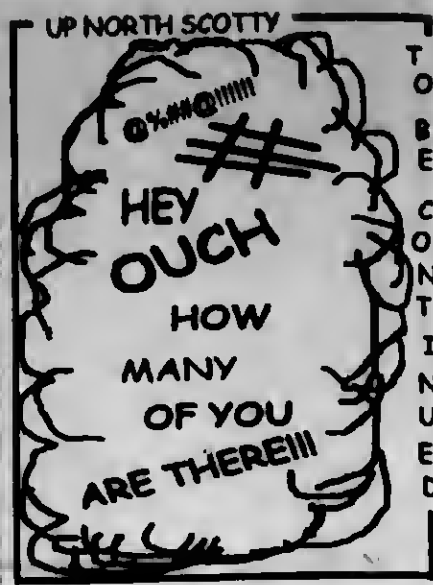

This fundraiser gathered proceeds to be donated to Kiersten's Ride. Kiersten's Ride is held the third Saturday in August in memory of Kiersten Clavier. For this event, individuals receive sponsorship through donation to participate in a horseback trail ride, an ATV ride or a walk.

All dollars raised last year sponsored education and awareness programs in our community such as the Yellow Ribbon Campaign and a First Response Training.

Please join us in helping to prevent further acts from occurring in our Northern Michigan Community.

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

The Bank of Charlevoix was established in 1882 by the W. P. Brown family, said to be the first bank in Charlevoix County. It put down roots on the corner of Park Avenue and Bridge Street, now the site of Berkshire Hathaway Real Estate. Three years later, the Browns built this brick building a block south on the corner of Bridge and Clinton streets, and moved there. It is known today as the Murdick's Fudge building. The financial institution never did attain a high reputation because rumors of shaky business dealings dogged it almost from day one. The Charlevoix Sentinel newspaper claimed the bank was built on "fictitious capital," and that "its doom was sealed," although the full story was never revealed. Collapse arrived in 1893, "hurting several Charlevoix people severely." Terrible family troubles dogged the Browns and their sons from then on, including time in prison for one of them on the charge of forgery. A large variety of businesses have passed in and out of the building ever since.

CHARLEVOIX — For nearly a decade the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite was home to Charlevoix. The many Coast Guard veterans who were assigned to her came together over the Memorial Day weekend to reconnect with old friends, share stories and just recall the camaraderie that comes from working together as a unit serving their country.

"We come to Charlevoix for our reunion because this was our home-port for a number of years," said retired crew member and 2016 reunion organizer Monty Sterns, of San Diego. "There is a lot of history among this group of individuals who served aboard the Mesquite."

The vessel regularly tended to the buoys that help watercraft avoid navigational hazards. In early December 1989, the Mesquite was working buoys on Lake Superior when ran aground off Keweenaw Point in the same shallow waters marked by a seasonal buoy that the crew had just retrieved. The ship was declared unsalvageable and was deliberately sunk in about 120 feet of water off the coast of the Keweenaw Peninsula.

But former Mesquite crew did not return to Charlevoix to remember that faithful day. They returned from all over the country to relax, enjoy a meal and recall their service together.

vice together.

"We have guys who served on the Mesquite in here early years and ones who were with her before her last days in service," Sterns said. "We just want to stay connected and this reunion is a way we can reach out to those who once served on the Mesquite."

This is the second reunion that was hosted in Charlevoix the first was in 2014. Sterns said those who served aboard the Mesquite plan to meet every other year.

"Our next one will be in 2018," Sterns said. "We hope that these reunions will bring more of the Mesquite crew together to share the history and experience aboard the vessel."

Kurt Kooyer (left) shakes hands with Sen. Wayne Schmidt, R-Traverse City, after Schmidt presented him with a resolution from the governor for the 70 years of Memorial Day service the Kooyer family has participated in.

Community's Memorial Day tradition honored

NORWOOD — For 70 years the Kooyer family has participated in Memorial Day events at the Norwood cemetery.

On May 29, the Norwood Area Historical Society invited community members and those with the Ellsworth American Legion Jansen-Richardson Post No. 488 to honor Kurt Kooyer for his continued efforts to lead the Memorial Day ceremony that his grandfather John Kooyer began so many years ago.

Nearly 40 people crowded into the one-room schoolhouse to hear Kooyer's presentation about his family's history from the Ellsworth/Norwood area.

Kooyer has been the Norwood Memorial Day service master of ceremonies since 1991, along with attending other services throughout the area.

"Each year, we have a very ambitious Memorial Day service schedule," Kooyer said referring to the multiple events he attends. "We start in Norwood and by the time we hit our last service it is mid-afternoon. It is a collective effort between my family and the American Legion Post involved."

State Sen. Wayne Schmidt, R-Traverse City, was at the event to recognize Kooyer his family's Memorial Day contributions to the area with a resolution from the governor.

"We want the Kooyer family to know we appreciate their service to our veterans and this community," Schmidt said.

OBITUARIES

Dale E. Boss

Dale E. Boss, Charlevoix's "Mr. Petunia," peacefully went to meet his Lord and Savior on May 28, 2016, surrounded by his family.

Dale was born June 8, 1931, in Charlevoix. He was the eldest son of John E. Boss and Lola (Chew) Boss. Dale was a fourth generation lifelong resident of Charlevoix and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1949. In his yearbook he was voted, "boy most likely to succeed." Dale's life reflected the importance of family, faith, hard work, and community involvement. Dale began working at the age of 12 as a door-to-door milkman for Maxbauer Dairy in Charlevoix.

At the age of 14 he met his childhood sweetheart, Marilyn Ikens. Dale knew that she was "the one." He married Marilyn on June 23, 1951, after Marilyn graduated from high school. They convinced their parents that they were old enough to get married by building their first home together at North Point in Charlevoix. The couple won the Mechanix Illustrated "Golden Hammer Award" for the construction of their house. The home was built in its entirety by Dale and Marilyn and was pictured in the pages of the national magazine. Dale tore down an old barn and recycled the lumber to build the house. Dale and Marilyn began raising their family in this first home, until the seven children outgrew the space. The couple worked on the construction of their current home on the same block at North Point, and moved the family into "The Chalet" in 1964. Throughout his life, Dale loved building things with his own hands and observing other building projects. Dale worked as a full-time milkman and also owned and operated the Boss Insurance Agency.

In later years, Dale bought the Maxbauer Dairy and opened a new business, The Village Milkhouse, which was known for its huge home-made ice cream sundaes. Dale was always interested in civic affairs and the continuing improvement of Charlevoix. At the age of 21, he began several years of service as trustee on the Charlevoix Township Board. During the same year he became the youngest juror to serve on a murder trial in Charlevoix. In 1956, at the age of 24, Dale convened the first meeting to establish the Mount McSaubia ski area. He also served on the original board of directors. All of his children and thousands of Charlevoix children through the years learned to ski at Mount McSaubia. The Boss family has managed the ski hill for the past 40 years. Dale ran the concession stand for 20 years. On a daily basis, he gave food to hungry children who didn't have money to make a purchase. In recent years, Dale would keep the fire going in the fireplace of the lodge.

Dale served several years as a deacon of the Community Reformed Church. He was chairman of the building committee when the current church was built in 1961. Dale had a "gift for gab" and negotiated with 18 different property owners to purchase the 32 lots on which the church currently stands. In the early '60s, Dale developed the concept of a "Sunday School" bus. He talked to many families in Charlevoix to see if they were interested in sending their children to Sunday School. For many years, Dale drove the bus, picking up children throughout the city and countryside, and dropping them home after Sunday School. Dale served as treasurer of the Charlevoix School Board from 1962-1970. He was instrumental in building the Charlevoix Elementary School, negotiating the sale of property from the owners where the school was built. He was also proud of his role in the purchase of the first and second luxury "Rayder" buses. Dale also drove a school bus for several years. He was also instrumental in the building of the former town library, which now is home to The Charlevoix Circle of Arts. Dale was an active member of the Charlevoix Historical Society. In 1978, Dale negotiated the gift of the Harsha House from Anne Harsha to the community. He was personally involved in most of the restoration and expansion of the Harsha House, which became the new home of the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Throughout his life, Dale was a tireless ambassador for Charlevoix. Wherever he found himself in his travels, he would find an opportunity to engage complete strangers in conversation, and extoll the virtues of the community which he so dearly loved. In 1980, Dale was chairman of Michigan Week, and was responsible for arranging the docking of the Steamship Medusa Challenger in the downtown Charlevoix Harbor. They raised $20,000 for new band uniforms for the Charlevoix High School Band by offering tours through the boat. This was the largest ship to ever dock in downtown Charlevoix.

Dale spent his life thinking "outside the box." In 1982, Dale pioneered Operation Petunia. His idea of planting 5 miles of petunias entering and exiting Charlevoix met with mixed reactions. People either thought the concept was crazy, or was the greatest idea ever! The idea came to fruition as Dale enlisted the help of his friend, Bruce MacArthur, and they organized all the logistics of the operation. As a result, Charlevoix is well known for its beautiful flowers. For years Dale and Marilyn oversaw the color scheme, preparation, and planting of the flowers. Dale also volunteered his time to arise at 4 a.m. to water the flowers for the past 34 years. The watering truck featured lettering and colorful petunias along the sides and back, hand painted by Marilyn. Dale, together with his two sons, built and maintained two floats for the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. To promote Charlevoix, Dale drove the petunia truck, towing one of the floats behind, to parades around the state. The Venetian Queen and her court rode on the floats for many years. Dale brought home many trophies and awards for the beautiful entries. In 1986, Dale and Marilyn shared the honor of being Grand Marshall of the Charlevoix Venetian Parade. The following year, the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce made Dale the first recipient of their annual Man of the Year award. In 2014, Dale was presented with the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club Distinguished Service and Appreciation Award. This award was a total surprise and all of his children were able to be in attendance for the event. Dale also received an award from the Governor of the State of Michigan for dedicated service to the community. Dale served many years on the Board of Directors of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful. He loved the Charlevoix petunias so much that he had cards made up with his name and the title, "Mr. Petunia."

A favorite family story involves Dale talking his way out of a speeding ticket by pulling out his "Mr. Petunia" card and telling the downstate officer about Charlevoix's miles of flowers. By the time Dale finished his story the officer was laughing. He gave Dale a warning, and a promise to visit Dale's beloved hometown. Dale was an avid car enthusiast and loved classic cars. He remembered his children's birthdays by the car that he was driving at the time of their birth. It was no surprise to his children that his first word as a baby was "car." Dale loved to go to the Detroit Auto Show, and took his grandsons multiple years to check out the new cars. Dale and Marilyn were often seen driving around town in a 1919 Model T Ford, or their classic 1973 red Cadillac convertible. Dale loved to travel and drove the family on many trips around the country. With seven children, some of the trips were taken using two vehicles. When Dale sold the businesses, he purchased a motor home and took the family on a month tour of the west coast.

Dale and Marilyn loved children and Christmas. Each December they would turn their house and yard into "Santa's Workshop." Marilyn used her artistic talents to cut out and paint countless elves, storybook, Bible, and movie characters. Dale would mount them in the yard and put up the display lights. They set up and decorated more than 30 Christmas trees, along with displays of animated toys and stuffed animals. Hundreds of children stopped by each year to visit Mr. and Mrs. Claus on Christmas Eve. Dale also loved to invite families into the house to see the decorations inside the house. After Dale and Marilyn found it too difficult to manage, the Christmas display continued to be set up by their sons. Dale loved his family, his Lord, and his community. He quietly and consistently supported people in need with gifts of food, his talents, or money. Dale often said that he loved putting smiles on people's faces. One of Dale's biggest joys was sitting on the front porch with his children and grandchildren at the end of the day discussing local news, current events, and politics. His children and grandchildren will never forget his frequent offers of pop and ice cream treats as they sat on the front porch. Dale loved to tell stories about people and places in Charlevoix — his long term memory of the community was amazing. As a teenager and young man, he observed and asked questions of his elders, such as Earl Young, the local banker, city workers, etc. As a result, Dale often received phone calls from residents requesting information on everything from the history of buildings to infrastructure of the city.

Dale was a wonderful father and grandfather. He built an in-ground swimming pool for his children because he wanted them to learn how to swim and have fun in the water, even though he never learned to swim himself. When his children were in grade school, Dale would help make birthday parties special. He would bring home a huge pile of sand, and bury pennies he obtained from the bank. The children's classmates could dig and keep all the pennies that they found, which made for a lot of fun.

Dale loved to laugh, and was a very positive person. When his children inevitably locked their keys in the car while in a neighboring town, he would laugh and come rescue them. Sunday afternoons meant going on drives with the family and stopping along the way to buy his children pop and candy. When the grandchildren came along, he bought a miniature motorized firetruck, which they could drive around the yard. As they got older, Dale encouraged his grandchildren to drive anything with a motor all around the property. Dale also maintained a healthy supply of "building materials," which he willingly gave so that his grandchildren could be creative. Four of the grandchildren became engineers as a result of the "inventions" they created at Dale and Marilyn's house.

Dale is survived by his two sons, Bo (Debbie) Boss of Charlevoix; Jim (Linda) Boss of Charlevoix; four daughters, Kathy Van Zant of Indian River, Sharon (Chuck) Elzinga of Albion, Diane (Dennis) Priess of Charlevoix, and Pam (Lane) Beatty of Naples, Fla.; 17 grandchildren; Beau and Sherry Boss, Connor and Ryder Boss, Carrie Purvis, Chris Castelein, Betsey Dunkel, Jordan and Adam Elzinga, Cody and Logan Priess, Chase and Tara Beatty, David and Ryan Falting, Jennifer Kihara, Heather Marvin; 20 great-grandchildren; brother, Dean (Beulah) Boss of Spring Arbor; sister, Marlene Terry of Lubbock, Texas; sister-in-law, Joyce Boss of Charlevoix; brother-in-law, Glen Ikens of Brighton; sister-in-law, Sally (Tom) Paquin, of St. Ignace and many beloved nieces, nephews, and cousins.

Dale was preceded in death by his parents, John and Lola Boss; beloved wife, Marilyn Boss; brother, Dwight Boss; daughter, Kay Howard; infant son, Thomas Boss; brother-in-law, Rev. James Terry; sister-in-law, Pauline Boss; sister-in-law, Kay Empey; brother-in-law, Norm Empey; and sister-in-law, Betty Ikens.

The Boss family is so grateful for the wonderful medical care and support that Dale received from Dr. Janet Talmo and her nurse Lisa from Physicians Clinic of Charlevoix. Dale was able to remain at home, which was his request, due to the loving in-home care provided by Anne Marie Kauzlarich of Amazing Care, and his family.

At Dale's request, there will be no public funeral service or viewing. Because the community of Charlevoix was such an important priority in Dale's life, his family would like to invite anyone wishing to honor his life to a community celebration. The time and location of the celebration will be announced later.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to "Keep Charlevoix Beautiful" (to continue the petunia legacy) at P.O. Box 1, Charlevoix, MI 49720; Community Reformed Church Breakfast Club (free breakfasts which Dale so enjoyed) 100 Oak St., Charlevoix, MI 49720; or the Charlevoix Historical Society, 103 State St., Charlevoix, MI 49720. BUSINESS

Argonne Supper Club moves to Charlevoix Country Club

ANDREW KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — Memorial Weekend marked the end of an era for the location of a landmark restaurant in Charlevoix. The Argonne Supper Club reopened its doors at the Charlevoix Country Club on June 2.

"It all fell into place in the last few weeks," said Steve Ager, owner of the Argonne Supper Club, Charlevoix's landmark restaurant on the Boyne City Road.

"I think it will be a sweet deal for both parties," he said of the merger between his family business and the Charlevoix Country Club.

Alana Haley, marketing manager at the Charlevoix Country Club weighed in by sending a letter of announcement to Country Club members, calling it "an exciting partnership." Hopefully the merger will benefit both parties and that the Argonne's presence will help to increase the dinner business at the Club. The Argonne bringing with it a following of loyal customers.

"Another reason that we are excited to bring the Argonne to Charlevoix Country Club," Haley said, "is that it exposes many people to the Club (with all its amenities including golf, fitness center and pool) who may never have been."

The Argonne will be bringing their food service and management to provide dinner service in the Clubhouse dining room, beginning June 2, every Tuesday through Sunday from 5-9 p.m., seasonally from May to Jan. 1. All of the Argonne's favorites will be on the menu, with an expanded menu to be offered in the near future. The Country Club will continue to operate the Sports Grill, which is open 9 a.m.-9 p.m. daily. Memorial Day weekend was the last time diners could order up shrimp dinners to be served in the old but comfortable, familiar setting just outside of town. The Argonne is Charlevoix's oldest owned and operated restaurant; the Ager family, starting with the late Ted and Clara Ager, have been hosting dinners and events at this location for more than 50 years.

Ager's sister, Cindy (Ager) Whitley, was filled with mixed emotions as plans moved forward and the merger became a reality. "It's very nostalgic," she said. "We grew up here and even lived upstairs in this building at one time."

The history of the restaurant dates back to 1925, when it was known as the Thurman Country Club. In 1948, Mr. and Mrs. Matzinger, started their own version of the restaurant business by specializing in shrimp dinners. The couple, who had lost a loved one a battle that took place in the Argonne Forest in France during World War I, chose to name the restaurant in his honor.

The Argonne name lived on, operated by the Matzinger's, until 1961, when Ted and Clara Ager, along with Clara's sister Anne and her brother-in-law, Herb Moore, bought the business from them.

The Ager's retained the name and The Argonne under their ownership opened for business on New Year's Eve that year. The Ager's bought out the Moore's in 1969, and the restaurant has remained exclusively in the Ager family since then. When Ted died in 1986, Steve and Cindy took the reins. Clara continued to be a familiar hostess until she passed away in 2010.

The red and yellow shrimp sauce and coleslaw recipes that are still famous today were "Inherited" from the Matzinger's. The Ager's added their own trademark, a bread recipe from their German family history, passed on from Grandma Margaret Speigl, Clara's mother. Today, diners enjoy shrimp imported from the Gulf of Mexico and all the sides that have made the Argonne famous over the years in Northern Michigan.

Historic photo of the Argonne Supper Club when shrimp dinners were $.50.

"When Ted and Clara bought the place," Steve said, "shrimp was $.50 a pound. That's the only thing that has changed."

Workers at the Argonne read like a litany: family members Grandpa Henry Ager, Clara's sisters and sister-in-law Anne, Mary and Mary Lou, many cousins, Ted and Clara, Steve and Cindy and their children, Herb and Anne Moore's children and grandchildren, Steve's wife, Michelle, and her daughter, and Clara's brother who contributed by building the back room addition in the early '90s. There are too many people who worked in the kitchen or on the floor over the years to list, but Steve and Cindy are forever grateful to them all.

"We want to thank our loyal customers, and invite them to come and dine with us in our new, beautiful location," Cindy said.

"And many thanks to Fred Taylor, owner of Charlevoix Country Club and Somerset Pointe, for making this move possible," Steve added. "It is just a change of venue for us, that's all. The menu will be the same, I'll be back in the kitchen and Cindy will be managing the dining room."

Many comments and well wishes followed a Facebook announcement about the merger from the Ager's.

"Let us raise our glasses and toast to a new beginning," said Gayle Bennett, close friend of the family. "I know your mom (Clara) would approve of the direction the Argonne has taken."

Leadership Charlevoix County graduates its 5th class

Leadership Charlevoix County completed its fifth year with a graduation ceremony hosted and sponsored by Boyne Mountain Resort.

The graduates were encouraged by keynote speaker John Jeffrey, a well-known retired local educator, to continue building their leadership skills throughout their lives. Three class members were chosen by their peers to speak during the ceremony.

Allison Post of Castle Farms updated the audience on the leadership activities the 19 class members experienced during the nine-month leadership program.

"There is no doubt we have grown as a team," she said. "We have learned so much about each other and developed skills to help us step into leadership positions. Each session taught us at least one quality of leadership, whether directly or indirectly. Thank you, Leadership Charlevoix County, for teaching us to grow."

Molly Hauxwell-Currier, special publications editor of the Petoskey News-Review, said, "To think we started as virtual strangers, it is amazing the bonds formed and life events that have happened since we met. We wrote up leadership plans and shared them with each other. As a group, our plans were personal, vulnerable, full of plans for the future and some full of tears. A very far cry from the program that I thought was going to be PowerPoint slides and dry sandwiches."

John Cool of Charlevoix State Bank explained the class project, which involved building three Born Learning Trails in Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan. It was the first time in program history that a class had done a project in each community. The trails consist of 10 signs along a path that encourage children and their caregivers to observe, read, listen and play.

"It's a great way for families to get outside and interact with one another," Cool said.

Program coordinator Kendall Hayes described this year's class as "a fantastic group of people."

"They are smart, driven, enthusiastic and ready to

New pet foster program starts

BOYNE CITY — The Charlevoix Area Humane Society announced a new foster program for the shelter. Carolina's Critters — Purever Love will help community members give their time and resources toward the temporary care of Charlevoix Area Humane Society animals. To kick off the program, Charlevoix Area Humane Society announced that Carolina's Critters — Purever Love will be one of the charitable causes available to participants at the annual Charlevoix Marathon on Saturday, June 25.

The First Annual Kitty Cat Dash, a 5K fundraiser, will be available upon runner registration. Runners/walkers need only check the special box allocated on the Charlevoix Area Humane Society charitable designation area during registration. There are limited supplies of T-shirts and cat ears headbands for sale with all of the proceeds going to support Carolina's Critters.

Named for the late Carolina Elowsky, who died during an automobile accident in January 2015, the foster program offers temporary shelter to animals who may need a little extra care. For example, a mother cat who may deliver her kittens soon may need a quiet room.

Early registration is urged at eventbrite.com/e/charlevoix-marathon-registration; however, there will still be registration packets prior to the race. The Charlevoix Area Humane Society will have a booth available near packet pick-up in Bridge Park just south of the bridge in Charlevoix.

For more information about the race, visit charlevoixmarathon.com.

Free fishing weekend June 11-12

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources reminds everyone the Annual Summer Free Fishing Weekend is scheduled for Saturday, June 11, and Sunday, June 12. That weekend, everyone — residents and nonresidents alike — can fish without a license, although all other fishing regulations still apply.

This year marks 30 years that Michigan has celebrated the Summer Free Fishing Weekend as a way to highlight the state's vast fishing opportunities. With more than 3,000 miles of Great Lakes shoreline, 11,000 inland lakes and tens of thousands of miles of rivers and streams, fishing and Michigan go hand in hand.

"Michigan is home to some of the finest freshwater fishing in the world, and we encourage everyone to take advantage of it during the Summer Free Fishing Weekend," said DNR director Bill Moritz. "Every year, since 1986, we've offered these free fishing weekends as a fun, affordable way for people to learn about one of our state's best outdoor traditions — and the many places there are to enjoy it."

To encourage involvement in free fishing weekends, organized activities are being scheduled in communities across the state. These activities are coordinated by a variety of individuals, organizations, constituent groups, schools, local and state parks, businesses and others.

There's still plenty of time to plan a local free fishing weekend event, or to find an area activity. Visit Michigan.gov/freefishing for all things related to this weekend, including help with event planning and promotion, a registration form for official events and a chart identifying activities occurring throughout the state.

Juggling Club to host summer class

EAST JORDAN — The East Jordan Juggling Club enjoyed a its first six months at East Jordan High where more than 100 students learned the basics of juggling.

The club is extending an invitation to new students as it begins its summer schedule. Jugglers will meet from 7-9 p.m. beginning Monday, June 6, at the East Jordan Memorial Park, near the train. Meetings will be at the same time each following Monday.

Instructor Tommy Tropic began with the basics of juggling and helped many progress to rings, clubs, etc. as well as passing and other team juggling skills. These are life long skills that are not forgotten and can be built upon. Jugglers around the globe execute even complex patterns in exactly the same way.

Learning to juggle has been called a metaphor for learning itself. The complex and seemingly difficult is broken down into simple, achievable tasks. Short term goals are set and accomplished while working toward long term goals.

Gaylord native, Claude Shannon, an American mathematician, electrical engineer and cryptographer also known as the father of information theory, was an avid juggler.

will improve powers of concentration, eye-hand coordination and digital dexterity. The East Jordan Juggling Club asserts that it is, in essence, a confidence booster.

Tropic has taught juggling to the gifted for Interlochen, and to people with challenges for Very Special Arts, and to those at risk for the Cheboygan-Otsego-Presque Isle Educational Service District. Although the class may have been a benefit to others, Tropic believes that he may be the greatest beneficiary of the endeavor. He has a goal of teaching as many Michigan kids as possible the age-old art of juggling.

Front Porch Ministries Cafe: Where community and good eats meet

NICOLE SEYMOUR
Special to the Courier

ELLSWORTH — The Front Porch Ministries Cafe in Ellsworth is doing more than serving up meals, it's bringing community together. This outreach ministry and cafe was created with one mission in mind, to nourish the community by feeding the body, mind, and spirit.

The restaurant, located in the heart of Ellsworth, is doing this by offering breakfast and lunch to those in need. Operating under a 501(c)(3), Front Porch Ministries Cafe offers diners home cooked food with suggested donation prices.

"We don't limit ourselves to a set price for everything, we know that some just don't have it, that's why we operate on a donation price," said manager, Jan Rasmussen.

"We figure this way those that want to give more can and those that don't quite have enough, well that's OK too."

But what the restaurant and its employees have found is that community members also have wanted to help out and provide food for the kitchen.

"We have a lot of farmers that will come by after the farmer's market or throughout the week and drop off produce to us. We love it and it makes such a difference to us that we are able to provide local food to those in need," Rasmussen said.

The cafe also accepts donations from local groups such as Manna Food project, as well as using nonprofit funds for purchasing foods from different wholesale food stores.

The cafe also has found much help in the way of funding to aid in renovating the kitchen and restaurant by being given a capital expenditures grant. Through this grant they were able to install much needed items such as seating, flooring, ceiling tiles, kitchen appliances, and paint.

In late April and early May, cafe employees and volunteers came together to complete the renovation process. While these new renovations will help cut down on some overall operating costs and help the cafe continue to provide food to its customers, for Rasmussen and those involved it's a continual mission to give back to the community and give others a place to find a good meal when in need.

"The cafe is a place where people come and find good conversation and a good meal," Rasmussen said.

For more information on Front Porch Cafe Ministries, as well as daily menu updates, visit facebook.com/FrontPorchEllsworth.

Charlevoix Circle of Arts offers summer camps and workshops

The Charlevoix Circle of Arts is now taking registrations for the summer kid's art camps as well as adult workshops.

"There are five camp experiences this summer and we are very pleased to be working with Lori Bolt, Laura Kelly, Caroline Smith and Frank Hasseld who are offering some unique camp programs," said Gail DeMeyere, executive director of the Circle.

Lori Bolt, from St. Mary School, is teaching two classes: one called Puppet Theater and the other called Art from Found Objects in June and July.

She is a well respected and sought after camp instructor. Her husband Frank Hasseld is adding something new in August called Tool Time where children learn the fundamentals of building with tools and creating wooden projects.

Laura Kelly, a Circle of Arts board member, chairperson of the Education Committee, and teacher at St. Mary School, will teach two classes with the assistance of Caroline Smith from Charlevoix Elementary School.

tary School.

"The summer camp classes are an extension of the year round arts education series that we are creating at the Circle," DeMeyere said. "We are focusing on bringing meaningful experiences to all levels of learning from youth to adult."

Classes range from fine art pastel instruction to Japanese woodblock printing taught by Mary Brodbeck from Kalamazoo, Mich., to fun evening sessions in hand lettering.

Our program is growing with new offerings occurring monthly. The best way to stay current is to visit our website which is getting updated daily with new details, DeMeyere added.

"Dale was so proud of the flowers," Bennett said. "We are part of this because we want to keep Dale's legacy going. In his memory we want to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful."

Boss also was recognized for his work in the community and by the state. In 1987, the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce made him the recipient of its annual Man of the Year award. In 2014, Boss was presented with the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club Distinguished Service and Appreciation Award. He also received an award from the governor for dedicated service to the community.

He served many years on the board of directors of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful.

"We just love Dale and his passion for Charlevoix," Sandra said. "He put his heart and soul into making this community better for everyone. We were lucky to know him."

are no complications, the next appointment is when the child is three years old.

"With a baby we wait until six months for their first appointment," Voci said. "By then eyes are locked in together and they track together. Once six months rolls around we're looking for eyes that point in different directions. The obvious is when the eyes turn toward their nose."

When the eyes point straight ahead for information they collect images from each eye to build the information together.

If one eye isn't straight the brain sees two different images, and one will be ignored which can lead to a lazy eye Voci said.

"If the brain is ignoring one eye, the brain is essentially shutting that eye down and it can become permanent," he added.

They also look at the prescriptions in the eyes and if there is large difference between the two. Voci added they also look for signs of a rare intraocular cancer seen in some children.

Voci stresses the importance of sun protection and exposure to the sun for babies.

"Damage can occur as early as birth," he said. "The thing about sunglasses is we started my daughter very early to get her in the habit of wearing them. Now she's in college she wears them all the time."

Once a baby becomes a toddler it can be harder to have them wear sunglasses, Voci added.

of Commerce boards gathered for breakfast to hear the findings of Economic Development Strategy study the Chesapeake Group put together, then at noon city council members and other stakeholders were invited for lunch and the same presentation, and the final presentation was hosted at the Charlevoix Public Library that evening for the community.

Kohn said the city is dependent upon bringing people from outside the city for commercial demand.

"If the current population spent every dollar in this community and never spent it anywhere else they could not support the commercial infrastructure you have here," Kohn said. "There is not enough people, not enough income, not enough anything. You are dependent upon people coming from outside of this city for any business here to make a living."

After the presentation city manager Mark Heydlauff suggested the best way to utilize the information people received about the study was to use the resources the city has in place.

He spoke about the Main Street committees and volunteers involved with the programs. He also told council that it's their role to look at what they can do today for what will happen 20 to 30 years from now.

"This gives us a blueprint and path to follow in the future," Heydlauff said. "The focus (council) should have is that long-term vision and see what Charlevoix's downtown economy can be and take those steps to move it in that direction."

American flags decorated the graves of veterans as their service is recognized in observance of Memorial Day.

Before the salute, the Rev. Matthew Wigton gave the invocation and American Legion Post commander Joe Seidel opened with a few words before placing a wreath to honor the fallen soldiers who served America.

"It's short and sweet and it's all geared toward the fact that we want to remember the veterans that have gone from our community and nation," said Seidel.

The community Memorial Day Parade followed the cemetery ceremony and another ceremony was held in East Park. Local Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts carried colors along with the color guard and American Legion's ladies auxiliary. A wreath was put down in Round Lake and at Memorial Park. Local figures expressed a few words of gratitude for our veterans.

More than 500 people gathered at East Park to remember all of the lives lost during foreign combats. Event organizer Marell Staffel said she was thankful for the turnout and hopes it becomes a regular trend.

"It was tremendous and I don't have words to express it," Staffel said. "This is a fantastic crowd and I hope people keep coming each year. It turned out to be a beautiful day."

There are many other things these people could have done today rather than come to a ceremony.

But they all will tell you that they wouldn't want to be anywhere else.

"I think everybody should get a chance to see one of these and participate, because it's very important to understand what our soldiers and our veterans have done for our freedom. That's why I'm standing here today," said Shirley Gibson, who was volunteering at the event.

HARBOR SPRINGS — Running, like life, is full of beginnings and endings.

That's why as the Stafford's Community Marathon and 10K got off to a promising start in its inaugural edition on Saturday, it was fitting that the event also marked an end in the chapter of one of its runners.

The event got a strong turnout for a first-year event, attracting over 175 runners to compete in its Charlevoix to Harbor Springs marathon along the bike trails surrounding Little Traverse Bay and its 10K race as well.

In the marathon, Jacob Bradsky from Salt Lake City, a well-known runner from his days in the military, took first in a time of 2 hours, 44 minutes and 3 seconds, 15 minutes ahead of another decorated racer, Jason Brousseau, who finished in 2:59:28. Shane Angove took third in 3:10:34.

On the women's side, Sara Reichert ran a blistering 3:25:29 to win, with Jan Artushin running a 3:44:47 to take second and Julie Cauvin finishing in third with a 3:47:48, just one second ahead of fourth place.

TRAVERSE CITY — Nothing builds a fire for an athlete heading toward the postseason more so than a win to end the regular season.

In the win or go home atmosphere of districts, any bit of momentum picked up from a regular season ending match is key.

With all of their district titles over the past decade as proof, the Charlevoix girls' soccer team knows that well, and on Thursday in Traverse City, the Rayders ended the regular season on a high note once again.

Playing the Traverse City Liberty in their final regular season game of the year, the Rayders came away with a dominating 6-1 victory.

CHARLEVOIX — Another strong season has led to another finish atop the Lake Michigan Conference for the Charlevoix boys track team.

Despite losing several key contributors off of last season's championship roster, Charlevoix reloaded and edged runner-up T.C. St. Francis with a score of 158 points at Wednesday's LMC championship meet in Kalkaska.

for the title.

Junior Jared McLean led the Rayders with a conference title in the 400 dash (51.47), a runner-up finish in the 200 dash (23.68) and a third place finish in the 100 dash (11.70), as well as teaming up with Ben Boss, Luke Buday and Noah Carson to win the title in the 1,600 relay (3:36.11).

Carson brought home a conference title in the 1,600 run (4:36.99), took third in the 800 run (2:07.98) to Buday, who won the title in 2:03.76 and the pair also combined with Jon Pischner and David Ritter to win the 3,200 relay (8:38.89) to give Charlevoix five conference champions.

Pischner took second in the 1,600 run (4:37.68) and third in the 3,200 run (10:27.24) as well for the Rayders. Oliver DeYoung took third in both the 110 hurdles (17.99) and 300 hurdles (44.04). Justin Bond took third in the discus (118-1) and Charlevoix finished runner-up in both the CHARLEVOIX — Survive and advance.

It's the number one goal of each golf program this time of season.

Playing their Division 3 district match at the Charlevoix Country Club on Wednesday, Charlevoix would meet that goal, as would one Boyne City golfer as an individual.

With the top six teams and the top six golfers not on qualifying teams advancing to regional matches next week, the Rayders earned a fifth place finish to qualify, along with Boyne City's Griffin Powers.

While a fifth place card wasn't what Charlevoix coach Keith Grunch was hoping for out of his team on a hometown course, they're surviving and advancing nonetheless.

"That's what the goal is, move on and advance to the next level," said Grunch. "We didn't have our A game today, but we live to see another week and get down to regionals."

Their Division 3 regional will take place on Thursday, June 2 at Lakeside Links Golf Course in Ludington.

Earning the No. 1 spot and the district title at the Country Club on Wednesday was Manistee, who just edged out Houghton Lake by four strokes, finishing with a 323 on the day.

Houghton Lake finished with a 327 for second place, followed by Cheboygan, 344; Elk Rapids, 357; Charlevoix, 374; Roscommon, 379; Boyne City, 381; Grayling, 402; Kalkaska, 424; and Kingsley, 430.

The six golfers moving on that made regionals as individuals included Griffin Powers of Boyne City with an 82, followed by Nick Brewer, Kalkaska, 87; JC Bertram, Grayling, 89; Keanan Anderson, Kingsley, 90; Garrett Anderson, Grayling, 95; and Sam Porter, Kingsley, 95.

Charlevoix's back end of their lineup pulled through with the lowest rounds of the day, where Tyler Fuchs and Collin Turkelson each carded 91.

"Tyler and Collin played steady in the No. 4 and No. 6 slot, they definitely stepped up and without them, we probably wouldn't be moving on," said Grunch.

Montana Thompson scored a 93 for the Rayders out of the No. 3 slot, while Tanner Drost shot 99 and Matt Good, 104, a season high.

"Our No. 1 and No. 2 didn't have their best days today, but I'm happy they've got another shot at it next week," said Grunch. "It's a tough course out here. You look at the scorecard and it looks short, but you've got to think your way through this course."

Good's round came as perhaps the biggest surprise for Charlevoix, as the Rayder No. 1 is coming off rounds of 79 and 80 in the previous two Lake Michigan Conference matches.

As a team, the Rayders had been coming off back-to-back rounds of 350 and 356, and will need to drop their round considerably at next week's regional.

"We're going down the day before to get a practice round in," said Grunch of the regional course. "Lakeside Links is usually a tougher course too, scores are higher there. Short course, tough greens."

CHARLEVOIX — Though it got in only one game of a doubleheader with visiting Pellston on Friday, the Rayders picked up a 7-3 win that moved them back to .500 on the season heading into district play next week. Charlevoix jumped out to a four run lead in the bottom of the second inning and never looked back, led by Alex Kleiber, who went 3 for 3 at the plate with two RBIs.

Garrett Seese chipped in a two run single for the Rayders and Jordan Adkins added a triple.

Austin Putman earned the win on the mound for Charlevoix, going the Putman also went 2 for 3 at the plate and drove in a run as well.

The Rayders also dropped a 3-1 game to Gaylord on Tuesday in their regular season finale to finish the year at 14-15-1 overall. Stats were not available for that game as of press time.

With the regular season done, Charlevoix travels to East Jordan on Saturday for district play, facing off against Harbor Springs in a semifinal at 10 a.m.

The winner of that game will advance to the district final to face the winner of Boyne City and East Jordan with the title on the line.

Charlevoix split with Harbor Springs earlier this season, winning a 1-0 thriller in the first game and dropping the nightcap 6-1 on May 16.

Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association Sign-ups

Registration for the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association summer program will take place on Saturday, June 11 at the Municipal Course.

The program is open to children ages 8 to 17 and a parent must be present to sign the waiver of liability form and for a short informational meeting.

Registration for children aged 12-17 takes place at 10:45 a.m., and with registration for ages 8-11 to follow, and the program will cost a per lesson fee of $5 or a total of $50 for the entire season.

All those who plan to attend should bring a putter, as a lesson will immediately follow registration. Loaner clubs will also be available.

2016 marks the 22nd year that this program has been available to area youth, meeting two to three times weekly through July 16 to teach the fundamentals of golf, and has been named one of the top 13 youth programs in the country by the National Junior Golf Association.

In the program, attendees will work with local pros like Marty Joy of the Belvedere Club, Jan Waha from Ye Nynne Olde Holes and Keith Grunch from the Charlevoix Country Club, with lessons held at the Belvedere, the Country Club, the Municipal Course and Antrim Dells on learning golf rules and procedures as well as proper fundamentals and techniques.

Scholarships will be available based on need for families who might not otherwise be able to afford the program, and details will be discussed at the sign-up.

VICTORY

The win ends the Rayders regular season with an 11-6-1 record overall and secures a second place finish in the LMC behind conference champion Elk Rapids with a 9-3 league mark.

While scoring might have been the Rayders forte at first glance, Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten came away most impressed with his defense in the first 40 minutes of play.

"Our defense was lights out in the first half," said Scholten. "Not only did they have to defend against a quality team, they had to deal with a stiff wind blowing into our goal."

"Isabel Hess, Jane Kelly, Michelle Bollini, Ali Jaroma and freshman keeper Emily Hinkley really stepped up and got the job done."

The scoring got started when junior Julia Doskoch buried a crosser from Rachel Nesburg with just over 23 minutes left in the first half.

The goal came as a well-coming sign for Scholten, as Doskoch has struggled with injuries over the past few weeks.

"It was great to get her back," said Scholten. "This was Julia's first appearance in a month and she came up big for us."

It became a 2-0 game when Natalie Nesburg found her sister Rachel, who finished just inside the far post.

Traverse City closed the halftime gap with a goal just before the half to make it a 2-1 game heading to intermission.

In the second half, senior Kylee Scholten got in on the action early, booting in a goal from Rachel Nesburg.

Natalie Nesburg got back into the giving spirit when she set up senior Kelsey Engstrom on a goal to make it 4-1, then Raigan Novotny crossed a ball to senior Sophie Herboldshelmer, who finished just inside the 20 minute mark of the second half.

Already a 5-1 game, Engstrom picked up her second goal of the game off another assist from Rachel Nesburg, closing the door to the Liberty with six minutes remaining. Not only did the strong finish come as the sixth goal of the game, but it also came attached with a sixth assist, something that caught Scholten's eye.

"I was really pleased with how well we passed the ball tonight," he said. "We had several really nice combinations and created a lot of scoring opportunities."

Emily Hinkley earned the win in goal for the Rayders, coming away with 10 saves on the night.

Scholten was also pleased to see that with as many underclassmen he's played this season, a trio of seniors in Herboldshelmer, Engstrom and Kylee Scholten all earned goals in their final regular season game.

"Our finishing really came together tonight," he said. "It was really special too that our three seniors all scored goals in their last regular season match."

The win will go a long way as building momentum for a tough Division 4 district bracket, that includes Harbor Springs, Houghton Lake and Boyne City.

Charlevoix will begin postseason play in Harbor Springs on Wednesday, June 1, against the Ramblers.

on the men's side, as Jacob Phillips won in 33 minutes, 13 seconds, with Dennis Paull taking runner up in 40:29 and Ben Waggoner third in 42:04.

For the women, Amanda Paull won the 10k in 44:43, with runner-up Audrey Stempky right behind in 44:45, and Lynnann Cots taking third in 48:01.

All proceeds from the event go to benefit the Top of Michigan Trails Council, as well as the Petoskey High School Track and Cross Country teams.

"The event was an complete success," Race Director Jim Harrington said. "We had close to 100 volunteers sacrifice a good part of their holiday weekend to support runners and it showed."

"We hope to grow this into a community tradition that will support trail development and lifetime physical activity in our community's. We also couldn't have done it without our many sponsors who not only gave resources but also ran and supported the runners."

In order to put up those strong finishes, the field had to overcome a hot, humid and windy day that made fast times difficult, but not impossible.

One of those runners battling the conditions was Tracy Brines, 55, of Petoskey, for whom the event held a special meaning.

After nearly a decade of marathon racing that included 13 finishes, including at the prestigious Boston Marathon, Saturday's race marked Brines' final competitive marathon.

"I wanted to finish with my 13th marathon, because 13 is my lucky number," Brines said. "I've been looking for a good opportunity for a while, and with this one right in my backyard, it really worked out well."

Brines wasn't a runner growing up, first getting into distance running at the age of 37 thanks to her husband, Dave.

"Dave's always been a runner, and my kids were runners in high school as well," Brines said. "One day he asked me to run with him for the first time, for four miles."

"It being Northern Michigan, the weather started out sunny, and then proceeded to turn to rain, then sleet, then snow."

Despite the less than ideal conditions for her maiden run, Brines got hooked, steadily increasing the mileage she was running and looking to drop her times.

After seven years of building, her newfound love led her to her first marathon, the Detroit Marathon, at age 44, where she qualified to run in the Boston Marathon as well.

"The plan was to run the marathon in Detroit, and then if I made it to Boston go to Boston as well," Brines said. "I thought that was going to be it, but after I got back from Boston I was on such an emotional high from finishing, I thought, I can keep doing this."

For the next five years Brines ran a marathon in the spring and summer, two a year, going around the tri-state area to places like Grand Rapids, Toledo and South St. Marie to compete.

Five years ago, after her 12th marathon and now past 50, Brines decided to take a break from competitive marathoning, but deep down inside she felt like she had one more in her before she was done.

The introduction of the Stafford's Marathon gave her that opportunity, allowing her to finish lucky number 13 in front of family and friends in the area she called home.

"The coolest part about the race, was just seeing so many people I know out to support the runners," Brines said. "Especially as I got into Petoskey, the aid stations were all full of people I knew from around town, and it's so nice to see a friendly face that deep in a tough race. "It was nice to run in front of my family as well, not just my husband but two of my three daughters and my 85 year old mother as well. Seeing them on the course gave me a lot of strength."

Brines finished 49th overall, in 4 hours, 41 minutes and 30 seconds. It wasn't as fast as she would have liked, but given the hot conditions it was a solid performance for her final race.

Though she's done with marathons, Brines will keep on running and possibly even in competitive events. She pointed to the 10 mile run in Harbor Springs over the 4th of July weekend as one she'd like to do.

And Brines wouldn't shut the door completely on one more marathon event if the circumstances were right.

"My dream has always been to run a marathon with all three of my children, and I've run one with one of them," Brines said. "If one of the other two wanted to run a marathon, I would probably run it with them."

"But if that doesn't happen, I'm content with what I was able to do in these 13 races."

Charlevoix's class of 2016 takes stage for a final bow

(231) 547-6558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix High School class of 2016 celebrated its commencement program inside the high school gymnasium with a large crowd of proud parents, family members and friends in attendance.

Donning maroon caps and gowns, 75 Rayders walked across the stage marking the finality of high school and beginning a new chapter in their lives.

It started with a prelude and processional by the Charlevoix High School band, under the direction of Thomas Harder.

Charlevoix High School principal Suzanne Klinger then welcomed those in attendance and introduced the senior scholars and those students graduating with honors.

Senior scholar Ben Boss took his classmates back in time from their days in elementary school through the years to graduation. He used the analogy of entering each school building as an experience of self-discovery. From the simplicity of elementary school, the awkwardness and awareness of themselves in middle school and the final realization of emerging adults in high school, Boss reminded his classmates that past experiences have shaped them to focus on who they want to be as they leave high school and enter the next chapter of their lives.

"Our experiences have all been unique during the short time of high school but our focus is the same," Boss said. "I challenge us, class of 2016, to remember what we

Charlevoix teacher has national role in choosing test materials, guides

NICOLE SEYMOUR
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix high school teacher, Annemarie Conway, was recently appointed to serve as a question leader at the 2016 U.S. Government and Politics Advanced Placement Reading/Exam Scoring for the College Board.

With only 10 such positions available, Conway was chosen out of 731 participants and is one of four high school teachers nationally asked to take part in putting together reading testing materials and scoring guides for the upcoming school year.

This job is important because it allows teachers to accurately place students in Advanced Placement class, commonly known as AP classes, based on their test scores.

For those unfamiliar with these types of classes, a high school Advanced Placement class is a rigorous academic program built that enables students to take college-level courses and exams; as well as earn college credit or placement while still in high school. Institutions such as North Central Michigan College and universities use these courses toward program credit or on a student's transcript to help them get into the college of their choice.

Conway has been a part of the AP program within the Charlevoix School District for 19 years serving as a social

City moves forward on wind power investment

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Like many forward-looking investors, the Charlevoix City Council diversified one city portfolio Monday to give it less exposure to a particular sector of the market.

At the advice of staff, the council approved an electrical purchasing agreement on June 6 that will boost the city's renewable energy portfolio to 22.4 percent of its total load over the next 20 years.

The council voted 5-0 to authorize Don Swem, city engineer, to authorize Michigan Public Power Agency to enter into a Purchase Power Commitment with Huron Wind LLC so that the city of Charlevoix will be entitled to 4.06 percent of all energy.

"We couldn't find a better deal on this," Swem said. "Over the last few years the price for wind has dropped and this is a very good price for an energy purchase."

This agreement will cost the city on average $50 per kilowatt month, which puts the city in line with what it pays currently with natural gas and other energy sources, said City manager Mark Heydlauff.

"The cost of this energy purchase is similar to our traditional purchases of energy," Heydlauff said. "We feel this investment is a very cost effective measure for the city."

Councilwoman Shirley Gibson said the agreement is a prime exam-

Family to host celebration for Charlevoix's Mr. Petunia

LONNIE ALLEN

(231) 547-6558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Dale Boss requested no public funeral service or viewing for his death. He planned one thing for his family and community that he loved dearly before his death — a party. On July 1, his family will honor him just like he planned, with a parade and community celebration in East Park.

The celebration will be from 6-8 p.m. and will feature musical entertainment, an ice cream social and open-mic for the community to share its favorite Dale Boss memory, said his son, Bo Boss.

'Because Charlevoix was such an important priority in his life, anyone wishing to celebrate his memory is invited to this party.'

— Bo Boss

"Because Charlevoix was such an important priority in his life, anyone wishing to celebrate his memory is invited to this party," Bo said.

Dale Boss died May 28 at the age of 84, but his dedication to the community of Charlevoix left fingerprints that can never be erased.

"He was many things to many different people, but to all of us, he was, and always will be, Charlevoix," said David Miles, curator for the Charlevoix Historical Society Museum. "If anybody was an ambassador for this town it was Dale. He is probably one of the people that spread the word about Charlevoix as far as it would go. He talked up Charlevoix every place he went."

Miles, as most Charlevoix natives, knew Boss all his life, but Miles really got to know Boss and his wife, Marilyn, through their involvement with the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Marilyn was the president of the historical society when Boss built the addition to the museum. It was building an addition to the Harsha House and the work Marilyn did writing about the history of this town in columns to the Charlevoix Courier that earned the couple recognition from the Charlevoix Historical Society, on April 26, 2007, Miles said.

The couple was given the Bob Miles Award. The award recognizes contributions "to historical research and preservation of the historical record in the Charlevoix area," he said.

"Both of them did this, Marilyn with her research and writings in the Courier regarding life in

Runway grooving project set to start in the fall

LONNIE ALLEN

CHARLEVOIX — City officials gave approval to city staff to execute a grant application to the Federal Aviation Administration that will include the construction contract for Runway 9-27 friction improvement scheduled this fall at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

The overall project will increase water drainage from the runway, making it safer for planes to land in Charlevoix during wet weather, said airport operations manager Matt Wyman.

"The grooves drain the runway, which improves the braking action for all aircraft landing here,"

Library plans summer youth activities

The Charlevoix Public Library will offer a myriad of youth activities for area children to participate in throughout the 2016 summer season.

The Stop the Summer Slide event began on June 1 and continues through the summer. All students participating in Camp Read at the Charlevoix Elementary School received books to take home for summer reading. Two follow-up events will take place for the chance to get more books. This program features popular new books and encourages the pleasure of reading.

The library also will co-host two community events with the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority. Papa Crow will be in East Park, 11:30 a.m., Thursday, July 14. This Northern Michigan singer and songwriter will perform, then follow his show with a short ukulele lesson for all who want to join in. This family friendly program will coincide with morning out at the farmers' market.

The library also will host Grammy nominated musician and artist Gustaf Yellowgold, live at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 11, in East Park. The concert is part of the Charlevoix Summer Concert Series and is sponsored by the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library.

Other scheduled events are:

— Story Hour with Ms. Laura will continue 10:30 a.m. every Thursday for children birth to five-years-old.

— Tweens, ages 8-12, can kick start their summer with "Sidewalk Chalk and Root Beer Floats" program from 3-4 p.m. on Wednesday, June 15. And learn Simple Coding with Scratch from 3-4 p.m. on Wednesdays, June 22 and Aug. 17.

Participants can bring a large cotton T-shirt, make a bag on Wednesday and use it at the farmers' market on Thursday.

— Read to Ginger, the library dog on Wednesdays, June 22, July 13 and Aug. 31. Ginger is a yellow labrador retriever who loves stories. She offers a non-threatening way for children to practice reading. Drop-ins are welcome.

Charlevoix County launches new website

JORDAN SPENCE

jspence@petoskeynews.com

Charlevoix County officials recently unveiled a revamped website, that was put together by a Troy-based web development company for $17,000.

County administrator Kevin Shepard said the new website is a "good investment."

"It's my understanding the (old) website is 10 years old," Shepard said.

The contract for a new website was approved in October 2015 by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners. The site was built by a web hosting company called Revize out of Troy, which specializes in creating municipal websites.

He said it's far more interactive than the old website and is designed with mobile access in mind.

"It's been designed to have things like large buttons so they can easily see on the phone," he said. "No more little arrows. That was part of the process, we wanted to make it easier to use on the go."

With the new website, new functions, sections and information have been added.

"There is a new 'documents on demand' section," he said. "This is where you go for forms, agendas, minutes."

People can also sign up to receive email notifications every time something changes. People will be able to search documents by subject.

"For example if you were to type in exemption it brings everything that mentions that word," he said.

There are links to township websites and a lot of mapping for parcels in the county, he added. All departments will be responsible for their own pages. Everything has been designed to be accessed in three clicks or less, he said.

At some point, officials hope to add functions where people will be able to schedule public transit rides (this function is still in the works). People can now print brochures, reserve park buildings and submit forms. For county staff, there is also an employee portal.

Shepard said because it's brand new there may be some hiccups at first, but he is happy with what's been developed.

Part of the contract with Revize also includes a redesign at no extra charge after five years.

"There are several feedback links throughout the site and I encourage everybody to use them, not only during the launch of the site but in the future, as well," he said.

The county's web address has not changed and remains www.charlevoixcounty.org.

OPINIONS yours & ours

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

The media is to blame for this, that and the other

I'm about to let you in on a little secret. Each morning in the wonderful land of journalism, editors and reporters from around the country get together on a conference call. To get in you must know the secret password. The call's purpose? Decide what story is going to be big that day, and how we as journalists are going to spin it. Lately the focus has been more political candidates, and how we can twist the facts to make or break them.

Stories about police brutality, mass shootings, transgender bathrooms and plane crashes are slam dunks for us. But we also talk about all the stories we will ignore.

It's a great honor to be part of this club. After all, we all know journalists are not only paid extremely well, but we also have a hard time making our own choices. This daily conference call helps us, since we're told what to write about and how to write it. We are no longer tasked with thinking for ourselves!

While none of this is true (I know, surprise!), I'm sure there's some of you out there still shaking your head, saying, "I knew it!" The mass amount of stories and memes I see on social media each day lamenting all the stories the "media chose to ignore" or how "media twists the facts for their own agenda," could lead even the most educated to occasionally believe the media is to blame for anything and everything.

A quick perusal of the term "media to blame" on the Web shows journalists are to blame for: political rises to power, political falls, mass shootings, sex assaults and rape, youth violence, drug abuse and poor body image.

But I wonder, just what does the general populace consider "the media?" Is it limited to newspapers, radio and television? Is it social media? Bloggers? The National Enquirer? Somewhere, they all got lumped together.

Over the past several months, those running for president have all blamed the media for something, some candidates point the finger far more often than others. And their supporters are now following suit.

Enoch Powell, a British politician once said, "For a politician to complain about the press is like a ship's captain complaining about the sea."

For those media blamers out there, do you really think millions of people can be manipulated? What's more likely — a media conspiracy (like the conference call scenario above) or the fact most politicians would rather not be held accountable for their words and actions?

Is the media to blame for Donald Trump's rise to power as many headlines would suggest? Well, consider this: polling shows Trump supporters are likely to support a ban on Muslims (and are against homosexuals and transgender individuals), call for deportation of undocumented immigrants and many supporters even wish the South had won the Civil War. I doubt these supporters came to these conclusions reading The New York Times, listening to NPR or watching CNN. It seems more likely Trump just had the gusto to finally say what many Americans have long wanted to hear.

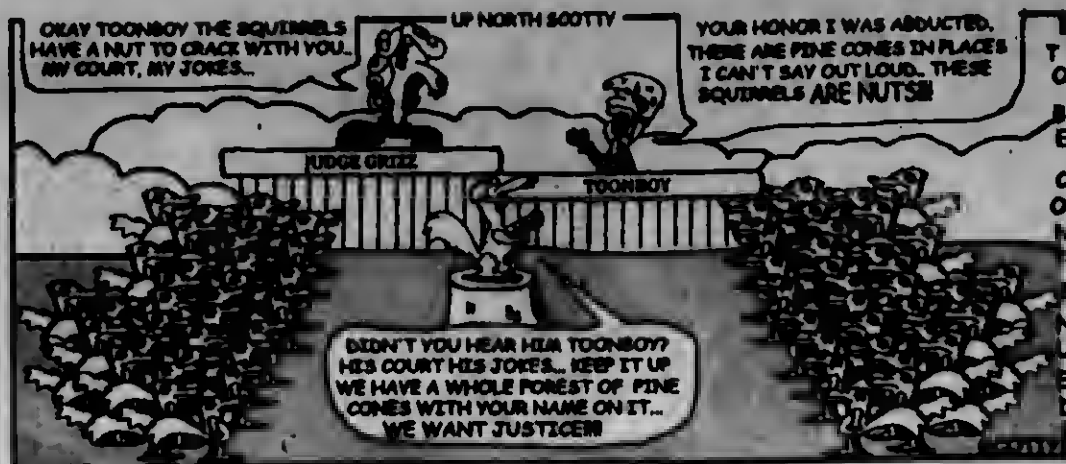

Or maybe our morning conference calls in journalism land have just become extremely efficient and productive.

Closure without conflict

When there's anxiety surrounding a loved one's end-of-life issues, emotions run high and can lead to conflict — which, in turn, can adversely affect the quality of life and care.

"The emotionally-charged atmosphere during advanced illness and near death is rife with opportunity for new conflicts to emerge or old conflicts to resurface," said JoAnn Reifsnnyder, Ph.D., ACHPN, of the Hospice Foundation of America.

"Conflict may occur within families or between families and professional caregivers." If you're struggling with the impending loss of a loved one, identifying and mediating such conflicts can be a major challenge. But with help from hospice, you can do it successfully, and offer your loved one — as well as family members and caregivers — a better chance at a peaceful, meaningful experience in the final hours and days.

When a patient is admitted to hospice, medical-social worker and grief and bereavement support staff services are offered to the patient and family to facilitate end-of-life decisions and to help manage the quality of time left. These team members provide support to the entire family, and to the intimate networks of individuals who care for and about one another.

There may be multiple sources of conflict within a family when a loved one reaches the end stages of life. Conflicts may stem from disagreements about advance care planning, finances, inheritances and a host of other touchy subjects. These conflicts are compounded by the fact that family members are often exhausted and emotionally drained from the anxiety of caring for and worrying about the patient.

Conflicts may also arise between family members and professional caregivers. Disagreements about the nature of care, the responsibilities for providing care or the need for pain management often result from family feeling unprepared, or not understanding the illness or the services being provided.

Hospice can help to alleviate these conflicts by providing targeted, evidence-based education — in a compassionate way — to the family members involved in caring for the patient. Hospice staff can help to identify sources of conflict and foster effective negotiation between family members and professional caregivers. They also can identify other sources of stress, such as exhaustion and anxiety, and help family members get the help they need to stay strong.

When conflicts involve finances, inheritances, payment of bills or caring for a loved one's home during illness, hospice can connect the family with appropriate community resources to help manage any areas of concern. Hospice staff are trained to understand the sensitivity of these matters and to recognize the strain of dealing with them while a loved one is nearing the end stages of life.

Family meetings, facilitated and supported by hospice, are another way to share information, ease tensions and concerns, and open up communication. By resolving conflicts, strengthening healthy coping mechanisms and supporting the emotional needs of family members, hospice can help loved ones become partners in maintaining the best possible quality of life for the patient.

Thank you to the Bergman family for the beautiful flag they had displayed along M-66 this past Memorial Day weekend. It makes me proud to be an American.

Dennis Kusina, Charlevoix

Much obliged for the donations

Editor:

Bergmann Center would like to extend a huge thank you to the following businesses; Pizza Hut of Charlevoix, Family Fare and Kilwins of Charlevoix.

Bergmann Center held our annual input meeting for our 52 clients at the Charlevoix Public Library, an amazing and beautiful facility, our clients gave wonderful input as to what they expect in services from Bergmann Center over the next year. This meeting was enhanced by the wonderful donations of the businesses listed.

The pizza was wonderful, the salads were great and the ice cream was a show stopper.

Again, Bergmann Center is proud to be able to provide excellent services to our clients and we would not have been able to do this without the support of the local community and businesses.

Thank you,

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

These two images are of a building that once stood near Boyne City and later became a major Charlevoix landmark. In 1885, H. B. Chapman of Saginaw built the structure on the Lake Charlevoix shore in Bay Springs, an adjunct suburb of Boyne City on that town's northwest edge. He intended it to be a luxury summer resort hotel. However, the building was far distant from a convenient railroad stop since Boyne City had yet to see its first train, the closest station being at Boyne Falls was seven miles east. That distance was covered by bumpy stagecoach. So the quickly under-tenanted hotel turned into what became known as Chapman's Folly until it was taken over by the Valparaiso Normal College for teacher education. In 1904 the structure became the notorious Boulah Home for Boys. When that came to an end amid scandal, the old hostelry was converted into a so-called apartment house whose unit walls in the former dormitories were blankets contributed to the boys home, rescued from storage, and hung on wire rods. Many young couples began their married lives here. In the early 1920s, Chapman's Folly was put on the market for salvage. James Saunders of Charlevoix bought it in 1922 for the lumber, hired his son and some of his friends to take the old hotel apart board by board, and they transported much of the lumber in a Maxwell truck to Charlevoix. Here they put a portion of the wood back together as the Belvedere Club casino, the striking green building at the end of Belvedere Avenue where it meets Lake Charlevoix, having served almost a century now as the club's social center.

Foundation awards $5,500 to Hospice of Northwest Michigan

CHARLEVOIX - The Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently awarded Hospice of Northwest Michigan a $5,000 and another $500 grant, based upon the recognized need for developing a long-term marketing plan and supporting materials for community outreach and education.

Amy Wieland, executive director, said part of the funding will be used to support the agency's education and outreach initiative that enables the community to better understand the who, what, where, why and when of Hospice care and that they have a choice in that care. The other portion will provide the resources needed to develop the marketing plan to reinforce this message. This support of the organization's capacity will enable Hospice of Northwest Michigan to continue to provide an educated choice for community families.

"We are extremely grateful to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation for supporting our community services through these grants and recognizing our services as a valued choice," Wieland said. "They have enabled us to more effectively reach out to those who need and depend on Hospice of Northwest Michigan and to ensure that we are able to provide the best possible care."

According to Wieland, the continued outstanding support from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation will positively impact community friends and neighbors well into the future.

Locals in Northwest Michigan have a choice in hospice care and these grants will help people know what choices are available for them and their families before an emergent situation arises.

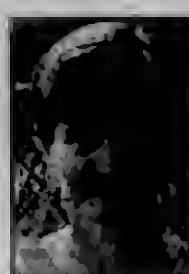

For presentations to local organizations or access to more information, call Wieland at (231) 547-7659.

Charlevoix library hosts art series

CHARLEVOIX - The Charlevoix Public Library announced the summer line up for the Artists in Action series, a program that highlights local artistic talents. Artists will be in the library main lobby demonstrating their art and answering questions about their craftsmanship from 2-4 p.m. on select days.

Jennifer Carrol will be on hand on Thursday, June 16, to demonstrate her glass, art work. Carrol experiments with many glass mediums and colors to form beautiful designs for vessels, sculptures, mosaics and jewelry. She creates custom stained glass pieces combined with polished agates, Petoskey stones and other hand-picked Michigan stones. She has deep Charlevoix family roots and has worked as a writer and editor at several Michigan newspapers. Carrol recently focused on innovation in digital media and storytelling in Washington D.C., where she collaborated with creative writers, designers, videographers and photographers. She also worked as a studio glass artist and was in numerous exhibits throughout Maryland.

Carol Madison will be at the library on Sunday, July 21, for a demonstration of basketry techniques. After leaving the classroom to be an at home mom, Madison began her basket making experience in 1984 when she took a class through the community education program in Charlevoix. Little did she know that that class would turn into a business and travels that would take her half-way around the world. By 1986, she was teaching that same community education class, when the instructor left town.

Soon, Madison started teaching at basket conventions in Ohio, followed by Indiana and Michigan. As time went on, Madison learned more basket techniques and broadened her repertoire of craft skills further by traveling with Association of Michigan Basketmaker friends to Hawaii, Thailand, and Alaska where she took classes and studied with native artists like Delores Churchill, a Haida artist from Southeast Alaska.

In 1998, Madison put her basket life on hold to return to the classroom. Since her retirement last June, she has been working on rejuvenating her skills and is enjoying creating new pieces from various natural materials like willow, cedar bark, red and white pine bark. Madison also has two of her baskets on permanent display at the Michigan State University Museum as part of the Weaving History, a Basket Heritage project.

On Thursday, Aug. 18, Nancy Hansen will round out the summer series with her unique paper jewelry. Nancy Hansen was born in Arizona, where she lived and worked until 2012, when she leaped at the chance to live in Michigan. As a child, her favorite subject in school was art. She feels truly blessed now to be able fully pursue her passion for self-expression through art.

Hansen's favorite medium of choice is paper. She takes immense pleasure in designing paper jewelry. Her paper art techniques include: Origami, quilling, weaving and rolling. In the last several months, Hansen has started incorporating glass and metal into her art work as well.

Holiness children's ministry announced

BOYNE CITY — The Northern Michigan Holiness Camp Meeting Association will be initiating a new ministry this year for children during their week of camp meeting services. This ministry will be led by the Rev. Roger Spencer of the Rural Bible Mission and is designed for children in kindergarten through sixth grade.

Historically, the association was founded in 1911 and comprises many churches from across Northern Michigan. They have hosted yearly camp meeting services for 104 years on the 3-acre site at 630 North Park St., Boyne City. Last year, work on a new tabernacle was finished at 681 East St., near their old facility which was completed in 1933.

The new children's ministry will begin at 6 p.m. Sunday, June 12, and continue each night through Sunday, June 19. Services will begin at 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday in the old tabernacle on Park Street. Both Sunday services will begin at 6 p.m. These services will be simultaneous with the camp meeting services in the new tabernacle on East Street.

This year's camp meeting evangelist will be the Rev. George Holley from Ohio and the music worship leader will be Major Young, also from Ohio.

Holley is well known by many having been at the camp on previous occasions. The public is welcome to be a part of a growing movement of old-fashioned camp meeting services across America. The camp directors are very excited to offer this new ministry to people in Northern Michigan.

Vacation Bible school taught by younger religious sisters

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

A vacation Bible school is being offered free of charge at St. Mary Catholic Church in Charlevoix from 9 a.m.-noon Monday through Friday, June 13-17. The event is being conducted as a teaching mission by two Dominican Sisters from Ann Arbor.

The vacation Bible school will be hosted in the parish center and will feature crafts, games, stories and songs for children ages kindergarten through fifth-grade. There is no charge, thanks to the generosity of donors at the Northern Lights silent auction last fall. All are welcome. Volunteers, adults or older students, are being sought at this writing for taking registration or assisting the sisters in the program.

At a time when the average age of religious sisters in the United States is in the 70s, this new order of teaching nuns based in Ann Arbor is comprised of enthusiastic young women, many in their 20s. This new community, the Dominican Sisters of Mary, Mother of the Eucharist, was founded 19 years ago as a response to a summons by former Pope John Paul II who called for a new evangelization in a world of faltering faith. A teaching order whose mission is to "teach students as whole persons, with a special emphasis on formation in virtue and the life of grace," conducts vacation Bible schools as part of its outreach.

To register a student or to volunteer, contact St. Mary's parish office at (231) 547-6652.

Friends of Charlevoix Library requesting book donations

The Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library are requesting donations of gently used adult and children's books, CDs and DVDs for the annual summer book sale, to be hosted from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. on Saturday, June 25, and from 1-5 p.m. on Sunday, June 26, at the library, in downtown Charlevoix.

Organizers ask donors not to leave textbooks, Reader's Digest Condensed books, encyclopedias, VHS tapes, or any materials stored in damp places, as mold raises health concerns. Donations may be left in the cart at the Mason Street entrance foyer. Proceeds from the annual book sale are used to fund new books, materials and programs for the library's children's department.

Notable Michigan author to visit Charlevoix library Wednesday

The Charlevoix Public Library announced that Scott Peters, author of "Making Waves: Michigan's Boat Building Industry" will host an evening of boat history and a book signing at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, June 15, at the library.

Peters is visiting the library as part of the Library of Michigan's 2016 "Michigan Notable Authors Tour." This year, several authors whose engaging works were chosen as 2016 Michigan Notable Books selections will visit nearly 50 libraries throughout the state.

In his book, Peters tells readers that Michigan will always be known as the automobile capital of the world, but the Great Lakes State boasts a similarly rich heritage in the development of boat building in America. By the late 19th century, Michigan had emerged as the industry's hub, drawing together the most talented designers, builders and engine makers to produce some of the fastest and most innovative boats ever created. Peters explores this intriguing story of people, processes and products of an industry that evolved in Michigan but would change boating across the world.

Within decades, gifted Michigan entrepreneurs like Christopher Columbus Smith, John L. Hacker and Gar Wood had established some of the nation's top boat brands and brought the prospect of boat ownership within reach for American consumers from all ranges of income. More than just revolutionizing recreational boating, Michigan boat builders also left their mark on history—from developing the speedy runabouts favored by illicit rum-runners during the Prohibition era to creating the landing craft that carried Allied forces to shores in Europe and the Pacific in World War II.

Scott Peters was born and raised in Flint, and graduated from the University of Michigan - Flint with a degree in history. He received a Master's Degree in history and museum studies from Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio, and interned at the Great Lakes Historical Society. He has written articles on maritime subjects for Michigan History and other journals.

"It's a literary treat to have Scott Peters in our community, sharing his work with our friends and neighbors in such an open, accessible way," said Linda Adams, director of the library. "Michigan is home to some of the best writers and storytellers found anywhere in the country. An author of Scott Peter's caliber, in our library, sharing his knowledge of Michigan's boat building history will make it an evening to remember."

Michigan Notable

Books is designed to promote reading and raise awareness of Michigan's literary heritage. The program annually selects 20 of the most outstanding books published in that year—titles that are reflective of Michigan's diverse ethnic, historical, literary and cultural experience.

"This year's Michigan Notable Books delve into wonderfully diverse topics and offer something of interest for just about everyone," said Randy Riley, state librarian. "The tour offers the opportunity for book enthusiasts in many corners of the state to join in the conversation about what constitutes great writing and to hear from some of the Great Lakes region's most beloved authors."

Charlevoix Circle of Arts to host En plein air event

The Charlevoix Circle of Arts will host a painting experience that will join regional artists with patrons in the plein-air phenomenon that is sweeping Northern Michigan beginning at 8 a.m., on June 18.

Artists arrive at the Circle of Arts to have blank canvases stamped, are treated to coffee provided by That French Place, and set off for a day of plein air painting. Chasing the Light is the phrase coined that describes the controlled panic that ensues as artists capture the magic that is Northern Michigan before the trailing light is swallowed by shadows rendering their original composition obsolete.

The French phrase "en plein air" means in the open air, a manner of painting that was brought to light by a few progressive thinkers in the 19th century. John Constable had a notion to bypass the formulas taught in the academies at the time, and sought the truth in painting outdoors with direct observation of nature.

figure from life. Bloom Floral Design will have a flower stand in place to sell flowers or to be used as the painted subject. Pigs Eat'n' Ribs will be on hand for those needing sustenance while enjoying the day. From 6-8 p.m. Chris Martin, a local favorite will play a variety of music, including songs from Willie Nelson, Jimmy Buffett, oldies and everything in between.

If patrons are interested in observing the painting process, look up. Each artist will be presented with a balloon to tie to their easel so that they may be easily spotted. A balloon will lead you to an artist. If you are interested in purchasing a painting to preserve what transpired throughout that particular day, a wet paint sale begins at 6 p.m. at the Circle of Arts.

The paint out is a juried affair, with juror Doug Melvin, retired head of the art department at North Central Michigan College. Melvin is a seasoned plein air painter and part of the history of art that is Northern Michigan. Awards will be presented at the beginning of the evening. Prizes will be awarded to the artists. Award sponsors are Art and Joyce Herbert, Mason and Lynne Rosenthal and Bob and Anna Rita Barron. In addition, Edith Pair of Tour Michigan, Inc. In collaboration with Boyne Valley Equine will have a horse and carriage available for tours of the Earl Young Mushroom Houses.

Chasing the Light, Plein Air Paint Out combines many of the things that make life in Northern Michigan spectacular.

Farmers Market profile:

Beijo de Chocolat = 'kiss' of chocolate

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

Beijo de Chocolat is a new comer to Charlevoix's Farmers Market this year. The word "beijo" is "kiss" in Brazilian, and "chocolat" is "chocolate" in French. Laura Case is owner and operator of this delicious enterprise.

In her former career, in a totally unrelated field, Case was an executive producer for several major broadcasting networks in all over the country.

"I finally decided that I would rather be working at something that would make people happy," she said, "instead of continuing to pass along the depressing, bad news that increasingly inundates our airwaves."

Originally from Troy, Mich., Case graduated from Michigan State University and went on to pursue her career in broadcast journalism for 20 years. She first worked as an executive producer at WKBD in Detroit, then at WKRC in Cincinnati, Ohio. She eventually moved to Chicago where she worked for CBS as a producer and writer, attended a French pastry school and became a full-fledged pastry chef.

"I continued working for six years in broadcasting while perfecting my craft as a chocolatier," she said. "I was in my late 30s and it was a major career change for me. It was the best thing I ever did."

Case opened a small store in Chicago which for six of seven years, was voted one of the best chocolate shops in the United States by the International Chocolate Salon (ICS). She now brings her award winning chocolates to Michigan.

"I am so happy to be back in Michigan," she said.

Case's mother summers in Harbor Springs where her grandfather was once a harbor master. She has a sister in Boyne City at whose home she has temporarily set up her chocolate making business, operating under a cottage license until she secures a commercial license and can expand her operation. In the meantime, Case is the smiling face behind the array of tantalizing chocolates, traditional Brazilian Brigadelos (Cases' are coated in Belgian chocolate, rather than chocolate sprinkles to extend their shelf life), toffee, and Rocky Road bars she brings to the farmers markets in Charlevoix and Boyne City.

Walloon Lake Winery, a unique setting for more than wine

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

Walloon Lake Winery, located between Charlevoix and Petoskey on Intertown Road just off Highway 13, is situated near the shore of Walloon Lake and is one of the nine members included in Northwest Michigan's Bay View Wine Trail.

Connor Dennis, of Dennis Farms Vineyard and Winery has been a member of the Trail Board for two years. The whole family participates in all the operations of the winery and tasting room. Walloon Lake Winery is featuring tastes of their wines at the Charlevoix Farmers Market in East Park each Thursday and at the Boyne City's Farmers Market on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

in the Dennis family for over 60 years," Dennis said.

Dennis Farms began as a small dairy operation (owned by grandparents Bob and Dorothy, who later made it a produce farm with greenhouses). Their son Tim and his wife, Marta, both teachers, took over the farm as a retirement project. Five years ago, in 2012, they learned about cold hardy grapes that could be grown in Northern Michigan and in 2013 Dennis Farms Vineyards was born with a first planting of these cold hardy varieties of grapes. The couple's son Connor, also a former teacher, his wife Kristen, and Connor's sister Britta, who has a business degree from Columbia College Chicago, are now part of the family business.

"Four years ago we began by planting grapes and are looking forward to the first harvest this fall. This will be our third summer as a winery; we have been making our wines from juice and grapes sourced off the farm, the majority (67 percent) from Michigan," Dennis said. "We are a modern winery focused on creating the very best wines made from cold hardy grape varieties. We believe in close family and friends, lively conversations, and great tasting wines."

The first Marquette grapes were planted in 2013. The goal was to expand to 15 acres of grapes with seven varieties: Marquette, Frontenac, Petite Pearl and Sabrevois for red wines, Frontenac Gris, Frontenac Blanc, and La Crescent for white wine.

The winery's unique tasting room was built by Tim and Connor over the past year. Most of the wood for it was harvested and milled from the farm on site. The red pine harvested for the beams in the building were planted by Tim and Marta in 1973. The stone for the fireplace also came from the farm.

"Presently there are two buildings," Dennis said. "Our unique one of a kind tasting room and a 2000 square-foot winery, where all our wines are produced, bottled, and labeled. We have many events happening this summer at the winery such as, Pilates and Yoga in the vines, "DI Arte & Vino" (paint and sip) with Martina Hahn under the tent, and starting June 23, every Thursday night we are hosting "Music Meets Canvas" featuring the talents of artist Martina Hahn and musician Michelle Chenard and local food trucks. We already have five weddings booked for this season. People like the farm atmosphere our winery offers."

Hospital opening 'Wellness Workshop' downtown Charlevoix

CHARLEVOIX — Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital has expanded its health and wellness outreach to downtown Charlevoix. With the opening of their Wellness Workshop at 411 Bridge St. on Monday, June 13. Located in the heart of Charlevoix, they will be providing a wide variety of healthy activities and classes to the community.

"This initiative supports Munson Healthcare's fundamental purpose — to improve the health and wellness of our local communities," said Lyn Jenks, CEO of Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital. "From the moment you step in the door, we want you to feel at home."

The Wellness Workshop will provide low-cost health screenings and exciting wellness activities such as yoga, diabetes education, support groups, strength training, smoking cessation, nutrition counseling, healthy living workshops, natural childbirth classes, fitness opportunities and much more. The majority of the offerings are free to the public while others have a small charge, and monthly offerings will change and grow as needed.

"We're not an Urgent Care facility or an Emergency Room; both of those are just up the road at our main hospital on Lake Shore Drive," said Kathy Jacobsen, Director of Community Health Education and the driving force behind the creation of the Workshop. "Instead, the Wellness Workshop is going to be jam packed with health and wellness information, activities and classes for all ages."

The opening of the Wellness Workshop strives to strengthen the already strong partnership the hospital has with the community by collaborating with local businesses and organizations such as the farmers' market, area restaurants, and local chefs, providing healthy cooking classes, sharing space with the Charlevoix Courier, and more. All of these efforts contribute to keeping downtown Charlevoix vibrant year-round.

Remarks by Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Mike Ritter followed as he introduced the commencement speaker Kristin Burmeister.

Burmeister told graduates that when they walk across the stage, their lives will be forever changed.

She told the students they should be very proud of their accomplishments.

"Make no mistake about it, this is a significant point in your life," she said.

Senior scholars Nathan Lindfors and Kylee Scholten speak during commencement on June 5.

Pushing the podium aside, Burmeister delivered her address without notes, moving about the stage while walking the class through different stories. Each of her stories ended with a message for the class of 2016 that encompassed ideals of passion, perseverance and bravery.

"It is my hope for you, class of 2016, that as you journey in this world you are bold enough to follow your passions, strong enough to persevere, when there are problems and that you are brave enough to ask for help, not because you need it, but because you deserve it," Burmeister said.

studies and humanities teacher and has worked with college board officials for the past 16 years in various capacities. Currently, her year-long AP U.S. government and politics course is an introduction to political science course for college-level students with the College Board approving the syllabus used in her class.

Conway, who was selected for the program based on recommendations from her peers, as well as her enthusiasm and commitment to the program will begin her appointment prior to school letting out for the summer. School officials are also excited about her new appointment and made note of its importance within the district.

"Being selected for this is an incredible academic honor," said Charlevoix Public Schools district superintendent, Mike Ritter.

But for Conway, this is just another way in which she can help her students.

"All of this new knowledge I will bring back to my classroom to teach to my students refined writing skills, anticipation of rubric points, and deeper levels of cognitive processing," Conway said.

The work that Conway will take part in will ensure that the 300,000 students that take these exams receive the scores they deserve and the educators that use the exams are trained properly on how to read and administer them.

The College Board, and teachers that are a part of their accredited AP program, help students prepare for college through high school AP courses and overseeing SAT and PSAT testing.

Founded in 1900, the College Board was created to expand access to higher education. Today, the membership association is made up of over 6,000 of the world's leading educational institutions. Each year, the organization helps more than seven million students prepare for a successful transition to college through programs and services in college readiness and college success.

Armchair Theatre presents Under Milk Wood

The Charlevoix Circle of Arts Armchair Theatre will present "Under Milk Wood" by Dylan Thomas, at 8:30 p.m. on Sunday, June 12, at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts.

First broadcasted in 1954 by the BBC, with Richard Burton as narrator, this famous play still resonates today with hilarity, wit and poignant stories of longing and love.

The performance will take the audience on a walking tour over a day in Llareggub, a small Welsh fishing village, and one by one the residents speak. The audience will meet the restlessly tossing and turning Captain Cat, flighty Polly Garter, the remorselessly house proud Mrs. Ogmore-Pritchard and her two dead husbands, poor Mog

Edwards, the "draper mad with love," the baleful Mr. Pugh silently considering how to poison his wife, butchers selling man-chops, and bakers wives who have to borrow loaves of bread from the neighbors because the baker forgot to bake the bread.

Wyman told council members.

The grant application is for $1.5 million. The project also will include runway lighting replacement and sidewalk removal in the runway protection zone, of Runway 9-27, said city manager Mark Heydlauff. The FAA will pay 90 percent of the costs and the Michigan Department of Transportation will pay 5 percent, which is 95 percent of the project. The city will match 5 percent, which is about $70,000.

City officials awarded the construction bid to Elmer's Crane and Dozer, Inc.

Construction is expected to begin in September for a three-week period and grooving will occur at night in October, which will cause night runway closures, Heydlauff said.

"There should be no impact to Beaver Island during the night closures," Heydlauff said. "We have spoke with those airport operators and they understand the upcoming schedule. Exact dates of the project will be announced as we get closer to project construction."

"Dale with his part in obtaining the Harsha House for the Society, construction of its museum addition, plus numerous other projects which helped us save our history."

Dave and Nancy Fowler remember Boss for his determination and the ability to get things done.

"He was known as Mr. Petunia, but he also was Mr. Get It Done," said Dave Fowler. "He was full of ideas and wasn't afraid to see them through."

Nancy Fowler, who worked with Dale on the Charlevoix the Beautiful concept, said, "Dale was instrumental" in getting the process and funds raised to plant petunias.

"He and I were both part of Charlevoix the Beautiful," Nancy said. "Dale came up with idea to sell license plates that his wife designed door-to-door to raise money for the flowers. I remember that I took my second-grader with me because I thought they would buy it faster from a child than an adult."

Dale Boss would travel around the state with the Venetian Festival queens and their courts to participate in other community parades to promote Charlevoix.

That was the first money campaign we did together for the petunias."

Another fundraising idea that Boss had to help the school raise money for band uniforms was considered impossible by some, Nancy said.

"Dale had the idea to bring the Medusa Challenger through the channel and dock it downtown before Memorial weekend and charge admission to tour the big boat, she said. "Most folks said you won't get that boat through the channel, but Dale was determined to do this and we did it. We earned enough money to buy all the band uniforms."

Boss and his wife were often seen driving around town in a 1919 Model T Ford, or their classic 1973 red Cadillac convertible. Boss would park along side of the curb near the intersection of Clinton and Bridge streets where he would conduct his curbside chats with anyone who would be willing to stop and talk.

"He was absolutely fearless when it came to talking with people," Bo said. "He had the gift of gab. Dad even kept a jar of Grey Poupon in his dash for the people who come up and ask 'Pardon me, would you have any Grey Poupon?' and Dad would respond, 'But of course, would you like some?' Dad was prepared for anything."

Boss may be considered Mr. Charlevoix, Mr. Santa or Mr. Petunia, but to his family he was a man of faith and father who expressed the importance of family.

"He loved his family, Jesus and he loved Charlevoix," said daughter, Diane Priess. "Those three things were important to him, especially family. It was one of his biggest joys to sit on the front porch at the end of the day discussing the day's events and other happenings. Dad loved to tell stories about people and places in Charlevoix."

Priess said one story he father loved to share later in life was when he needed an operation to remove a mass from his kidney.

He was scheduled to be in Traverse City for an appointment, but he got a call from the hospital informing him of a cancellation and he was asked if he would be able to come to Traverse City that day for the operation.

"He never thought about the distance or if it was practical to make it there quickly," Priess said. "He told them he would be there in a half-hour."

Boss hopped in the car and took off; after he was unable reach his daughter by phone to make his appointment.

During the trip Charlevoix City Police and the state police pulled Boss over for speeding.

"He told us his comment to the police that pulled him over was to 'write it up quick officer, because I have to get going to be at the hospital for an operation,'" Priess said. "Then he told us in Acme these teenagers driving this car looked over at him and asked him 'You want to drag Pops?' When the light turned green dad smoked the tires and left them in the dust. When he gets to Munson in Traverse he tells the doctors and nurses everything that happened to him on his way down and had them all laughing before he went in for his operation."

Rayders end season of rapid improvement with district final loss

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

EAST JORDAN — 2015 was one of the toughest seasons in Charlevoix softball history, a four-win campaign filled with mercy-rule losses.

But as the 2016 season came to an end in the district final on Friday in East Jordan, that rough spot is looking more like the first stages of a program on the rise.

The Rayders improved to 14 wins in 2016 and reached the final with a thrilling 6-5 win over Harbor Springs in the district semifinal, taking the lead thanks to a three-run third inning, adding a crucial insurance run in the fourth when Solomon scored on a wild pitch, and holding off a late Rams rally.

Herriman struck out six in a complete game outing to earn the win, Solomon and Nichole Hare each chipped in a RBI single, Kara Simpson drove in a run and McKenna Ebert added two hits for the Late home run ends Charlevoix season in district semifinal action

EAST JORDAN — In single-elimination baseball, a team's fortunes can turn on one crack of the bat.

That was true on Friday in East Jordan, as Harbor Springs ended Charlevoix's season in the district semifinals.

The game was a 4-3 thriller, with the Rams overcoming a 3-1 deficit in the bottom of the fifth inning thanks to a three-run home run from Erich Hibbler.

"We had a shot to get out of the fifth inning, and we made two errors defensively that kept the inning alive," Charlevoix coach Nick Vuil-lemot said. "That's how baseball works, if you give good teams extra chances they'll make you pay, and credit to (Hibbler), he got a big hit for them to take advantage of our mistakes."

Kyle Hebner added a RBI single as well for the Rams, and Cosens chipped in two hits, including a double.

Chris Erdleben went the distance, struck out four, walked one and gave up four hits to earn the win for Harbor Springs, which advanced to face Boyne City in the district final and took a 7-0 loss.

Hunter Cox led Charlevoix offensively with a two-run single and took the loss on Personal bests help Charlevoix bring home three all-state honors

CHARLEVOIX — The goal in track and field is to peak at the state final, and put forth your best performance of the year.

It took nothing less than that to make the podium at a tough Division 3 state final on Saturday in Comstock Park, and competitors from Charlevoix and Boyne City were up to the challenge.

The Rayder boys put together their best times of the season in both relays they entered, and junior Jared McLean set a personal best in the 400 dash as well to earn medals in all three events.

Charlevoix's 3,200 relay team of Jon Plschner, Noah Carson, David Ritter and Luke Buday beat their previous best time of the season by nine seconds, finishing in 8:10.19 to take sixth and earn all-state honors against a brutally fast field in the event.

"We felt confident coming in that we could get to 8:10 or under if everyone ran their best, and that's exactly what happened," Charlevoix coach Doug Drenth said. "We were right in the mix with the leaders from the start to the final lap, and I'm just so proud of the effort of our guys to really go for it and try and finish as high as possible."

The Rayder 1,600 relay team of Buday, Carson, Danny Noel, and McLean also took sixth to earn all-state honors, running a season best time of 3:29.02 to displace four teams from the fastest heat and make the podium.

"Even though we weren't seeded in the fastest heat, we felt like we were capable of running a time that's usually good enough for a medal," Drenth said. "Our first three legs ran between 52 and 53 seconds, and that put us in a good position handing the baton to Jared."

"We feel like if Jared gets the baton anywhere near the lead, we're in good shape, because of how fast he is and how hard

Rayders fall to rival Rams in final

HARBOR SPRINGS — 10 years after their most recent title, Harbor Springs is once again a Division 4 district champion, winning a 4-0 final over rival Charlevoix on their home field on Friday night. Harbor Springs won back-to-back district championships in 2006-07, winning 2-1 games over Charlevoix in each year.

On Friday, the Rams dominated possession throughout the halves, using a 2-0 lead to pickup second half steam and carve out space for their team on a championship banner.

The Rayders close out a 12-7-1 season under head coach Pete Scholten, who saw his team physically get beat out by the Rams on the night.

"They beat us to the ball, and they were just bigger and stronger," said Scholten. "They're a very physical team and Aaron has them playing really well. They've really improved from the last time we saw them to now."

"They're a way better team and hats off to them. It's unfortunate to go out this way, but I feel we got beat by a really good team."

The physicality showed early on in the contest, as Harbor senior Zoey Bezilla needed help off the field within the game's first few minutes.

Just seconds later though, a free kick by Harbor's Haley Rushing sailed into the Rayder box and found the foot of junior Olivia Huhn-Tarvudd, who gave the Rams a 1-0 lead just inside 36 minutes on the clock.

A few minutes later, Huhn-Tarvudd would be helped off herself.

DREW KOCHANNY/COURIER

Charlevoix senior Kyle Scholten works the ball down during the first half of Friday's district championship in Harbor Springs.

The physicality continued on each side, leading up to when both Bezilla and Huhn-Tarvudd found their back to the field and set Harbor up with a 2-0 lead.

Bezilla sent the ball into the Rayder box, where Huhn-Tarvudd once again finished on Charlevoix keeper, Emily Hinkley.

The game stood at 2-0 at the half and up until Elena Espoel worked her way through Charlevoix traffic to the left of the Rayder net, before turning on a beautifully bended ball into the top right corner to make it a 3-0 game.

Harbor then finished off the Rayders with a fourth goal to seal the win inside 10 minutes to play, with Rushing knocking in a deflection past a diving Hinkley.

Harbor Spring keeper Izzy Gracy earned the shutout win in goal.

McLean added an individual all-state honor to his relay finish by taking fifth in the 400 dash, cutting a second off his regional time to finish in 50.47 and move up from the 14th seed and into the top 8.

On the girls side, Charlevoix ran personal bests in both the 3,200 and 1,600 relays, although it didn't bring home any all-state honors.

The Rayder team of Michelle Bollini, Mackenzie O'Leary, Katia Mousseau and Lukla Witthoeft took 19th in the 3,200 relay with a season-best time of 10:17.17, and the team of Bollini, Isabel Hess, O'Leary and Izzy Witthoeft finished 20th in the 1,600 relay with a time of 4:20.06 as well.

Bollini also finished 19th (5:31.45) in the 1,600 run for the Rayders a night after playing in a district soccer final for Charlevoix.

Next season should be even stronger for both squads, as all state finals qualifiers besides Jon Pls-underclassmen and will return next season.

"We lose two tough runners in Plschner and Boss, so we're going to have a big hole to fill in our 3,200 relay," Drenth said. "Our guys were joking with Jared after the meet that he's going to have to start practicing his 800s this offseason.

"But overall, we've got a tremendous amount returning on both sides, and based on what we were able to accomplish this year, both (Charlevoix coach Nick) Barnum and I are really excited about the possibilities for next season."

Scholten will lose just three seniors from his program, which include Kelsey Engstrom, Sophie Herboldsheimer and his daughter, Kylee Scholten.

"We're young, we've only got three seniors, so we've got some talented kids coming back," said Scholten. "Kelsey, unfortunately that she had that injury. Her stats are really good, and really good with only three years. I'm gonna miss how hard she goes to the ball. We're going to miss Kylee's big long crosses from the outside and Sophie, we're going to miss her big left kick that we've enjoyed over the years. All three are great, positive people."

HARBOR SPRINGS

When its players are connecting with each other, the Charlevoix girls soccer team is as dangerous as any.

That was the lesson of Wednesday's district semifinal match between the Rayders and Boyer City in Harbor Springs, as Charlevoix scored three goals in under a minute to turn a competitive 2-0 game into a 6-0 victory.

Taking a 1-0 lead into halftime, Charlevoix jumped out to a 2-0 edge on a strike from the edge of the box by Kylee Scholten seven minutes into the second half.

That forced the Ramblers to get more aggressive offensively, and created an opportunity that the Rayders wouldn't let slip away.

"Down 2-0, whether you lose by two goals or five goals, it's still a loss, so we took a risk and pushed up to try and get a goal to get back in the game," Boyer City coach Ed Fantozzi said. "We almost got one, but credit to Charlevoix, they took advantage of that shift in formation to find scoring opportunities themselves."

Kelsey Engstrom opened the floodgates with 21 minutes to play, finishing off a deep run to put Charlevoix up 3-0.

20 seconds later, Scholten got her second goal, a bending, twisting shot from the sideline, that made it 4-0, and just seconds after that, Rachel Nesburg got a long cross from Raigan Novotny and finished her run with a goal to make it 5-0 Charlevoix.

JAMES GENSTERBLUM/COURIER

Charlevoix's Abbey Scholten (8) celebrates her goal with teammates Payton Novotny (24) and Rachel Nesburg (12) during the Rayders' 6-0 district semifinal win over Boyer City on Wednesday.

Engstrom would add another score with 12 minutes to play to make it five second-half goals for Charlevoix.

"It was just better communication and better execution on our passes," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "In the first half, we weren't executing well and we were getting outworked and beaten to balls by Boyer City, so it was important for us to come out and play with more focus in the second half, and we did that."

The bright spot in the first half for Charlevoix was sophomore Abbey Scholten's first career goal, a chip over the Boyer City goalie's head and into the top right corner to give the Rayders the lead.

But the Ramblers otherwise kept Charlevoix in check with strong defensive play of their own, and gave themselves a chance heading into the locker room at halftime.

"Our league is the best it's been in a while and the improvement at Boyer City has a lot to do with that," Scholten said. "Ed is doing a great job and they're a tough out for everyone on their schedule."

"They worked hard and showed more effort than us at points tonight, which was a really good wake-up call for our squad in the second half and moving forward."

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

LUDINGTON — In highly competitive boys golf regional meets, one stroke can mean the difference between a state meet berth and an early off-season.

That was literally the case for Boyne City's Griffin Powers and Charlevoix's Matt Good and Tyler Fuchs at Thursday's Division 3 regional at Lakeside Links, as all three came up just short of making the state finals as an individual.

Powers shot an 80, good for a tie for fifth overall at the event, and good enough to earn him a spot in a three-way playoff for the final two individual state qualifying berths.

But the junior couldn't beat out Adam Jeannotte of Cheboygan and Marcus Hall of Howard City-Tri County in that playoff, finishing fourth among individual qualifiers for three spots.

Keaton Ingalls of Shelby shot a 79 to take the top individual qualifying spot.

Both Good and Fuchs also had strong rounds for Charlevoix, each tying for eighth place with an 81, but finished a stroke behind Powers, Jeannotte and Hall for a spot in the playoff to decide state finals berths.

"Tyler shot a career-low round today, and was just solid throughout, especially on his chips and putts," Charlevoix coach Keith Grunch said. "Matt also was very consistent throughout the round and it was nice to see him bounce back strong from the district last week."

The Rayders came up just short of making the state final in the team race as well.

Charlevoix tied with Cheboygan for fourth place as a team with a score of 347, six strokes behind Houghton Lake for the third and final team qualifying spot to the Division 3 final at Forest Akers East next Friday and Saturday, June 10-11.

Big Rapids won the regional title with a round of 325 and Montague finished runner-up with a 329 to qualify as well.

Montana Thompson shot a 92 and Collin Turkleson a 93 for the Rayders, who also got a round of 96 from Tanner Drost on the day.

"We knew we had a shot coming in, and that it was going to be close but that our scores put us around where we needed to be," Grunch said. "I thought we played a solid round but it was just a little bit short of the mark to make the cut."

Powers, Good and Fuchs, all juniors, will get another chance at the state final as seniors next year, as will Turkleson, also a junior.

"We've got three strong golfers coming back, and a pretty strong junior varsity team as well, so we should be a solid team again next year," Grunch said. "Overall, it was a great season, and we had a lot of fun as a group getting up and down these courses and getting better as the season rolled on."

BATTLE

Rayders, who finish the season 14-19.

In the district final, Solomon had the lone hit for the Rayders in an 11-1 loss to Boyne City as the Ramblers clinched their fourth straight district crown.

Herriman took the loss, with Shelby Wurst pitching in relief.

"It was a great year for our team, going from four wins last year to 14, and cutting our errors and mistakes way down," Charlevoix coach Tom Mielke said. "We were a young team but it was great to see everyone working hard and taking pride in what they did day in and day out."

"I'm proud of the effort and of how far this team has come from beginning to end."

That upward trend should continue in 2017, as the Rayders graduate only one senior and the bulk of their roster is freshmen and sophomores who will have a year of experience under their belt.

The one loss is significant though, as Charlevoix bids farewell to Herriman, the team's top pitcher and one of its best hitters over the last three seasons.

"We've got a big hole to fill with our top pitcher, Skylar, graduating, but everyone else is back and the future looks bright," Mielke said. "Our big concern right now is preparing Shelby, our No. 2 pitcher, to step into that No. 1 role, and to find a new No. 2 pitcher."

"We've got a girl on the junior varsity who's developing fast for us as an arm, and that should help us a lot next season."

the mound, striking out six and giving up four hits, and Christian Matye, Austin Putman, Jordan Adkins and Alex Kleiber each added a single.

Charlevoix finishes the season 14-16-1, and loses eight seniors, including everyday starters Austin Putman, Jake Seger, Alex Kleiber, Jordan Adkins and Cox.

"I told them after the game that my biggest regret is only getting to coach this senior class one year, because they had a lot of talent and did everything you could ask of them," Vuillemot said. "The good news is I think their work ethic and leadership has rubbed off on the grades below them, and that will continue to help us moving forward."

That core includes juniors Christian Matye and Brad Klinger, likely candidates to be captains next year, and a trio of strong sophomores in Jake Cox, Garrett Seese and Colin Smith who saw the field as every-day players.

"That core of guys got a lot of great experience this season and grew as players, both on the field in terms of skill and off the field learning from our senior leaders," Vuillemot said. "We're looking for them to take the next step next season and really lead by example as we're going to be pretty young again next year."

Kids need regular, unstructured outdoor play for healthy childhood development.
Studies show that kids who play outside:

- Are healthier physically and mentally. Are good problem-solvers.
- Are more cooperative with others. Do better in school.
- Are more creative. Have higher self-esteem.
- Feel connected to nature. Have good self-discipline.
- Feel more capable & confident. Are more cooperative with others.
- Are tomorrow's conservation leaders.

National Get Outdoors Day, June 11, is a new annual event to encourage healthy, active, outdoor fun. Participating partners from across the nation will offer opportunities for families to experience traditional and non-traditional types of outdoor activities. Prime goals of the day are reaching first time visitors to public lands and reconnecting our youth to the great outdoors.

On a local level, grassroots group Getting Kids Outdoors in Northern Michigan, works collaboratively with businesses & individuals to promote programs & resources in our area that will help kids spend more time outdoors. GKO believes that every child in northern Michigan should have access, opportunities & encouragement to play outdoors & connect with nature for their physical, emotional & educational well being. The goal is to give children more outdoor playtime, fewer scheduled activities supervised by adults & less time with TV, video games, computers & other electronic media.

Ministry gives back to community through memory of volunteer

NICOLE SEYMOUR
Special to the Courier

CHARLEVOIX — Born out of the want to help others in the area, Kari's Closet in Charlevoix is giving back to the community through the memory of one of its volunteers.

The nonprofit, a part of the F.A.C.E.S. ministry within the Community Reformed Church, was created by Karlee Philp to help families get started in foster and adoptive care. With many of these children coming to such programs with very little personal belongings, Philp's saw the need of providing children and families with clothing and other goods that are looking to adopt or foster children. Due to this the F.A.C.E.S. ministry created a "closet" as a way for the families that are fostering or adopting a child to provide them with clothing that is age and size appropriate for the child, as well as provide them with other essentials. Soon after its inception, Kris Way and her daughter Kari Way joined forces with Philp and began working on outreach to the community and building donations to program.

While the three worked closely together on building the ministry and communicating the need for such a program, tragedy struck the Way family when Kari was killed in a boating accident in 2015. However, the Way family and Philp's knew they had to continue on in the program and didn't let Kari's passing keep them from moving forward with her vision.

The Charlevoix Conservation Easement Committee comprised of residents who consider themselves friends of Mount McSaubia Recreation Area and Lake Michigan Beach park are out collecting signatures to place a referendum on the November ballot asking city residents if they would like to see more protections for the two city parks.

Group goes door-to-door to put easement issue on ballot

CHARLEVOIX — A newly formed group has begun a door-to-door petition drive in an effort to put the issue of a conservation easement at Mount McSaubia Recreation Area on the November ballot citywide.

The group calls itself "Charlevoix Conservation Easement Committee," and is seeking signatures to protect the environmental and outdoor recreation values of Mount McSaubia Recreation Area and Lake Michigan Beach. The group is comprised of city residents who consider themselves friends of the park and want to see it protected. John Campbell, president of Site Planning Development, Inc., who formed the committee with other city residents, decided to go directly to the people after city council members rescinded the resolution to put the measure on the ballot in November.

"The goal was to always work with the city to bring this question to city residents, but some city council members chose to not take this question to the voters," Campbell said. "We believe the people can determine the best direction for our two beloved parks."

The petition does not decide whether the parks are Food truck pilot project program starts

LONNIE ALLEN

CHARLEVOIX — City officials rolled out a pilot program last week that will bring food trucks to various locations throughout Charlevoix for the summer months.

The mobile food vendors will be assigned to different zones on city-owned property on designated days. The hours of operation depend on the day and zone the vendor is in.

"This is a unique opportunity to not only bring more food and beverage choices to Charlevoix during our busy summer season, but to get more people out to our beaches, parks, golf course and even our airport," said Mark Heydlauff, Charlevoix's city manager.

Mobile food vendors will need to apply for a permit, with a $450 mobile vending fee, provide proof of Special

New exhibit: Charlevoix history through art

CHARLEVOIX — Diaries, news clippings and personal artifacts are the traditional elements of some museums. But just in time for summer, the Charlevoix Railroad Depot museum is diving into local history through art.

"Painting the Past" is an exhibition of select artwork that represents a variety of mediums from the Charlevoix Historical Society. The artwork on display spans from the 1880s to the 1990s and is dedicated in memory of Karen Smith Lewis.

Lewis was instrumental in collecting and acquiring many of the pieces that the Charlevoix Historical Society possesses today, said Chuck Cleland, society board member.

The evening started with wine and hors d'oeuvres. Parson Farms catered the event, which featured many of chef Phil Munday's culinary specialties made with products from the farm.

Rebecca Glotfelty portrayed different artists from Charlevoix's past as she took attendees on a whirlwind tour through each of their lives and the parts they played in documenting Charlevoix's past through art.

"It's a wonderful reception," said Paul Weston as he was pointing out artwork from Rosa Nettleton from the early 1900s. "These early pen and ink pieces by her are remarkably done and in great condition."

The reception also featured a plein air art display and Wet Paint sale to help

'iTri' brings together children from all over the region

CHARLEVOIX — Northern Michigan child-athletes took part in the annual iTri Kids Triathlon on Saturday, June 11, at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool. Participants in this year's event hailed from Charlevoix, Petoskey, Boyne City and beyond, event organizers said.

The iTri boasts four different swim-bike-run courses designed to match any skill level, but this year organizers saw more children sign up for its most challenging course than previous years.

"This year we saw a major increase in the number of kids competing in our most challenging course," said Peggy DeNio, pool facilities manager. "The red course requires swimming 16 lengths of the pool, biking 5.5 miles, and running 2 miles."

Blaise Sytsma Reed was the youngest participant to complete this feat, at age 7.

The green course was new this year, which opened up the event to preschool-age children. "We had five children as young as 3-years-old participate in this course by swimming one length of the pool, biking a half mile, and sprinting 200 yards," DeNio said.

Many of the children visited the pool over the last two months to train for the event. The optional training camp helped kids learn about triathlons, build endurance, get acclimated to the courses, and simply prepare for the big day.

More than 40 volunteers helped with lap counting, transitions, and course monitoring. The event was sponsored by Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, Bogart Roofing & Siding, the Rotary Club of Charlevoix, the Charlevoix Country Club, Hoffman CPA Firm and the Charlevoix State Bank. Pool staff would like to thank all the parents, volunteers and sponsors for helping to make the iTri event a success this year, DeNio said.

"The children's safety along with making sure everyone has fun were the top priorities of all who helped with the iTri event," DeNio said.

Township corrects zoning map error

LOWME ALLEN
(231) 547-6558
allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Township Board of Trustees fixed an error on the township zoning map during its regular meeting on Monday.

The board approved the amendment to change the zoning of an approximate 7-acre parcel bounded on the north side by Carpenter Street that aligns to the south of Applewood Estates, which is owned St. Marys Cement, from Industrial to Mineral Resource District.

"The property was always owned by St. Marys Cement," said Nancy Rajewski, trustee and township planning commission member. "We are just correcting a zoning map error that occurred in 2012."

The board also amended property along the west side of Carpenter Street near the senior center from Residential-2 back to Industrial.

The official change became necessary to correct what was described as a "scrivener's error" that was detected on the township's official zoning map on display at Township Hall showing that property with a Residential zoning designation despite the fact that research showed that the zoning was changed to Industrial back in 1988. Rajewski was able to show an error occurred in the 2012 Township Zoning Map by pulling files to review those 1988 minutes from the planning commission, said Chuck Center, township supervisor.

"Nancy was very diligent in researching the issue," Center said. "She was able to find what was needed to correct the errors."

The board had to go through the amendment process because zoning maps are basically law and require board action even if they are making corrections, Center said.

"It's something we felt we needed to clean up to help avoid any future confusion or questions about it," Center said. "We just want to make sure that the zoning change that took place for that property back in the 2002 was reflected in our current zoning map."

Township board approves contract to repair tennis courts

LOWME ALLEN
(231) 547-6558
allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Township Board of Trustees approved a contract with Asphalt Maintenance Service Inc. of Charlevoix to repair township tennis courts.

The bid for $18,960 will go toward resurfacing the tennis courts, which are in such bad shape that some officials were concerned they could cost even more if they wait another season.

"The cracks will only get worse if we wait another winter," said Dave Christiansen, township trustee. "The courts are in bad shape now and repair costs could go even higher if we wait on this project."

Township Supervisor Chuck Center originally proposed waiting another season because he was not sure the tennis court repairs could be completed this season, but went with the board's recommendation to finish the courts this year.

"Dave presented a valid point of possible costs increases," Center said. "It is necessary to complete the repairs this year."

The township will use money allocated to recreation and land use to pay for the repairs, said treasurer Theda Williams after questions about paying for the courts were raised by residents.

"We do have money allocated for those repairs," Williams said. In other news, board officials approved an EMS contract with the city of Charlevoix for $22,799 and approved paying $3,000 in annual dues to the Northern Michigan Economic Alliance.

The board appointed Mike Hinkle to the Charlevoix Township Hospital Finance Board, and appointed Abbie Hart to the planning commission to fill a vacancy left by Eric Thompson, who had accepted a job out of state.

The board also set the time for its annual year-end budget meeting for 10 a.m. on Thursday, June 30.

On Guard: What lurks beneath ...

A "Pure Michigan" video opens with an aerial shot of Round Lake looking toward the channel and the big arm of Lake Charlevoix. With that familiar piano and violin tune playing softly in the background, the narrator's melodious voice tells us that "beauty is in the eye of the beholder" and that "it lives in a small town in Northern Michigan." We catch glimpses of sun soaked days on our beaches, paddle boarders in the Pine River, and the city marina filled with boaters.

The lake in the video couldn't be prettier. And the good news is that what we see is not some digitally enhanced version of real life. It simply shows the lake as it is. Charlevoix water is incredibly beautiful whether you are above it, by it, on it, or in it. Charlevoix the Beautiful is the real deal.

The bad news is that lurking below its pristine surface, are invasive plants and animals whose mere presence in our lake is deeply disturbing. The current number of exotic species in the Great Lakes exceeds 180. Some have had relatively little impact, while others including the sea lamprey, alewife, round goby, zebra and quagga mussels, Eurasian watermilfoil, spiny water flea, and the rusty crayfish have changed the aquatic ecosystem dramatically.

Alewife and lamprey problems go back decades. In the 1960s it was estimated that there were 167 billion alewives in Lake Michigan alone. Fortunately, the introduction of coho salmon significantly reduced their numbers. In a 2006 three-week species survey of Lake Charlevoix, only one lamprey and no alewives were reported among the 13,709 fish netted. However, a recent study in the inland waterway found lamprey completing their entire life cycle in Burt and Mullett lakes so there is still concern about their presence.

Zebra and quagga mussels and the Round Goby have been on the radar for a while and these invaders can attack our lake with a vengeance. A round goby was found in the St. Clair River in 1990. Twenty-two years later it was estimated that Lake Erie had a goby population of 9.9 billion. Zebra and quagga mussel populations first appeared in Lake Michigan in 1988 and 1989 respectively. Twenty-five years later, the combined total for these two invaders is estimated to be 450 trillion mussels in that lake alone.

Once an invasive species gets a foothold, they initiate a chain of events that can impact our waters for years to come, if not permanently.

If you enjoy peering off the dock or the edge of the boat and seeing all the way to the lake bottom, you can thank the Zebra and Quagga mussels. Both are filter feeders processing up to a liter of water per day. They remove phytoplankton (the basis of the lake biome) reducing the food source for the zooplankton and in turn, the perch, walleye and whitefish populations. Because a single mature female can produce up to a million eggs per year, small numbers of mussels can quickly become a big problem.

The takeaway for today is that under the right circumstances, a seemingly inconsequential plant or animal can have a major impact on our beautiful lake. Next month, we will look at where Lake Charlevoix stands with its invasive and how we can help keep our lake as healthy as possible.

Joel Van Roekel is a board member of the Lake Charlevoix Association and each month a member of the association will submit a Lake Charlevoix Association column that is intended to educate and inform residents about the watershed. For more information, visit lakecharlevoix.org.

Sharing my Charlevoix

Fishing lures and Petoskey stones line my kitchen windowsill, loons and cranes call out over the lake in my backyard ... three years ago, I was living in a suburb of southeast Michigan, taking care of my new baby son, toddler daughter, and watching my oldest son graduate from kindergarten. I never imagined my family would reside in any other region, except for the stolen long weekends, braving the stop-and-go traffic of northbound I-75.

Three years ago, my husband Jeff was transferred to Northern Michigan, and we found ourselves up-rooting our young family and finding our way through new, unfamiliar streets of Petoskey, Boyne, and Charlevoix. New faces, new stores, and a very different pace of life. It was exhilarating and slightly terrifying wrapped up in a curious determination to embrace and navigate our new waters. We ended up finding our sweet little house in Charlevoix, and this July will mark our two years living here, and three since our

Each day, my husband and I look out our back door and remind each other "We live here" in slight awe and deep appreciation. When we run errands, our kids shout out the names of lakes, rivers, cities, and love encountering all local wildlife.

I am so honored and excited to have the opportunity to share this column with my fellow residents of Charlevoix and Northern Michigan. I have loved writing since I first held a pencil in my hand, and have been so lucky to have the love and support of teachers, family, and friends. Two novels later, working on my third, I'm ready to start this new interactive journey with my new community through this column. I want to share inspiring and interesting information with you, dear neighbors. We have an amazing community, and there are so many wonderful things happening all over, all year long.

I will share my life in Charlevoix, adventures, events, and observations. I promise you all, dear neighbors, to work hard to help strengthen the already tight knit fabric of our community. One of our favorite aspects of living in this area is the old-school approach to things—that rings true for my approach to this forum. The exception to this approach is communication by social media—I have a very love/hate relationship with that form of modern technology, but I do recognize the attributes that are positive, so that is how I choose to utilize it. CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

This photo of "The Harbor, Charlevoix, Michigan" was taken by longtime local professional photographer Bob Miles in the 1930s. The view of Round Lake was, and still is, one of the most beautiful views in Northern Michigan. Peter "Don" Campbell, local shoe store owner and a friend of Bob's, used the photo as a guide for one of his oil paintings several years later. Although they worked in different media, Miles' and Campbell's love of the city and its history is evident in the works they left behind, and in their writings: the Bob Miles' Charlevoix book in 1976, and Campbell's History of Bridge Street and Harbor of Charlevoix "the Beautiful" serialized in the Charlevoix Courier in the early 1960s. His vividly colored painting brought new life to the black and white photo and new meaning to a snapshot of the community's past. In the far center background of both, the magnificent 191-foot yacht Sylvia sits at her Belvedere Club dock. To her right in the photo appears the Reomar IV, owned by summer resident R. E. Olds, founder of the Oldsmobile automobile company. Campbell deleted the Reomar when he created his interpretation of the view. Both yachts were taken for World War II duty in the early 1940s and never came back. The Sylvia was a favorite of local artists for many decades. In a large stunning watercolor done in 1994, Bob Miles' brother Lyle also thought fit to paint his memory of the palatial yacht as it traveled down the channel to Lake Michigan.

Both paintings, and many more by other local artists in various media that depict the harbor, town, and Charlevoix area are featured in the new "Painting the Past" exhibit that the Charlevoix Historical Society is hosting at the historic train depot at Depot Beach on Lake Charlevoix from June 15 through July 6. The three-week exhibit is open to the public from Wednesday through Sunday, 12 to 4 p.m. No admission fee. For more information, call (231) 547-0373 or visit the Society's website at chxhistory.com.

Local children send 'visual letters' to China

CHARLEVOIX — Thousands of Michigan kindergarten through sixth-grade children participated in the 2016 Michigan 4-H Art Exchange with China. Of those thousands, 100 pieces were selected to send to China. Artwork by Matthew Solomon (second grade), Mikayla Sharrow (fifth grade), Addison Parish (fifth grade), Joe Gaffney (second grade), and Jillian Romano (fifth grade) from St. Mary School in Charlevoix was part of that select group.

As part of the art exchange, Michigan children are asked to paint or draw "visual letters" for Chinese children their own ages.

"A visual letter is like a written letter in that both tell stories, share important ideas and feelings, and connect children regardless of where they live. However, the medium is different in that visual letters use images, written letters use words," said Leah LaVanway, Charlevoix County 4-H Coordinator.

The Michigan children's artwork sent to China will be exhibited in schools in Shandong Province. The artwork will also be featured on the Michigan 4-H China Art website 4h.msue.edu/programs/arts/china_project.

In addition to the artwork sent to China, only a certain number were allowed to be sent to Michigan State University for the selection process. Sixteen counties participated this year and sent area children's artwork selected to represent their schools and after-school groups as part of the 2016 Michigan 4-H Art Exchange. Charlevoix County students included Sarae Walper, Cheyana Spang, Jillian Gray, Micah Pawlak and Nevaeh Walper from St. Mary School in Charlevoix.

The Jaroma boys, Jack and Matthew, along with Krista Jaroma, principal Lisa Meyer and Jaroma's class were present at the ribbon cutting ceremony in front of the school where the Free Little Library has been constructed and is ready for book sharing.

Stan Martin Little Free Library installed

A Little Free Library was officially dedicated in honor of the late Stan Martin on Wednesday, June 1. A fund, established in his honor, was donated to the school by the family for this purpose.

Martin who had been a second-grade teacher for 27 years at Charlevoix Elementary School, passed away last year. His daughter, Krista Jaroma teaches second grade in the same room in which her father taught, at Charlevoix Elementary.

The Little Free Library concept is to build literacy friendly neighborhoods around the country. Children and adults may help themselves to reading material and books and are encouraged to keep it stocked by replenishing it with some of their own. The idea originated in Hudson, Wisconsin, in 2009 when Todd Bol mounted a wooden container designed to look like a school house on a post on his lawn as a tribute to his mother, who was a book lover and school teacher. Bol shared his idea with his partner, Rick Brooks, who spread the word, and the idea spread rapidly. Library owners can create their own library box, usually about the size of a doll house, or purchase one from the website.

The mission of the program is "To promote literacy and the love of reading by building free book exchanges worldwide and to build a sense of community as we share skills, creativity and wisdom across generations."

There are nearly 40,000 Little Free Library book exchanges around the world, bringing curbside literacy home and sharing millions of books annually. There are now two book exchanges in Charlevoix, one at the elementary school and KayLee Davis, summer library assistant enjoys the new tween space.

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Public Library announced a new space for tweens, ages 8-12, at the library.

"More and more students that are too young for the Teen Room and feel too old for the youth area are using the library," said Linda Adams, library director. "They come to socialize, use computers and read. We love having them here, so we created an area that was designed just for them."

The youth services staff, with assistance from designer Alyce Reisman Schneider set to work. They chose a comfortable sofa, chair and ottoman that could stand up to rigorous use. They added a Lego wall and dry erase board for building and creating. A Wii2 complete with a television screen that also will play movies was installed.

Tweens can check out Wii2 controllers and movies at the checkout desk. Graphic novels, bright colored floor pillows and games also round out the room.

The space was formerly the vending area. Over time, it was found that the machines were rarely used and also offered less than nutritious fare. By removing the vending machines, the idea for a tween space emerged. The tween area is close to staff, but offers some independence.

The project was funded by a generous grant from the Leo S. Gauthman Fund. The Charlevoix Public Library is located at 220 W. Clinton St., in Charlevoix.

Kick the habit for Father's Day

NORTHERN MICHIGAN - Father's Day is a day to celebrate dads and the important role they play in the lives of their families and children. It's also a great day to encourage men to celebrate a tobacco-free life and to support current tobacco users in their efforts to quit.

Tobacco use is the number one cause of preventable death and disease in Michigan, and nearly one in four men in Michigan still smoke cigarettes. However, research shows that seven in 10 adult cigarette smokers want to quit completely. Tobacco contains nicotine, a highly addictive drug. Most tobacco users are addicted to nicotine, which can make quitting difficult. People often need to make several quit attempts in order to be successful, but tobacco users can and do quit. In fact, today there are more former than current smokers.

"The good news is that there are resources available to help the men in our lives, and anyone who wants to live tobacco-free," said Katie Joyce, tobacco dependence prevention coordinator for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan. "The Michigan Tobacco Quitline has helped more than 100,000 Michigan residents quit tobacco. Talking to a healthcare provider and receiving support from family and friends is also very helpful."

This Father's Day, the Health Department of Northwest Michigan encourages everyone to help dads to live tobacco-free. When people stop smoking, they greatly reduce their risk for disease and early death. There are benefits to quitting at any age, and a person is never too old to quit.

Encourage dads who use tobacco to talk to their healthcare providers or to call the Michigan Tobacco Quitline at (800) QUIT-NOW or (800) 784-8669. Callers to Quitline can receive information and referral and, if qualified, can enroll in a free coaching program and even receive nicotine replacement medications to assist them in quitting. Donald George Reich: Veteran of the Month

The Veteran of the Month for June 2016 is Donald George Reich. Born Aug. 24, 1946 in East Jordan, Reich attended East Jordan Public Schools graduating in the class of 1964. While in school he was an outstanding football player, receiving many awards, and was treasurer of the East Jordan Chapter of the Future Farmers of America. After graduation, he worked at several jobs in the area, then entered a Journeyman Lineman Apprenticeship program, working for Clifton Engineering Company, Three Rivers, Michigan. On Jan. 6, 1966, Reich was inducted into the Armed Services along with 13 other men from Charlevoix County, which was the largest contingent to be drafted since World War II. He entered the United States Marine Corps receiving basic and radio operator training at Camp Pendleton, California, graduating in May 1966. He was awarded a certificate as the Outstanding Marksman of his platoon.

Reich arrived in Vietnam on Dec. 4, 1966 and was assigned to D Company, 1st Platoon, 3rd Reconnaissance Battalion, 3rd Marine Division, with Headquarters in Quanang Tri, Vietnam. On Jan. 4, 1967, being part of a seven-man patrol that was being inserted by helicopter in an area near the village of Cam Lo, they took heavy enemy fire when exiting the helicopter, and Private First Class Reich was struck and killed instantly.

His commanding officer stated "Although I only knew him about a month, I got to know him as a quiet, steady young man, who was very serious about his job. He seemed quite mature for his age. He was well liked by his fellow platoon members, and fit right in with them from the day he joined us."

Reich was the second serviceman from East Jordan to be killed in action in Vietnam. When the devastating news reached home, support from family and friends was extended to the Reich family. PFC Reich was posthumously awarded the following decorations and awards: The Military Merit Medal, The Marine Corps Gallantry Cross with Palm, The Vietnam Service Medal, The National Defense Medal, The Good Conduct Medal, The Expert Rifleman's Badge and The Purple Heart Medal. On January 4th, 1967, Private First Class Donald George Reich answered the final call and is being honored by his siblings: Brother Dale, Sisters Barbara Koerner, Sharon Roberts and his Nephew and namesake Donald George Reich.

To honor a veteran, call the program chairman at (231) 588-6067 or on Tuesdays call (231) 582-7811 between 3:30-8:30 p.m. The ceremony may be witnessed at 6:15 p.m. on the first Thursday of each month at The American Legion Post located on the corner of South Lake and Main streets in Boyne City.

Olive Pit Stop offers adventure for the taste buds

ANNE KELLY
Special to Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — For two young Bellaire entrepreneurs, it's all about olives.

Brandon Lynch and Carl Thompson have set their sights on making their farmers market business more personalized and more available throughout the area. "When we lived in Florida, we noticed that olives were a popular commodity and thought that there might be a market for them up here," Lynch said.

Lynch, originally from Florida has a culinary school background and Thompson who grew up on a farm in Bellaire has restaurant experience.

Presently the couple processes and prepackages their olives and tapenades in vacuum-sealed plastic containers for distribution to their customers.

Their goal is to become certified by the Health Department in order to serve their product out of glass containers from an olive cart at local markets and festivals. Until then they base their operation in a commercial kitchen, Center City Kitchen, in Traverse City, certified through the Department of Agriculture.

The two met in Bellaire where they presently reside with their two small children. They have pooled their expertise with a desire to grow their business and create a market for olive products in the area, beginning with farmers markets.

"We import most of our olives from California, the Kalamata's from Greece and the Spanish queens from Spain," he said. "We brine them in barrels, then either package them, stuff them or process them into tapenade. Our tapenade (the French name for capers) is made with capers, artichokes, black olives, mushrooms and some with white cannellini beans."

A specialty product is a Muffuletta tapenade, a nod to the famous Muffuletta sandwiches of New Orleans.

"This is great, mixed in with or as a garnish on hamburgers," he said. "It is made with hand-chopped capers, jalapenos, cauliflower, carrots, celery and olive oil."

Lynch and Thompson are working at their business full time either making their items for sale on Mondays and Tuesdays in Traverse City, or selling them on Wednesdays in Harbor Springs, Thursdays in Charlevoix, Fridays in Bellaire, Saturdays Boyne City and Harbor Springs, and Sundays at Brownwood.

"It's a juggling act with two small children, but we are hopeful that our olives will catch on," he said. "It will be a lot easier when we receive certification from the Health Department and can operate out of a home kitchen."

In the meantime, Lynch and Thompson will be offering their olive products at the farmer's markets, enthusiastic about bringing olives to their customer's tables.

"Anyone who sees this article can mention it and get a discount on their purchase," he added.

NOMI Style: making waves

BAY HARBOR — NOMI Style is a fundraising event benefiting the Charlevoix Area Community Pool from 11:30 a.m.-3 p.m. on Thursday, June 23, at The Lange Center at Bay Harbor Yacht Club. Previous years' fundraisers have included such affairs as barn dances to bring awareness to the need for quality care and promotion of the Charlevoix Pool.

In addition to the clothing, there also will be modeling for jewelry vendors.

"We have a large number of silent auction items, this year," said organizer Carissa Mullaney. "Items such as gift baskets from Kilwin's and American Spoon, pool passes, gift certificates from John Cross, Scovies and the Barrel Back as well as golf and spa packages from Boyne are just a few of the offerings on the auction."

Cre8tive Cupcakes comes back

ANNE KELLY
Special to Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — Visitors to the farmers market in downtown Charlevoix are surprised and pleased to find the familiar face of Alfred Soriano-Micheau in a new place. Cre8tive Cupcakes, a popular business enterprise just across Bridge Street last year, "was a stepping stone to a full-fledged pastry catering business," according to Soriano-Micheau.

"The storefront of-ten divided us from the larger event operation we hoped to create," Soriano-Micheau, in partnership with Justin Micheau, chief operating officer of Beacon Dental of Charlevoix and Gaylord, own and operate Cre8tive cupcakes in a commercial kitchen just outside town.

From there, Soriano-Micheau works his magic in creating elegant cakes and cupcakes for weddings and other special events by order.

"We aim to ensure that you and your guests experience delicious cakes that taste and look unforgettable," he said.

Though his focus has been on the many weddings and other party orders that continue to grow each year, Soriano-Micheau-Micheau still finds time to reconnect to his retail side at the Charlevoix Farmers Market each Thursday.

"I like being here at the market of Thursday," he said. "I like to see my former customers and friends made through our store last year, and it helps get more exposure for our business."

Cre8tive Cupcakes has been a community supporter since its inception, donating cakes and services to nonprofit organizations.

"This year we are doing the desserts for the Women's Resource Center Luncheon, and have also created a table for them," he said. "Last month we set up desserts for Char-Em's United Way 'Instant Wine Celler' event at the Perry Davis Hotel in Petoskey."

Most importantly, Soriano-Micheau-Micheau wants to ensure his clients, old and new, that he will be in his farmers market booth each Thursday in raise money for the Charlevoix Historical Society, said president Denise Fate.

"This event truly represents our mission of bridging our past with our future by featuring artists from our past with artists from today in the wet paint sale," Fate said. "The artists who participated in the sale have agreed to split the proceeds of the sale with us to help us continue our work in Charlevoix."

One painting by Mike Colman, which was recognized in the Painting the Past Plein Air Paint Out for best entry in the lakes, waterways, and beaches, was purchased by a gentleman from Honolulu who was visiting family in the area.

"This painting was the view I had when I was out fishing the other day," said Lee Sichter. "It was an instant connection."

The exhibit will be available for viewing from June 15 through July 6 and is open to the public from noon-4 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday.

EASEMENT

placed into a conservation easement. It simply places the question on the November ballot for Charlevoix city residents to decide if they would like to protect those parks beyond the current city charter, Campbell said.

"The petition is to let the community vote," he said. "That's all the petition does is to get the question on the ballot."

The ballot measure would ask voters if they would like to see developmental restrictions contained in a conservation easement. Conservation easements are voluntary, binding agreements that place permanent restrictions on how a property can be used to protect natural resources and open space.

Under such an easement, the city would maintain ownership of the land but is prohibited from dividing the property, conducting any commercial, industrial or mining operations, dumping, most types of construction, most tree cutting and most excavation in the Mount McSaubia Recreation Area and the Lake Michigan Beach area.

Those restrictions would not apply to current uses and structures in portions of the Mount McSaubia Recreation Area and Lake Michigan Beach Park. For example, the water treatment plant, parking areas, ski areas, skating pond, and other uses in existence would remain the same, Campbell said.

"Everything that people enjoy now at Lake Michigan Beach and Mount McSaubia will continue," Campbell said. "What this question does is ask voters to keep the rest of the park protected from any other changes."

Campbell said the petition has been well received by city residents.

"There is overwhelming support from the people in Charlevoix to let residents vote on this in the fall," Campbell said. "We are well on our way to having this on the November ballot."

The group also is planning to host multiple public forums in the fall to inform voters and answer questions about the ballot measure.

"These public hearings are for the voters to ask questions and receive information about the ballot question," Campbell said. "We want the voters to make an educated choice when they go to the polls. We have nothing to hide or an agenda. Whether you support our initiative, or not, the planned forums hopefully will answer your questions."

Petitioners for the city need 336 registered voter signatures to the city clerk's office by 4 p.m. on Aug. 2.

asked what was close to her heart by many in the community," said her mother, Kris Way. "We knew Kari was passionate about children and the area and it was through this grieving process, and in wanting to honor all she had done, that the community really stepped forward with their donations and helped us to continue to build the program."

It was with this that "Kari's Closet" was created and named after Way to honor her and her passion.

Jennifer Aenis, chair of Kari's Closet, contributes much of the work done in the past to Way and Philp's and notes the need to continue on with Kari's vision and passion with helping children.

"Kari had a huge heart and she loved children," Aenis said. "The closet was in existence before her passing and it was determined that it was the best way to honor her was to name the closet after her and continue on with her work."

The ministry has done just that with placing Kari's actual signature and artwork as part of the logo design.

Keeping their focus on helping children in need, Aenis explained the goal of the program is to provide resources for foster and adoptive families.

"Many times the switchover for children to a new family/home is quick and there is limited time for the family to find the clothing, baby items and toiletries that they need," Aenis said.

With the F.A.C.E.S. ministry working in several other areas of outreach regarding fostering and adopting children, the program continues to grow within Northern Michigan and helps many area families provide much needed essentials to the children in their care. Donations such as children's clothing, shoes, outdoor gear, baby items, toys, and toiletries are continually in need for families using Kari's Closet.

Those wishing to volunteer, donate items, or get in touch with Aenis and learn more about the F.A.C.E.S. program are encouraged to visit their website at faces-ministry.com/karis-closet/ or their Facebook page at facebook.com/facescommunityministry. Donations can be made at any time, with Kari's Closet open on Sunday's from 9-9:30 a.m. Special arrangements for families also can be made outside of normal operation hours.

Application-approved food truck purveyors will be allowed to operate on city-owned property downtown on Thursdays at Lake Michigan Beach and Ferry Beach, and on any day of the week at Depot Beach, the Charlevoix Golf Club and Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

"Our restaurant and community representatives had many meetings this winter to balance our needs and welcome new purveyors," Heydlauff said. "It's exciting to think of residents and visitors patronizing all our establishments and discovering ways we can encourage a vibrant town with lots of options."

Councilman Leon Perron, who thought food trucks would be a tough issue when first proposed, is pleased to see the program come to fruition.

"I think the food trucks will bring convenience to a lot of people this summer," Perron said. "They can help feed people more quickly during the very busy peak summer and busy festival times in Charlevoix."

There is a one-page application and fee to participate, but spaces are limited.

Businesses interested in participating in this pilot food truck program or for more information can call Heydlauff at (231) 547-3270.

Carrying on for courage

Navy vet to run in honor of Maj. Douglas E. Sloan at this year's Charlevoix Marathon

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 • jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Nearly 10 years after his death while fighting with the U.S. armed forces in Afghanistan, Charlevoix's native Maj. Douglas E. Sloan's courage and bravery still resonate.

The Charlevoix Marathon, coming up on June 25, will provide even more proof of that fact, as retired Navy veteran Sid Busch, a South Carolina native, is coming to Charlevoix to run in Sloan's honor.

Busch, who spent 26 years serving his country in the U.S. Navy, has been running marathons in honor of soldiers who died serving in Iraq and Afghanistan since 2002, having now completed over 90 marathons across the country and many more smaller races.

Carrying an American flag while he runs and showcasing a photo of the soldier he's running for on the shirt on his back, Busch views his runs as a way to draw attention to the bravery and sacrifices of men and women in the armed forces.

"I've just never felt like these men and women get enough attention and credit for the sacrifices they make for our country," Busch said. "The media focuses on celebrities, and it feels like the veterans who lost their lives in the service just kind of get shoved to the side."

"If I can go out there and draw some attention to these amazing people and their courage by running, that's all I can ask for."

Sloan, a 1985 graduate of Charlevoix High School, is one such veteran, whose story drew national attention following his death in combat on Oct. 31, 2006 while serving in the U.S. Army during the war in Afghanistan.

A four-sport athlete at Charlevoix who earned a bachelor's degree from Western Michigan University, Sloan went on to become a Major and a decorated officer in the military.

His many commendations while serving his country include the Combat and Expert Infantry Badges, the Ranger Tab, the Senior Parachutist Badge, the Air Assault Badge, the Bronze Star and the Tenth Mountain Combat Patch.

Following his death, Sloan also was awarded the Purple Heart and was named to the Order of Saint Maurice for his contributions to the U.S. Army's infantry, an award that has been given to less than 2,000 captains in the history of the U.S. Military.

Sloan was the Company Commander of Battle Company, 1st Battalion, 32nd Infantry at the time of his death.

Debate over clubs adds intrigue to 11th annual Hickory Open

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 • jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — A prestigious tournament that has the status of a Major, a field full of previous champions hungry for another chance to stand atop the podium, and a rules controversy that's been brewing since last year.

There's no doubt that heading into its 11th edition, the Belvedere Hickory Open hosted this Friday and Saturday by Belvedere Golf Club has all the ingredients for an exciting and fascinating tournament.

The Hickory Open will bring over fifty of North America's top hickory golfers from 15 states and Canada to Charlevoix to battle for the third of four Hickory Major titles in this season's Hickory Championship Series.

Hickory golfers are a throwback to the game as it was before the 1940s, playing with authentic pre-1935 hickory shafted golf clubs and approved reproductions and dressed in period-appropriate apparel that includes knickers, ties and jackets.

The Society of Hickory Golfers, a national organization devoted to celebrating and promoting the hickory game of the 1910s to 1930s, hosts a tour that the Belvedere Hickory Open is a part of in order to decide a yearly champion.

As one of the four Hickory Majors, along with events in Pinehurst, North Carolina; Birmingham, Alabama and the season-ending U.S. Hickory Open in Green Lake Wisconsin, the Belvedere Hickory Open helps to determine that champion, awarding points by finish in a manner similar to the PGA Tour's Fed Ex Cup.

As befitting a tournament of such importance and scale on the Hickory scene, the field for this year's edition is littered with past champions and title contenders, including the last three golfers to lift the crown at the Belvedere Hickory Open.

Reigning champion Cliff Martin, a Los Angeles, California native, is back to defend his 2015 title after shooting a one-under 143 to win last year.

Camping it up

The Charlevoix football team hosted its annual summer camp on June 13-15 as the beginning of its summer training regimen to prepare for the upcoming season in August. Attendees went over position work, offensive and defensive concepts, and conditioning drills. Charlevoix just missed out on the playoffs last season at 5-4 and are looking to make a return trip to the postseason this year in a new division of the NMFL with several new opponents on the schedule.

MHSAA action

Charlevoix High School played host to major MHSAA tournament games this past Saturday, welcoming Division 3 baseball and softball teams from across Northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula for regional action. Local squad Boyne City did well to make the finals in both sports, with the baseball team beating Monton 10-1 and the softball team beating T.C. St. Francis 6-4 in semifinal action. But the ultimate honor belonged to Gladstone, who downed the Ramblers 7-2 in baseball and 6-1 in softball to claim regional crowns and advance to the quarterfinals in both sports.

Defending champion Cliff Martin is returning to the 2016 Belvedere Hickory Open scheduled for this Friday at Saturday at the Belvedere Golf Club.

INTRIGUE

2014 champion Ernie Ernst of Neenah, Wisconsin is also in the field and looking to return to the top, while Belvedere head pro Dennis "Marty" Joy II looks to win a record third title after claiming the crown in 2012 and 2013.

Two other top contenders are also past Hickory Open winners, Chuck McMullin and Dick Weller, have already claimed hickory tournament titles in this calendar year and are hungry for more.

Adding to the intrigue in this year's tournament is a controversy that began in the 2015 season and has been simmering ever since over the use of modern reproductions of Hickory clubs in tournaments.

Prior to reproductions being allowed, all clubs used on the tour were repared and restored vintage clubs dating back to the pre-1935 era, but the introduction of cheaper modern reproductions that benefit from more recently introduced production techniques has both enlarged the field of players and created a great deal of controversy.

On the one hand are traditionalists, who argue that reproductions undermine the spirit of Hickory golf with designs that don't match the original standards, and also give players who use them an unfair advantage over players using the original clubs.

In the 2015 Belvedere event, seven of the 10 age division winners or runner-ups played with reproduction clubs and appeared to enjoy a noticeable advantage in both accuracy and distance over originals.

On the other hand, fans of reproductions argue that the reduced costs involved in acquiring clubs allow for more golfers to get involved, growing Hickory golf and preventing the sport from stagnating and slowly dwindling away as original clubs become unusable.

The 2016 Belvedere Hickory Open is attempting to answer the dispute by creating separate divisions for modern and authentic clubs at this year's tournament, testing the waters for a solution that might be embraced by the larger Society of Hickory Golfers if it proves to work out.

Players arrived on Thursday and got a practice round in on the Belvedere, with opening round play beginning today, Friday June 17 at 9 a.m. and the final round teeing off on Saturday, June 18 at 9 a.m. Spectators are invited to walk the course and take in the competition free of charge.

Friday and Saturday's weather are predicted to be in the 80s and clear with a low chance of rain; ideal conditions for the Hickory Open and for spectators.

HONOR

"It's a great honor for him and we're really pleased that people still remember our son and are inspired by his life," Sloan's mother, Wendy Sloan said. "He believed very strongly in what he did and took great pride in serving our country, and I'm happy that his legacy carries on to this day."

When Busch found out about Sloan through a friend on Facebook, he committed immediately to the marathon and began preparing for the 17 hour drive to Michigan to run in the race.

"Honestly, I didn't even know where Charlevoix was when I first learned about Maj. Sloan, but I'm never going to say no to honoring a brave soldier who lost his life in the service of our country," Busch said. "No matter how far the drive, it's always worth it to give back."

The Charlevoix Marathon, now in its 10th year, was named one of the top marathons in the U.S. by serious running magazine and draws nearly 2,000 competitors to Charlevoix to compete in the race and its half-marathon, 10K and 5K side races as well.

Online registration has already closed for the 2016 event, but runners can still sign up for the race in person on Friday, June 24 from 12-6 p.m. at Bridge Street Park in Charlevoix.

The cost is $100 for the marathon, $80 for the half-marathon, $60 for the 10K and $40 for the 5K.

The marathon starts at 6:30 a.m. on Saturday, June 25, with the half marathon starting at 7 a.m., and the 10K and 5K at 7:15 a.m.

Hayes Township Board

Robert (Bob) Jess seeks trustee position

LONNIE ALLEN

(231) 547-6558 • allen@charlevoixcourier.com

This election cycle offers plenty of choices for the two trustee positions in Hayes Township. There are six candidates who filed under the Republican party, which makes for an interesting August primary for voters.

One of the new faces this year is 44-year-old Robert (Bob) Jess, who has lived in the township for more than 35 years and is the owner of Freshwater Church, a design build firm, he said.

"We specialize in design, build and property management," Jess said.

Voters in Hayes Township will see familiar names on the ballot in the August primary election as well as several new candidates seeking to serve the township in various capacities.

One new face seeking to be a choice for voters in November as trustee is 45-year-old Matt Cunningham. He has been a township resident for 43 years and co-owner of R. B. Lyons Marine Construction located in Hayes Township, where he has worked for the last 25 years. He said that growing up in Hayes Township was a "point of pride and part of

After the blaze: Country club works to restore power, phone

JORDAN SPENCE

CHARLEVOIX — The aftermath of a fire that caused major damage at the Charlevoix Country Club over the weekend continues to complicate operations as club officials say they are now focusing on restoring power, phone and internet service to the building.

Alana Haley, marketing manager at the Charlevoix Country Club, said it is too soon to know if and when the restaurant portion of the clubhouse building, which is where the fire started and was largely destroyed in the blaze on Saturday, June 18, will be rebuilt.

"(We're) taking stock of damage right now," she said. "Those are answers I just don't have."

Charlevoix Township Fire Chief Dan Thorp said the fire started from the broiler in the kitchen and spread from there.

"The flames shot out from the underneath broiler and got up into the attic," he said. "I'm still waiting to hear from the fire investigator for the insurance company, waiting for the adjuster to take a look at it to see if the building has to come to down or if they can re-build with what they have."

LONNIE ALLEN/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Firefighters work to get the fire under control at the Charlevoix Country Club clubhouse on June 18.

Haley said people can still golf. But in order to schedule tee times, at least for the immediate future, people will need to email requests to info@chxcountryclub.com. She said for this week the golf staff will be located in the Snack Shack behind this clubhouse.

"We're working with Charter to have all incoming calls forwarded to a cell phone," she said.

Anything to do with the restaurant can't be used in any way, she added.

"We don't know how long it's (repairs) going to take because the fire happened on the weekend we haven't had lawyers, fire inspection until (Monday) morning," she said.

Charlevoix Fitness was also unaffected by the fire, should be up and running by generator in the next few days.

"We hope to be up and running on a generator in the next few days," she said. "We're quickly putting things on social media as we can. We have a temporary office, working out of Chamber of Commerce for the rest of the week."

The event barn is also unaffected, she said. Any scheduled events for the barn will continue as planned.

"We have a very active membership," she said.

City OKs EMS incentive pay despite scheduling questions

LONNIE ALLEN

(231) 547-6558 • allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The city of Charlevoix hopes an increase in pay will help fill vacant EMS shifts that are a recurring problem for the city.

Charlevoix City Council approved the pay increase request from Charlevoix Police and Fire chief Gerard Doan after he explained to council members about the shortage and difficulties surrounding the EMS schedule.

"We just don't have the pool of people in this area to draw from," Doan said.

A shortage of EMS workers has never been an issue before because there used to be plenty of people available, Doan said.

"People used to fight for shifts, but today that is not the case," Doan said.

The EMS incentive pay policy is directed toward holidays and worked.

Holidays include the following:

— New Year's Eve 6 p.m.-6 a.m.

— New Year's Day 6 a.m.-6 p.m.

— Good Friday

— Memorial Day

— Fourth of July

— Venetian Friday

— Venetian Saturday

— Labor Day

— Thanksgiving Day and the day after — Christmas Eve and Christ-

special events to ensure that the primary and secondary ambulance shifts are covered. Holiday pay will be double time for 12-hour standby shifts and any calls

Special event pay will be straight hourly wage plus an additional $50 dollar stipend for that special event.

Charlevoix EMS coordinator Bob Roloff hopes the increase will be an enough encouragement to fill primary and stand by EMS shifts on weekends and holidays this summer.

"It's really hard to staff for holidays," Roloff said. "People are with their families and got other things to do. We are trying to get an incentive out there to help fill these shifts."

Though city council unanimously approved the increase, council members Shirley Gibson and Shane Cole also would like to look at how the scheduling is handled to see if improvements could be made.

"I know there are issues area wide with EMS staffing," Cole said. "Charlevoix is not the lone wolf on this, but we also need to look at how scheduling is handled."

A possible rotation with staff being scheduled on certain days of the week could also help create more incentive for people to fill shifts, Cole said.

"We need to look at this more, but why not look at a rotation for each person so each person sees a different shift including weekends and holiday," Cole said.

Gibson supports the idea of paying EMS staff what they deserve, but she also would like to see a scheduling policy that gives each person a shot at the shift they request.

"I have nothing against paying our EMS staff more money," Gibson said. "They work hard and deserve it, but I am not sure what exactly is going on. I hear most EMS staff are not getting on the schedule for whatever reason."

Charlevoix student receives plaque, cash award for essay

LANSING — Elisabeth Petrosky, 14, who is an eighth-grade student at Charlevoix Middle School, recently returned from her Lansing trip as one of the top 10 statewide winners in the America and Me Essay Contest. Petrosky received an engraved plaque and a cash award during the awards ceremonies on May 25, in Lansing.

Eighth-graders from across the state participated in the 47th annual contest, sponsored by Farm Bureau Insurance.

Elisabeth's essay on the topic "My Personal Michigan Hero," earned fourth place in the state out of nearly 4,000 essays submitted by students from nearly 400 Michigan schools. Elisabeth is the daughter of Tim and Tricia Petrosky of Charlevoix.

The award winners started out aboard the Michigan Princess Riverboat, where they were welcomed by employees of Farm Bureau Insurance. Then, they proceeded to the state capitol building where they met with Lt. Gov. Brian Calley in the governor's ceremonial room and received certificates of recognition signed by both the lieutenant governor and Gov. Rick Snyder. Then it was off to the Richard Austin Building where they met with Mike Senyko, chief of staff to the Secretary of State, who presented a congratulatory letter to each winner on behalf of that office.

The statewide winners also were featured guests at a Lansing Lugnuts minor league baseball game at Cooley Law School Stadium, where they were honored on the field in pre-game ceremonies.

The festivities continued at Grand River Park aboard the Michigan Princess Riverboat where the winners attended an awards luncheon. Jim Robinson, CEO of Farm Bureau Insurance, presented each winner with a plaque and a cash award of $1,000.

"I feel very good about the future of Michigan when I see what fantastic young people we have in this state," Robinson told the winners. "You are an inspiration, and all of us at Farm Bureau Insurance are very proud of you."

Open to any eighth-grade student in Michigan, the America and Me essay contest was developed in 1968 to encourage Michigan youth to explore their roles in America's future. As sponsor of the contest, Farm Bureau Insurance has earned 11 national awards from the Freedom's Foundation at Valley Forge.

Plans are moving forward to re-introduce arctic grayling to Michigan.

Arctic grayling to be reintroduced to Michigan

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources, in partnership with the Little River Band of Ottawa Indians, has announced a proposed initiative that aims to bring back the arctic grayling, an extirpated species, to the state.

The proposed initiative, announced at a Natural Resources Commission meeting in Gaylord, will seek to establish self-sustaining populations of arctic grayling throughout its historical range. The initiative is a proposed objective in the DNR's 2017 Inland Trout Management Plan, which currently is being drafted.

The arctic grayling is a native and iconic fish species in Michigan. Slate blue in color, they have a sail-like dorsal fin and were virtually the only native stream salmonid in the Lower Peninsula. In the lower 48 states, they are native only to Michigan and Montana, further cementing their legendary status.

Michigan's native grayling population died off nearly a century ago due to statewide logging efforts of the 1800s, over-fishing and general habitat destruction.

Although gone for an extensive period of time, reintroduction efforts have occurred with the most recent one coming 30 years ago. While unsuccessful at that time, lessons were learned and significant strides have been made to establish a better strategy to move this initiative forward.

"For this arctic grayling initiative to work, we will seek to rely heavily on partnerships and collaboration from across the state," said DNR Fisheries Division Chief Jim Dexter. "Over the next several years we will be taking methodical steps to move toward reintroduction of this historically and culturally significant species."

These steps will include identifying interest and abilities of the partners, collecting baseline data, initiating the building of broodstock, and stocking efforts. The Manistee River watershed, once known as a premier grayling river, will be the first targeted location for reintroduction.

The DNR will work closely with partners as the proposed arctic grayling initiative moves forward. The Little River Band, located in Manistee County, has for several years been engaged in extensive research for potential grayling reintroduction.

"This is going to be 'Michigan's Arctic Grayling Initiative,'" said Dexter. "Collaboration and partnerships will be crucial to its success."

This effort also will lean heavily on recent scientific research in Michigan, as well as the successes Montana has achieved in re-establishing stable Arctic grayling populations.

Man loses bet, required to swim Round Lake

LOUISE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558
lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — You know that phrase, "If such-and-such happens, I'll do what?" Well, Dennis Halverson made a bet, lost the bet and now he will swim Round Lake to fulfill his word.

Halverson was tasked with selling raffle tickets to raise money for the Rotary International initiative to help eradicate polio worldwide. Though it was a worthy cause, he wasn't having much luck selling the raffle tickets.

"We were expected by the District to sell them all and it wasn't looking good," Halverson said. "So I said, 'If we sell all these I will swim Round Lake.' I still had a handful and I thought it was a pretty safe bet."

But he underestimated one his fellow Rotarians, Mary Kurtz, who wrote a check for the balance of tickets.

"I was caught on the spot," he said. "I made a statement and promise that I had to keep because the club was not going to forget that promise."

To fulfill his word Halverson would have to jump through some hoops before he could jump into the lake and swim to shore.

Round Lake required state and federal permits before he could swim because it is a state and federal connected waterway, he said.

It took several months to acquire the proper permits and now that Halverson and his helpers have those in hand he can accomplish the task he said he would do. At 6 a.m. on Saturday, June 25, Halverson will enter Round Lake at the Burns Street dock and swim to the A-dock in the City Marina.

"Nobody had any idea the requirements it took to swim Round Lake," Halverson said. "All winter the Rotary Club thought I was stalling."

Halverson may not be the first person to swim Round Lake in recent years, but he believes he is the first person to get all the required permits.

"I would guess I am the first to do this officially because who would do all this work just to swim a lake for a bet," he said.

What is important to you in your newspaper?

I would like to know what makes the local newspaper important to its readers and community.

I believe this newspaper has a strong, intensely local focus and holds a special place in the hearts of its readers and its writers.

To continue on the tradition of the Charlevoix Courier as a community newspaper earlier this year members of this community and myself began meeting together. This Charlevoix Courier focus group has set a goal to bring ideas from a wide spectrum of people that have very different views of the local paper. Each of them represents this community and each of them has something to bring to the table.

I want to take a moment to introduce our readers to the people who have volunteered their time in this endeavor: Amanda Wilkin, Mary Kurtz, Adam Engleman, Scott Woody, Dennis Halverson, Emily Anderson, Bob Jess, Trent Kutsch, Angel Welke, Dennis Kusina, Mary Eveleigh, and Phoebe Gohs. Please take time to thank them and give them suggestions on what the Courier is doing well, what the Courier could do better and what the Courier is missing while covering this community.

We are listening to our focus group and this community, by offering each elected official opportunities to submit guest commentary on issues important to their constituents. The Courier also will implement a new Editorial Advisory Board, which will consist of four people from our community who will meet once a month with myself to shape editorials. I will share more on this topic at a later date.

Here at the Courier, others and myself work hard to provide our readers with a detailed glimpse into the city and its residents, events and happenings, and we do so with joy and as members of the community ourselves.

I take pride in the fact that together we provide this community information that is not always readily available on a mobile touch screen or click of a mouse. Each of us take our jobs seriously and personally strive to offer the kinds of material our community readers hope to find in their "home-town" paper.

I constantly work with my colleagues in Petoskey at our sister newspaper the News-Review to seek and discover new and exciting things to share with you, our readers.

Your continued support of our weekly endeavor is one that all of us take seriously. I could not continue to provide insight and announcements, features and news, without the backing of Charlevoix and its residents as well as those outside of our immediate neighborhood who continue to turn our pages.

Some believe the future of newspapers is bleak with the availability of news electronically; however, I cannot help but believe there are many like me who enjoy the feel of paper in our hands and the turning of the pages as we catch up on what is going on in our town. I pledge that the Courier will strive to continue as a source of your local information that cannot be found elsewhere. It is my goal that those who help me cover this community will remain a welcome addition to your weekly lives and a source of information. I seek your continued input in what we can do better and will remain, for better or worse, your newspaper.

You can still file, suspend, even with Social Security law changes

You probably heard that changes in the law now affect the way you file for certain benefits. These changes place limits on when voluntary suspension and reinstatement can begin for you and your family members who might also be entitled to benefits on that record. This is not the demise of "file and suspend." It's still one of your best tools for boosting your Social Security benefit after you reach your full retirement age.

The Bipartisan Budget Act of 2015 made changes to the Social Security claims filed by married couples. The law affected an unintended loophole primarily used by married couples to gain more money.

If you're full retirement age or older and apply for Social Security retirement benefits, you can suspend your benefits for any amount of time up to age 70. You may do this to earn "delayed retirement credits," which result in a higher benefit payment when you turn 70 or when you request reinstatement of benefits, whichever comes first.

Under the new law, when you submit a request to suspend your benefits to earn delayed retirement credits on or after April 30, 2016, you will no longer be able to receive spouse's or widow(er)'s benefits during this voluntary delay period. In addition, if you suspend your benefit, any benefits payable to your spouse and children on your record (except for a divorced spouse) will also be suspended for the same time period. There is an exception. A request for voluntary suspension will not suspend a divorced spouse's benefit. Also, your divorced spouse can receive benefits on your record during this voluntary delay period.

Remember, you can still plan and make the most of your retirement benefit by filing and suspending. These new rules don't prevent you from doing what's best for you and your family. We have a wealth of retirement information at socialsecurity.gov/planners/retire.

LETTER to the editor

Animal mistreatment makes an impression on children

Editor:

Almost every year, a circus group called Circus Pages visits Petoskey. What you probably don't know is, yes their lions and tigers are very beautiful in fur description, but I, myself, have witnessed them mistreating their animals when I was only 3 years old, and I have never gone back to their show. I believe the way they keep them in cages too small for their body sizes is cruel. I am disappointed that the city of Petoskey is permitting this show to return. Watching animals being hurt is never entertaining for young children, 10-year-olds like me, teenagers or even adults, and I hope in the future (city of Petoskey) will reconsider allowing them to return.

Thank you for your time,

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

When people went into what is now the Weatheravane Inn a century ago, this was one of the sights that met their eyes, the large room where the Argo Milling Company's finished flour was bagged and stacked to await shipment. The light shining in beside the man at left is coming through one of the loading doors. Behind him, tall stacks of full flour sacks await loading onto schooners pulled up to the channel revetment before a dock was built. They were carried by crewmen who walked them across planks laid from the embankment onto the boat's gunwales. The Argo mill started as the Rifenburg Milling Company in 1885, then became the Charlevoix Roller Mills after a change of ownership, and finally was incorporated after yet another change as the Argo Milling Company on Dec. 1, 1903. At peak capacity, the very successful grist mill could transform one full train car load of grain into 60 barrels of fine flour per day. There also were subsidiary mills in East Jordan and Central Lake. As the Charlevoix Sentinel newspaper said on Oct. 12, 1898, "Business men can do nothing more effective in the building up of their town than by encouraging its home flouring mill." The Argo mill in Charlevoix lasted until 1953 when Earl Young bought both the business and building to make way for the Weatheravane. He took down the top three of the four stories, removed all the corrugated metal cladding, saved many of the thick maple interior structural beams as both support and decoration for his new venture, and retained the bottom story plus the street level flooring of the second story. Diners today can puzzle over the unique notching found in both the upright and horizontal beams on both levels, reminders of the old grey grist mill that dominated the northwest corner of the channel bridge for almost eight decades.

Foundation awards trade school scholarships

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix County students planning to enter trade schools and collegiate programs this fall are feeling the support of the community as the Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently awarded more than $200,000 in scholarships to help support their post secondary educational endeavors. In total, 145 scholarships were awarded to area graduates from special funds held by the community foundation. Each fund has been established by local citizens or groups to honor family members, civic leaders, educators and others who valued the benefits of a quality education.

Over the past 24 years, the Community Foundation has awarded merit scholarships to outstanding local students.

Those scholarships have supported students entering the skilled trades, community colleges and 4-year colleges and universities. These students have demonstrated their eagerness to succeed beyond high school and have shown promise in their work ethic and in their academic achievement. In total, more than $2.4 million has been awarded in scholarships since the community foundation was established in 1992.

The Community Foundation now holds 268 different funds, 65 of which are designated for scholarships. Established by local citizens, the community foundation serves as a charitable resource for the entire county, and has distributed grants and scholarships totaling nearly $20 million. For more

Maple Table event to benefit farm programs

Martha Wagbo Farm & Education Center in East Jordan will once again transform into a "pop-up" temporary restaurant called the Maple Table, serving food that celebrates the seasons of Northern Michigan. It will open its doors to the eating public with an early summer brunch menu that is part classic, part au courant, part experiment in home-cooking with what's locally available.

Attendees will get a meal and Martha Wagbo Farm & Education Center will get funds to continue and expand community programs. In addition, it will share a portion of the proceeds with Share the Harvest program at Providence Farm in Central Lake. Ryan and Andrea Romeyn of Providence farm work with Good Samaritan Family Services in Ellsworth to provide organic farm shares and bulk vegetables to the Good Samaritan Food Pantry.

The event is scheduled from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, June 25-26. For more information, call (231) 536-0333 or email info@wagbo.org or visit Facebook to RSVP.

Charlevoix Historical Society announces upcoming program

The Charlevoix Historical Society is presenting a program titled "Practical Art: Artifacts and Design from the Charlevoix Historical Society" at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, June 28, at the Depot on Depot Beach.

The Society's museum Curator of Collections Jacob Thomas will investigate why the classic Victorian Queen Anne-style Harsha House at 103 State St., built in 1891, looks the way it does and how it reflects the world in which it was created. Then he will turn his attention to the interior where three restored and fully furnished parlors reflect an upscale turn-of-the-19th century sensibility.

Working with exemplary artifacts from the Society's collection, including several that will be on display the night of the program, Thomas will explore how form and function went hand in hand. He will explain how every artifact is a product of its time, no matter how exotic, even perplexing. It might look today, and how beauty and history can be found in even the most common household item.

Admission is free to Charlevoix Historical Society members. A $5 donation is suggested for non-members, or any donations are appreciated.

For more information, call (231) 547-0373.

Last public forum for Charlevoix Library set for June 28

The Charlevoix Public Library has conducted a strategic planning process during the spring of 2016 that continues through the summer. The final forum will be from 6:30-7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, June 28, in the community room. The session is free and open to the public.

The Board of Trustees have hired Kimberly Bolen and Associates, an organization known for its understanding of library services and expertise on future library trends. Their goal is to help libraries survive and thrive in an environment of constant change.

Strategic planning looks at collections and services that are currently offered, evaluates how effective they've been and identifies collections and services for the future. The first part of the process is look at library statistics and data from the community.

"The next step is to ask the community what they think," said Linda Adams, library director.

In the spring, the library held eleven open forums and focus groups.

They had input from more than 100 students, teachers, parents and seniors.

"In this last open forum we are especially interested in the needs of our seasonal residents," Adams said. "In this session the public will learn what the future of public libraries could look like and we will ask for your ideas on what this library should do to move forward."

Rob Cullin and Kimberly Bolen will facilitate the session. Should residents have comments or ideas that they want to share, this is the time. The information gathered in the community forums and from the survey will help the planning team define future goals and the methods used to meet those goals.

Another way to share ideas or to comment is to complete the online survey at tinyurl.com/ChsLibrary.

"Once your voices are heard, the library will look at our community's strengths and weaknesses to help define opportunities for growth and collaboration," Adams said.

"The Charlevoix Public Library prides itself on being a leader of library services in Northern Michigan. We set a standard when we opened this facility in 2006. As we enter our tenth year in this facility, we look forward to hearing what you think. We will continue to listen to your needs, provide the collections and services you want, and be the "living room" of the community."

The Charlevoix Public Library is located at 220 W. Clinton St., in Charlevoix. For more information, call (231) 237-7340.

New playground going in at library

CHARLEVOIX — In a nod to the history of the site, the library Board of Trustees approved a plan to add a small play lot to the northeast corner of the library property. Installation is expected to be done in July.

"We're excited to add an outdoor play area to the amenities offered at the library. As a former school site, there was always a playground here. Now as a library, and as the living room of the community, we will once again hear the sounds of children playing outside," said the director of the library, Linda Adams.

There is a strong link between all types of play and literacy, Adams said. "Play is the highest form of research," she said. "That's really what the library's youth programs are all about — opportunities to play with ideas and materials in order to learn and grow. For children, we believe physical play provides opportunities to engage with other children, form friendships and develop language skills."

When parents of young children were asked in recent strategic planning open forums about their interest in an outside play area at the library, they responded with a resounding, "Yes." Children learn with both their mind and body and early childhood is an important time for learning motor skills. Connecting movement with verbal learning will help children develop cognitive skills as well.

The playground and landscaping is fully funded by a grant from an anonymous donor. It is designed for children ages 2 to 12 years old. It was designed and will be installed by Penchura, L.L.C. in July. Penchura, a Michigan Corporation founded in 2006 and established by Eric Sheffer, a professional engineer with more than 20 years of experience. His team is comprised of park and recreation professionals with more than 50 years combined experience in the industry. Penchura, is known for providing customers with the highest quality products and service beyond their expectations.

The equipment will be provided by Landscape Structures, Inc., of Delano, Minnesota. This premier provider of innovative park and playground equipment is committed to creating inspiring play experiences for children, while honoring the environment. The company has designed, manufactured and installed more than 75,000 playgrounds worldwide.

This play lot will be considered a community resource where the library will provide a safe place for children to play, and where parents and caregivers watch over their children. The library will maintain the structure, and as a government entity, is protected with governmental immunity for liability issues. The city of Charlevoix has reviewed the plans and given zoning approval.

"We want children and caregivers to stay, have a picnic, and enjoy the outdoor facilities. In time, we hope to add outdoor play options to our ever growing line-up of youth activities," Adams said.

The library thanks the donors who had the vision and means to make this project a reality. The library's mission is to "provide inspiration, information and education for the community."

The Charlevoix Public Library is located at 220 W. Clinton St., in Charlevoix. For more information, visit charlevoixlibrary.org.

United Way announces renewed strategy focus

The board of directors and staff at the United Way announced their upcoming primary focus based on a report that is the culmination of more than a year spent in strategy work to define how best to advance their mission.

It draws on reflections by the staff and board about how effective they have been at creating desired outcomes in the communities of Charlevoix and Emmet counties, on proven models being used by thriving United Way chapters around the country, and on the insights and expertise of hundreds of local partners who helped answer the key question: What kind of United Way does this community want and need?

The organization will continue to work within three key areas of education, income and health, but with a strong focus on young children from birth to 8 years old, as well as supporting ALICE, a multi-state effort by the organization to shed light on people and families in need. Efforts to stabilize families and support ALICE require a multi-pronged approach. As such, Char-Em United Way's strategy includes three connected elements: successful kids, stable families and connected communities.

Successful Kids invests in and works with partners that support student success in young children to focus on access to quality preschool and early literacy.

Stable Families advocates for and promotes increasing access to and use of the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC), and financial literacy. It collaborates with municipalities and other stakeholders in supporting the creation of stable, affordable housing, providing security for families and children. It also provides resources for basic needs such as utilities and food, creating a safety net.

Connected Communities encourages and promotes volunteerism, seeking to engage all people — including elders, veterans, the disabled — in supporting the community. Connected Communities seeks to work collaboratively with community partners to fund innovative programs to reduce costly medical response (emergency room) and achieve greater health outcomes for children with chronic disease. It supports individuals with special needs through community integration and skill building.

Safe, strong families and successful children will create the future the United Way envisions. And the newest members of the Board of Directors are excited to bring this vision to reality.

"We are very pleased to welcome these new board members as they join us," says Joel Schraw, president of the board and principle in Schraw and Associates. "They augment an already strong and conscientious board. Over the past year, our nominating committee has reviewed the strengths and gaps in our current membership and targeted a number of areas for recruitment. These new members bring a diversity of experience and representation of various sectors of our donor and community base."

The newest members of the Char-Em United Way board will be starting in June; Susan Reed, of McLaren Northern Michigan will be joining the team taking Theresa Green's seat, and Hyang-sook (Sookle) Ostrander of Rasmussen, Teller, O'Neil, & Christman, PC, replaces Doug Buck as his term ends. Other recent additions to the board include Bruce Herard, Deloitte, Dave Groaty, Dunn & Bradstreet, and Vicky Ulrich, of the Department of Health and Human Services.

Lisa Hoyt, membership director at the Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce; Sarah George, marketing specialist with Encore Financial Group; and Charlie Metevia, vice president at Charlevoix State Bank were brought on last year.

Char-Em United Way will start its 2016-2017 fundraising campaign in September, pushing toward a goal of $425,000 needed to support local organizations working to create a stronger community. To learn more, call Lorraine Manary, executive director at (231) 487-1006 or contact by email at info@charemunitedway.org.

Aten Place summer season starting

The 22nd season of Concerts in the Barn at Aten Place will open with Minnesota based singer-songwriter Reina del Cid. The concert will begin at 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, June 25, at the Aten Place Barn 03492 Old Mackinaw Trail, Boyne Falls.

Del Cid, who developed a devoted online following as a solo artist, teamed up with musicians Toni Lindgren, Zach Schmidt and Andrew Foreman to develop a sophisticated sound with broad appeal. Their following is a mixed crowd of jam-heads, college students and white haired intellectuals.

In 2012, Reina del Cid began a weekly residency at the Amsterdam Bar and Hall in downtown St. Paul where she played with her band every week for nearly two years. Del Cid, an introverted bookworm, used this regular stage to lay down the blueprints for what would become her characteristic self-effacing stage banter. Flash forward three years to 2016 and the band has emerged from the pressure cooker of more than 300 shows in over two years into what has become a more exciting, tighter, bolder and more sophisticated style and form. Del Cid has also blossomed into an authentic storyteller with a kaleidoscope of onstage charm.

Tickets may be purchased the evening of the show when doors open at 6 p.m.

Aten Place is located one-half mile south of Cherry Hill Road on Old Mackinaw Trail in Boyne Falls. Aten Place is a non-profit endeavor, and no food or beverage is sold on the premises. Many patrons bring snacks and desserts to share at intermission. There also is a covered picnic pavilion for those who wish to come early and enjoy the grounds and peaceful setting.

Farmers market profile:

Harwood Gold: 'Living the sweet life for five generations'

AMBER KILLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

Since 1898, the Parson family has been in the syrup-making business on their centennial farm on Parsons Road about 10 miles south of Charlevoix. Now the Parsons are in the fifth generation, doing what they do best, turning the sap from the maple trees surrounding Charlevoix's Harwood Lake into pure maple syrup.

Harwood Gold syrup is still their main product, although last year, the business saw an expansion into other made-with-maple syrup products like ketchup, barbeque sauce, Sriracha sauce, chutney, mustards and bourbon-infused maple syrup.

"The sap starts running in April or May each spring," said Amber (Parsons) Munday, the face of Harwood Gold at the farmer's market.

This liquid "gold" is the heart of their business. The syrup is lighter at first, then dark, later, when the sugar content is higher. The bourbon-infused syrup is produced by using bourbon barrels from Grand Traverse Distillery in the production process. During the winter months the business turns to wholesale selling of the syrup and related products produced in their specialty kitchen, on the web.

Amber and her Australian husband, Phillip, officially took over the Harwood Gold business in June of 2015, after apprenticing for a year. The couple met in the produce section of Oleson's in Charlevoix.

"We were fighting over the limes," she said. "He was grabbing them all. That was our romantic beginning. Then we got together and moved to Australia for three years. We came back to get married on the farm and now have a little boy, six months old."

The Munday's are enthusiastic about expanding into other products. Phillip is a chef who specializes in artisan breads and Australian meat pies: leek-portabella, cabernet-braised beef brisket with or without portabella, and a vegetarian lentil portabella.

are presently looking into a space for a café in Charlevoix.

'I would do it again. We should be thankful for our local hospital, for what we have right here.'

June Cross, Charlevoix

Surgeon improves quality of life for Charlevoix native

CHARLEVOIX — A shoulder injury suffered many years before continued to plague 85-year-old June Cross of Charlevoix. The shoulder joint would "catch" and Cross would perform her own "yanking" adjustment to free the joint.

"It was painful, and I could hardly move it," said the matriarch of John Cross Fisheries.

But that would all change after a falling incident that introduced Cross to the skills of orthopedic surgeon Dan Wilcox, MD.

Leaning over to look for an earring, Cross slipped from her chair and lay on the floor until her husband returned home and called EMS. She was taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital by ambulance where Dr. Wilcox was on call. The following day he performed surgery on her femur, which had fractured below the hip joint.

"He explained the operation and told me that I would be just fine," Cross said.

The positive experience led her to consider shoulder surgery, necessitated by a combination of dead bone (humeral avascular necrosis) and a rotator cuff that continued to limit her mobility and cause severe pain.

"I told my family that I would rather have surgery than be in pain any longer," Cross said.

At the suggestion of her family, who wanted her to see a specialist, she sought a second opinion. But when Dr. Wilcox told her that he, himself, was a specialist, she remained loyal.

In August, Wilcox performed Cross' reverse total shoulder replacement surgery in which an artificial ball and socket are reversed to improve biomechanics and to provide more shoulder motion.

"He did a great job," she said. "He showed me pictures of my shoulder and the pieces of bone, and he explained in detail about the incision in my arm."

Cross wore a sling for a short amount of time, and continued with the rehabilitative exercises she had learned pre-surgery.

"It has been a pleasure taking care of Mrs. Cross after her broken hip and worn out shoulder," Wilcox said. "She recovered very well thanks to the help of her family, nurses and therapists."

June Cross felt right at home at then Charlevoix Area Hospital (now Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital). She had worked there for 17 years as an X-ray technician, and, by her own admission, she had "no fear of doctors or surgery." Her positive experience as an orthopedic patient, however, was new, and has increased her confidence in local specialty care.

"I would do it again," she said. "We should be thankful for our local hospital, for what we have right here."

Cross also has recommended shoulder surgery to a friend. Her advice to others: "Do what the doctor tells you, and you'll be fine. And," she emphasizes jokingly, "don't forget the ice packs during recovery."

Now, this grandmother of 19 is back to her normal activities. "I am doing very well," she said, "though I overdid it making applesauce this past fall."

swimming at the end of Maple Grove Road," Cunningham said, of his childhood. "I cross-country skied at Windmill Farms, and later worked at Dunmaglas. I fished on Lake Charlevoix. I want to make sure that my kids, your kids, and future generations, have the same opportunities."

This is the first time Cunningham has run for an elected position. He said he has the skills to serve the township and its residents.

"Owning and running a construction company with my brother has given me the experience and skills Hayes Township Board needs," Cunningham said. "I'm part of a team that ensures the sustainability of our business. I supervise and mentor employees, comply with required building codes, meet deadlines and control costs. Most important for board service is that owning a small business allows me to see both the big picture (strategic planning) and the hands-on day-to-day operations."

Cunningham and his brother also support the community through their business with youth sports sponsorships, scoreboard donations, marching band support, and contributions to Camp Sea Gull.

Cunningham also has coached girls youth basketball and participated in clean up at Camp Sea Gull.

Cunningham decided to run for Hayes Township trustee because he would like to contribute to his community and believes he can bring a fresh approach to the local government.

"I have always wanted to contribute to my community and thought this would be a great opportunity to serve," Cunningham said. "When I attended board meetings I watched and listened carefully. What I observed was a board serving a divided community and in need of both fresh ideas and a unifying spirit. I did not see anyone from my generation on this board. It is time for our younger citizens to step up and start giving back."

One of the issues facing the township that Cunningham feels is important to address deals with the park, roads and zoning.

"I think the most obvious issue is the development of Camp Sea Gull park and the boat launch," Cunningham said. "Just as important but receiving less attention, are the problems with our roads as well as zoning and development policies."

Cunningham and the other candidates seeking office in Hayes Township each have been invited to participate in a public community forum at 7 p.m. on Monday, July 18, at the Hayes Township Hall, 09195 Old U.S. 31 N., Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Julius, 3, Jess is a graduate of North Central Michigan College, and he has a Masters Degree in architecture from the University of Detroit Mercy.

Jess also is on the Hayes Township Planning Commission, Hayes Township Parks and Recreation Committee, the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, the Home Builders Association of Northern Michigan Board of Directors, along with several other committees and other boards. He also started a summer basketball league for local youth and adults in conjunction with the city of Charlevoix and assist with girls basketball — grades K-2.

Jess chose to seek election of township because of his love for the area. He also would like to see change on the current board.

"I grew up in Hayes Township and am passionate about this area," Jess said. "I feel it is time for me to give back to my community. I am respectful and tolerant of all views and would like the opportunity to be of greater service in Hayes Township. I am under-impressed with the current board and feel I can do better for the community."

One issue Jess would like to address as trustee would be to bring more "transparency and inclusion" to the Hayes Township Board of Trustees, which he believe would make it easier for the public to understand township meetings.

"It is near impossible to understand what the current board is talking about at most meetings because they operate off of information that is not shown to the public at public meetings," Jess said. "I believe the public could contribute more if information were to be made available to the public before the board meetings. The current board eliminated public comment at the start of their meetings, so at the last public meeting I had to sit there for three-and-a-half hours before the board allowed public comment. I believe the board should treasure public input and not try to silence the public they are elected to represent."

Jess and the other candidates seeking office in Hayes Township each have been invited to participate in a public community forum at 7 p.m. on Monday, July 18, at the Hayes Township Hall, 09195 Old U.S. 31 N., Charlevoix.

what shift if you have 10 people asking for the same one? Is it seniority? It is the amount of training? What is it that gets people on the shifts they want and who decides this? That is what I want to know," she added.

There are a handful of core paid on call EMS staff that are more reliable than other staff that take shifts, but there still are plenty of shifts available, Roloff said.

"I fill out a schedule a month at a time, I send everybody the schedule to fill in the shifts they want and get it back to me," Roloff said. "When I was done scheduling all the people for July, I still had 26 open spots for the first truck. It is not like we don't have the shifts available. They are there for people to take them if they want them."

Argonne Supper Club: Going Home Again

ANNE KELLY

Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — In the aftermath of the devastating fire at Charlevoix Country Club last Saturday afternoon, both the Country Club and the Argonne Supper Club are doing an inventory of the damage and are tentatively laying plans for resuming their future association.

"We feel badly for everyone concerned," said Cindy Whitley.

The fire which occurred during the Country Club's lunchtime preparations was not related to the Argonne's staff, but both parties share in the mourning process, acknowledging the loss of employment for many workers and the destruction of a beautiful facility.

Whitley and her brother, Steve Ager, only recently left their location on the Boyne City Road to take up residence at Charlevoix Country Club, a move which both parties anticipated would be positive. In the interim, the Argonne plan is to return to its original location on the Boyne City Road in hopes of reopening on the July 4th weekend.

"We plan to return to the Country Club after the restoration is completed," she said. "We are in the process of taking inventory of our losses. Everything we brought, including the silverware and cooking equipment, even the artwork once hanging on the Argonne walls, was destroyed."

The one miracle was that the pictures of their mother and father, Ted and Clara Ager, along with the painting of the original Argonne, were salvaged when two firefighters went in and brought them out.

"When we saw them carried out to our family, we were very emotional and filled with relief," Whitley said.

The pictures were taken to Terry Salmonson at Aart-vark Studio for restoration from minor damage.

Redwood Original: Californian Cliff Martin repeats as Belvedere Hickory Open Champion

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

(231) 439-9343 • jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — With five holes to play in Saturday's final round of the Belvedere Hickory Open, Cliff Martin already had a repeat championship all but sewn up.

But as he set out finishing up his round, the Los Angeles, California native still felt like he had something to prove.

"I had a big lead with a few holes to go, but I really wanted to shoot as good or better as what I shot last year (to win the title)," Martin said. "I was aware of it and I put some pressure on myself to make some good shots and good putts on the last few holes."

Martin accomplished his goal, shooting back-to-back 1-under 7s to beat his winning score last year of 143 by a stroke and the rest of the field by 11 strokes, becoming just the second repeat champion at the Belvedere Golf Club's annual Hickory event.

"I started slow on the first day, a few three-putts, and then had a nice little run where I birdied the last three holes of the front nine and that got me going," Martin said. "Nothing amazing happened this weekend and nothing horrible happened; I just hit the shots I was trying to hit and it worked out nicely."

Martin was driven to match his performance last year in part by a rules debate in Hickory golf, a variant of the sport that uses pre-1935 hickory-shafted golf clubs for an authentic recreation of the game's past.

His first title at the Belvedere last year was dominant but also slightly controversial, as Martin played with modern-made replica clubs that were built after 1935 and that traditionalists in Hickory contend provide an unfair advantage over original, pre-1935 clubs that most players use.

This time, Martin played with a bag of full originals, including several clubs made by noted Scottish designer Tom Stewart in the 1920s and a driver by another Scot, Jack White.

"It's a pretty high-end original set, with a few choice nibblers that have a nice bounce to them, so they have utility in the sand and get through the grass nicely," Martin said. "I went through a lot of woods trying to find ones that worked for me, and I put a few in the bag right before I left that I used a couple of times.

"It's a nice hodgepodge set, a good mix of collector's clubs."

While Martin's repeat victory won't end the debate by any means, it did prove that he's a force to be reckoned with on the course, regardless of what's in his bag.

Martin's win also came against a tough field and a final pairing that included two past champions, head pro of the Belvedere Golf Club and 2012 and 2013 winner Dennis "Marty" Joy II and 2014 winner Ernie Ernst of Wisconsin, who each shot a two-day total of 155 to finish tied for second in the open division behind Martin.

Winning the net (handicap-factored) title in the Open Division was Walloon Lake head pro Pete Kelbel, who cut six strokes off his day one score to finish with a net of 140 for the two day event, his first time playing with hickory clubs.

Jason Shaffer shot a net total of 140 to tie Kelbel, but Kelbel posted the lowest single round score of 77 to win the tiebreaker and take the top spot, with Gregg Whitley finishing with a net of 141 to finish one stroke back in third.

In the seniors division, Canadian native Hugh Cameron shot rounds of 78 and 75 to finish with a two-day total of 153 and bring home his first Hickory title.

"I've finished second five times (on the Hickory tour), so to finally get to bring one home means a lot," Cameron said. "The weather was beautiful, and this course is one I could play every day for the rest of my life, it's that good. It was a great weekend all around."

Consistency rather than any big run or great showing on one hole was the key to Cameron's championship round, he said.

"Just being consistent off the tee and consistent on the greens made the difference," Cameron said. "Staying out of trouble and not putting up any big scores will always give you a chance in events like this."

Belvedere member Chuck McMullin shot a two-day score of 155 to take second in the senior division, and David Brown carded a 159 to finish third, six strokes back of Cameron.

Tom Irving claimed the senior net title with a 130, John Cova finished second and Ross Hays took third.

In the super senior division, Michael Shiff shot an 82-78-160 to bring home the title, with former Belvedere head pro Steve Braun carding a 167 to earn runner-up honors and Ken Whitley taking third.

Dick Weiler won the net title with a 144, Frank Rosenzweig was runner-up and Jeffery Porter finished third.

Finally, in the women's division, Mary Jean Esselman shot a 98-104-202 to take the title, with Birdie Whitley shooting a 206 to finish runner-up and claim the net crown. Sue Hays shot a 207 to finish third.

With the Belvedere Hickory Open now past, all that remains in the Hickory Championship Series season is the U.S. Hickory Open on Sept. 22-24 at The Links of Lawsonia in Green Lake, Wisconsin, where Martin will look to finish off a Hickory Major grand slam with a title.

AREA COACH OF THE YEAR

Aaron Riley, Harbor Springs

Entering his second season as the head coach at Harbor Springs, the Rams' youth gave Aaron Riley plenty to be concerned about, and an 0-7 start seemed to confirm his fears. But Riley, who has also won a district title with the Harbor Springs boys squad, kept his players from losing their confidence and helped engineer a turnaround, resulting in the program's first district title in nearly a decade. Also coached three varsity players to All-State honors from the Michigan High School Coaches Association this season.

Versatility, attitude make Worm the News-Review Soccer Player of the Year

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9143
jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

HARBOR SPRINGS — As a senior captain for Harbor Springs, Jessica Worm filled many roles for the Rams on the way to the squad's first district title in nine years.

But against Harbor Springs' best opponents, Worm was always the last line of defense, playing the sweeper position and thriving in a role where one mistake could mean conceding a game-changing goal.

"The pressure helped keep me focused and motivated me," Worm said. "If I screwed up, then I was putting my goalie in a bad situation and wasting the efforts of my teammates in front of me."

"My teammates play so well, and in order to repay them for that, I know I just can't make any mistakes."

Worm did just that in several key games for the Rams, helping a young backline and a new starting goalkeeper, Izzy Gracy, post seven shutouts and three more one goal games.

"Jessica had a sophomore to her right, a freshman to her left, any anything that got past her was a shot on goal," Harbor Springs coach Aaron Riley said. "That's a very difficult position to be in, but she not only did her job well but made her fellow defenders better by showing them how to play the position and being a vocal leader during games."

As one of three seniors on a team with 10 freshmen and sophomores, Worm proved to be a leader for more than just her fellow defenders.

That was sorely needed, as the young Rams started the season 0-7 and looked like they were in danger of falling apart.

But Worm said she was confident throughout that Harbor Springs could right the ship.

"We knew that it was going to take time for the freshmen to adjust and to learn how to play with each other," Worm said. "We went through a lot of tough times but we knew that once we figured each other out and started to click as a team, we had the ability to be something special."

"We just had to keep working hard for it, and not give up."

That positive attitude and work ethic spoke volumes for a young squad and was a major factor in Harbor Springs' rapid turnaround, winning 12 of their last 14 games and capturing the program's first district title since 2007.

"She just makes it work through sheer will," Riley said. "She's one of the most coachable players I've ever had, and she never complains or questions."

"She works so hard in practice and sets a great example for her teammates, who see that work ethic and try and duplicate it themselves."

Scoring goals wasn't Harbor Springs senior Jessica Worm's thing this season, preventing them was a specialty.

Worm's strong play not only helped her team achieve success, but also earned her third team all-state honors from the soccer coaches association and a chance to play at the next level, with Division II Minnesota-Crookston.

"It's special to get the chance, because it's not something I ever thought was possible," Worm said. "To have someone see the potential in me to be a college player, it's meant all my hard work has paid off."

"From the start I didn't think I was good enough, but my parents always believed in me and told me I had the ability to do it. If I had the confidence in myself to believe in the possibility, and that made it possible."

Petoskey's Brown pushes on to Area Player of the Year honor

PETOSKEY — Keep pushing and good things will come.

It's a lesson and a mantra Petoskey boys' golf coach Chad Loe has stressed to his guys each year of coaching.

It's also one senior Max Brown built his Northmen career around and eventually became the perfect example of.

After finding his way into the Petoskey golf team's lineup sparingly as a sophomore, then working his way into the No. 5 position as a junior, Brown put in the necessary work heading into his senior season to make a move up the lineup.

"This past summer I was probably golfing about five days a week, usually when I got out of work or before I got to work," said Brown. "I talked with (Boyne Pro) Brian O'Niell, he helped me out and Silas (Lee) would always be with me and push me to get better."

"I just put in the work and that's what helped me out so much this year."

The payoff? A second straight trip to the Division 2 state finals and now, a Northern Michigan Review Golfer of the Year honor.

The work put in by Brown in the summer and fall didn't go unnoticed by Loe, who saw all areas of Brown's game step up this season.

"What an amazing turnaround," he said. "He played on varsity his junior year and even a little his sophomore year, but just the progression to this year, to see the maturity and excellence in his work ethic and drive was absolutely amazing. He'll be an example I use for future players at Petoskey. Just an outstanding player."

While it's understandable sometimes when players crack under the pressure of a big event, situations like that seemed to only make Brown stronger this year.

Switching putters early in the season helped Petoskey's Max Brown find confidence in his putts and helped him to a career low 72 later in the season.

In the district match at Thornapple Pointe, Brown carded a career low 72 to help push the Northmen through to regionals with a sixth place finish, as they just made the cutoff point.

"The amount of pressure that these guys face and to be able to carry the team, without his score at districts we never would have made it to regionals," said Loe. "That's always an amazing feat to get to regionals."

At the regional match at The Pothat of Mt. Pleasant, Brown again led Petoskey, shooting a 77 and earned his way through to the state finals in a three-way playoff.

As a junior at states, Brown was one of two golfers for Petoskey to shoot two rounds in the 70s, carding 79-79-158.

That experience helped him into this year's state finals as well.

"Being the fifth guy (last year) was nice because I didn't have a lot of weight on my shoulders to try to carry the team because we had four really good guys last year," he said. "I had two consistent rounds last year and it helped me a lot. There was a little pressure this year, but the second day I had no pressure at all."

The pressure of being at states this year was heightened with day one pairings with two of the best golfers in the state and the eventual No. 1 and No. 4 finishing Division 2 players.

"I doubled my first two holes, which was a tough start for me, then I just told myself 'you've got to make pars. If you make pars, the birdies will come. Just don't look back,'" said Brown.

That lesson of keep pushing on worked, as he carded a 78-77-155, once again shooting both days in the 70s for a 78.3 four-round average at the state finals in his career.

"To be in the 70s for four rounds, that's tremendous play," added Loe. "He was one of those guys that was very calm and unemotional in terms of his play. A lot of players can be very up and down. Max was very steady, very in control of his emotions."

Petoskey's Max Brown once again put on a clinic during the postseason in his quest for a second straight state finals run.

Working at Boyne Highlands once again this summer, Brown is sure to put in the same amount of work, if not more, to achieve his next goal on the course, with plans to attend Ferris State University's professional golf management program and walk on to the golf team. The tryout will come as a two-day event later this summer.

"It's going to be tough, but I'm going to try to put in the same work that I did last year and try to make it," he said.

If a bad hole or two is to come, there's little doubt Brown will pack it in and let it hinder him. He's more of a keep pushing on kind of golfer.

"If you have a bad hole or two, just forget about it because you can't do anything about it now," he added. "Keep pushing and good things will come."
